THE GREEK ORIGINALS AND DATES OF THE PLAYS IN THE THIRD VOLUME

THE Mercator is an adaptation of Philemon's Emporos.<sup>1</sup> When the Emporos was produced, however, is unknown, as is the date of production of the Mercator, and of the Mostellaria and Persa, as well.

The Alazon, the Greek original of the Miles Gloriosus, was very likely written in 287 B.C., the argument<sup>2</sup> for that date being based on international relations during the reign of Seleucus,<sup>3</sup> for whom Pyrgopolynices was recruiting soldiers at Ephesus. And Periplectomenus's allusion to the imprisonment of Naevius<sup>4</sup> might seem to suggest that Plautus composed the Miles about 206 B.C.

Philemon's Phasma was probably the original of the Mostellaria, and written, as it apparently was, after the death of Alexander the Great and Agathocles,<sup>5</sup> we may assume that Philemon presented the Phasma between 288 B.C. and the year of the death of Diphilus,<sup>6</sup> who was living when it was produced.

THE GREEK ORIGINALS

In the Persa the Persians are spoken of as a people still independent.<sup>1</sup> The unknown Greek original of the play would therefore seem to have been written in the time of Demosthenes, before the conquests of Alexander.

<sup>1</sup> Persa 506.

THE MERCHANT

ARGUMENTVM I

Missus mercatum ab suo adulescens patre
Emit atque adportat scita forma mulierem.
Requirit quae sit, postquam eam vidit, senex :
Configit servos emptam matri pedisequam.
Amat senex hanc, ac se simulans vendere
Tradit vicino ; eum putat uxor sibi
Obduxe scortum. tum Charinum ex fuga
Retrahit sodalis, postquam amicam invenit.

ARGUMENTVM II

Mercatum asotum filium extrudit pater.
is peregre missus redimit ancillam hospitis amore captus, advehit. nave exilit, pater advolat, vix visam ancillam deperit.
cuius sit percontatur ; servos pedisequam ab adulescente matri ait emptam ipsius.

ARGUMENT OF THE PLAY (I)

A young man, sent on a trading trip by his father, buys and brings home a charming young miss. The old gentleman, after seeing her, inquires who she may be. His son's servant pretends that she was bought as an attendant for the young man's mother. Falling in love with her and feigning to sell her, the old gentleman entrusts her to a neighbour; and the neighbour's wife thinks he has got himself a mistress. Then Charinus is kept from leaving the country by his friend, who has found the young fellow's sweetheart.

ARGUMENT OF THE PLAY (II)

A dissipated son is packed off on a trading trip by his father. Despatched abroad, he loses his heart to a maidservant of his host, buys her, and carries her home. He disembarks; his father flies to the ship, and, at first sight of the maid, is smitten. He asks whose she is; his son's servant says the young man bought her as an attendant for his mother. Then the old gentleman, with his own comfort in mind, urgently entreats his son to have her sold to a friend of his; the son, to a friend of his own—a neighbour's son being the son's proxy, the neighbour himself, the father's. The old gentleman is first in the market and gets the girl. This neighbour's spouse, finding the girl in her house, takes her for her husband's mistress, and ejects him. The young merchant, in despair, determines to flee his native land, but is deterred by his friend who joins his own father in begging the old gallant to give way to his son.

ACT I

ENTER Charinus, PALE AND WAN.

ar. (to audience) I am now resolved to do, at one and the same time, two things—acquaint you both with the plot of this play and with my passion. I shall not imitate those other lovesick lovers I have seen in the comedies, who confide their woes to the night, or day, or sun, or moon; very little care these, I fancy, about the complaints of mortals, their likes and dislikes. It is to you, rather, that I shall now confide my woes.

The Greek name of this play is the Emporos, of Philemon; in Latin we call it the Mercator, of Maccius Titus.

My father (with a wave of the hand in the direction of Demipho's house) sent me away from here on a trading trip to Rhodes; two years ago it is now, since I left home. There I fell in love with a perfectly beautiful girl. But how I became enthralled you shall hear, if your ears are at leisure and you will accord me your kind attention. (apologetically) And, by Jove, I have failed to follow fully the practice of lovers: this love of mine was the theme I announced, that was my starting point. For in the wake of love commonly come all these ills—care, sorrow and excessive display,<sup>1</sup> and overtalking—which overtalking becomes undertalking because a lover constantly delivers himself of useless irrelevancies at the wrong time; and then again I pronounce this overtalking sub-talking, by reason of the fact that no lover is ever so artfully eloquent as to be able to say the things that help him. So you people should not be irritated at my own overtalking now: it was my legacy from Venus on the same day she gave me my love. To which love of mine I must now return, and resume my tale.

In the beginning, after I had come of age and lost my zest for childish things, I became completely captivated by a courtesan here; forthwith my father's property quietly went into exile to her. The ruthless pimp, who owned the girl, grabbed and made off with everything he could pounce on. My father denounced all this night and day, picturing the perfidy and injustice of pimps. To think that his own estate should be absolutely mangled, and that fellow's multiplied! All this at the top of his lungs; or now again he would mutter what he had to say—shake his head, and even insist that I was no son of his. All over the city he would go, bebawling and giving notice no one was to trust me when I looked for loans. Love had lured many a man into extravagance, he would tell me; but I was an intemperate, unrestrained, unprincipled waster, doing all I could to drain him dry; and the good substance he had acquired by his own unsparing toil was being scattered and squandered by me in the vilest way, on my amours. To think that he had supported me all these years to be a scandal to him! If I was not ashamed of such a life, I ought to end my life, and do it gladly. Why, here was he—he had not turned to love affairs and lolling about in idleness like me the moment he came of age, nor did he have a chance—so tightly was he held in check by his father. Work on the farm, dirty work and plenty of it, that was his training, and there was no visiting the city for him, except once every four years,<sup>1</sup> and just as soon as he had set eyes on the sacred robe<sup>2</sup> his father used to pack him off post haste to the farm again. And there he was the best labourer of them all by far, and his father would say: “It is for yourself you plough, for yourself you harrow, for yourself you sow, yes, and for yourself you reap, and for yourself, finally, that labour will engender joy.” After life had left his father’s body, he had sold the farm and with the money bought a ship of fifteen tons burden and marketed his cargoes of merchandise everywhere, till he had at length acquired the wealth which he then possessed. I ought to do the same, if I were what I ought to be.

<sup>1</sup> vv. 20-30: And this is a vice which takes a full and heavy toll, not only from the lover, but from everyone affected by it, nor is there a single soul, I swear, given to display beyond his means who does not pay an ample penalty. But love has still more ills which I omitted—sleeplessness, anxiety, uncertainty, fear and flight, silliness, yes, and stupidity and recklessness, and senseless unreflection, immodesty, wantonness and lust, ill-will, inertia, inordinate desire, sloth, injustice, contumely and extravagance.

As for me, when I realized that I was detestable to my own father and disgusting to the man I should delight, lovesick lunatic though I was, I summoned my resolution and declared that I would go on a trading trip, if he so desired: my love should be put aside if only I could please him. He thanked me and be-lauded my good intentions; but he did not fail to follow up my promises. He built a small Cyprian bark, bought merchandise, loaded the now completed vessel, and furthermore counted me out two hundred pounds with his own hand. A slave who had been my attendant in time past, when I was a tiny lad, he sent along with me as a sort of guardian. These preparations made, we weighed anchor.

We arrived at Rhodes, where I sold my whole cargo quite to my satisfaction. I made a big profit over and above the price my father set for me on the merchandise; so I cleared a good bit of pocket-money for myself. But while I was strolling about the port there, an old friend of ours recognized me and invited me to dinner. I went, and met with a jovial and lavish welcome at his table. On our going to bed at night, lo and behold! a girl came to me, an unsurpassed beauty of a girl! That night she spent with me by order of my host. See for yourselves how completely she charmed me: the next day I went to my host and begged him to sell her to me, saying I should be grateful and deeply obliged for the favour.

To come to an end—I did buy her, and brought her here yesterday. But I don't want my father to find out I have brought her. I just now left her at the harbour on board the ship, along with

- r. Be damned to you!
- n. (vehemently) To you, as a matter of fact, (more calmly) I'm reporting this news from the port——
- r. (on edge) What are you bringing me? Speak!
- n. Violence and dread, anguish and apprehension, wrangling and want.
- r. Lord help me! Why, man, this is a perfect mine of trouble you've brought me! I'm a ruin!
- n. Oh, no, you're a—— (glowers)
- r. Yes, yes, I know—a poor wretch, you're going to say.
- n. I said it—silently.
- r. What is this trouble?
- n. Don't keep asking; it's a horrible misfortune.
- r. For Heaven's sake, do relieve me now! I've been hanging in suspense too long!
- n. (judicially) Gently, gently! There are still many things I wish to inquire into before the thrashing I—get.
- r. By gad, you shall be thrashed, I promise you, unless you instantly speak out, or get out!
- n. (pleasantly) Just see that! How he does pat a fellow! None smoother, once he gets going!
- r. (pleadingly again) I beg and beseech you, do, do let me know this minute what the trouble is,

Oh, damn you! Quibbling when my life's at stake!

How am I quibbling, curse it, if I answer what you ask?

He really saw her?

Gad! As really as I see you, or you me.

Where did he see her?

There on board, as he stood near her; and he talked with her, too.

Ah, father, you've finished me! (to Acanthio) But look here, you! Look here, you! Why didn't you take care he shouldn't see her, you whipstock? Why didn't you hide her away, you villain, and keep her out of my father's sight?

Because we were busy with our own business: we were intent on furling sail and getting things shipshape. Meanwhile, up comes your father in a tiny cutter, and not a soul set eyes on him till he climbed aboard.

(tragically) In vain, oh sea, have I escaped thy tempests! Methought I now was surely safe on shore, only to find myself flung upon the rocks by the raging billows! Go on, go on, tell what took place!

After he spied the girl, he began asking whose she was.

What did she answer?

I ran up at once and broke in on 'em, saying you had bought her as a maid for your mother.

Did he seem to believe you?

Of course he did! But the blackguard began to pet!

For Heaven's sake! Her?

(snorting) Strange it wasn't me he petted!

MERCATOR

Oh, Lord! My poor heart! It's melting away speck by speck, just as when you put salt in water! I'm lost, lost!

(scornful) There! That's the truest thing you've said! (pauses, then cheerfully) That's all foolishness.

(in despair) What shall I do? I don't believe my father will believe me, if I say I bought her for my mother; besides, (virtuously) I think it's wicked to tell a lie to my own parent. He won't believe it, and it can't be believed, that I bought such an exquisite creature to be my mother's maid.

Do keep still, won't you, you idiot? He'll believe you, Lord, yes! Why, he has already believed me.

Oh dear! How I dread his coming to suspect the real situation! Answer me this question, please, please!

What is your question, please, please?

He didn't seem to suspect she was my mistress?

He did not. Why, he believed each and everything I told him.

(unconvinced) That is, you thought he did.

No, but he did.

Oh, Lord help me! It's all over! But why am I wailing my life away here, and not going to the ship? (to Acanthio) Come along! (sets off down the street)

If you go that way, you'll come plump and pat on your father. Then he'll observe that you're nervous and all upset: the next thing he'll detain you, demand where you bought her, how much you bought her for—cross-examine you while you're excited.

Why, I ran ahead here, I tell you, just so that he mightn't catch you unawares and worm the truth out of you.

ACT II

ENTER Demipho, PERPLEXED.

The Gods do make sport of us mortals in amazing ways! And amazing dreams they do send us in our sleep! Myself, for instance, just this past night—how I was hustled and bustled in my sleep! I seemed to have bought a beautiful she-goat. So that she might not be harmed by another she-goat I already had at home, and that they might not fall foul of each other if they were both in the same place, it seemed that after buying her I committed her to the care of a monkey.

Well, not long afterwards this monkey came over and heaped curses and abuse upon me: he said that, thanks to that she-goat and her arrival, he had let himself in for no end of disgrace and loss; that she-goat I had given him to keep for me, he maintained, had completely devoured his wife's dowry. It seemed to me amazing that that one she-goat should devour the dowry of a monkey's wife. But the monkey insisted she had, and this was his ultimatum—that unless I took her away from his house at once, he would take her into my own house to my wife.

And there I was, by Jove, seeming to have the tenderest sort of feeling for that she-goat, but without a soul to shelter her—which made my anguish, and anxiety as to what to do, all the greater, poor wretch! Meanwhile a kid, so it seemed, came up to me with the announcement that he had taken that she-goat away from the monkey, and began to laugh at me—for I was weeping and wailing at her abduction.

Now what this dream portends, I can't discover, except that, as to that she-goat, I suspect, I've already discovered what she is, or signified. For I went down to the harbour this morning at day-break; after transacting the business I had in hand I suddenly spied the ship that brought my son from Rhodes yesterday, and for some unknown reason took a notion to go and look it over. Clambering into a boat, I was carried to the ship. And then (rapturously) I beheld a girl, a perfect beauty of a girl, brought here by my son to be his mother's maid! The minute I set eyes on her I fell in love—not as sane men do, but like a madman. Lord, Lord! I've been in love before, of course, when I was young, but never in any such mad way as this. Oh, Lord! One thing I do know now at any rate—it's all over with me! Oh well, see for yourselves what I am good for!

Now this is surely the way of it—the girl is that she-goat; but that monkey and kid, by Jove, are bringing me trouble, and who to say they are I don't know. (listening) But I must hush, for there's my neighbour coming out!

2. ENTER Lysimachus FROM HIS HOUSE, FOLLOWED BY A SLAVE.

You be off to the villa now, and mind you hand over those mattocks to bailiff Pistus in person. And notify my wife, mind, that I have business in the city and she's not to expect me; for I have three cases coming on to-day, tell her. Be off, and remember to tell her this.

That is all.

[EXIT SLAVE.]

(approaching) Good day, Lysimachus.

(pleased) Aha! Demipho! Good day to you! How are you? How goes it?

(gloomy) Miserably as can be!

God forbid!

But it's just what He does bid!

What's wrong?

I would tell you, if you seemed to have time to attend.

Busy though I am, Demipho, if you want anything, I am never too much occupied to oblige a friend.

(heartily) Yes, yes, I have tested that kindness of yours. (pauses, then sprightly) How old do you think I look?

(dispassionately) Ripe for Hades, an ancient, time-worn and decrepit.

(somewhat crestfallen, then briskly) What awful eyesight! I'm a boy, Lysimachus, a seven year old boy!

Are you daft, calling yourself a boy?

It's the truth.

Oh, really now, Demipho, you must be joking me!

(vehemently) Decapitate me where I stand, if I'm lying, or for that matter, just to show you I am in love, take a knife and cut off my finger or ear or nose or lip: if I budge, if I seem conscious of being cut, Lysimachus, I give you leave to (tittering) love me to death!

r.    (not seeing his father) There's no more miserable man alive than I am, I do believe, or one with more things eternally going against him. Isn't it a fact that nothing that I've set about can turn out for me and stay as I long to have it? Some confounded thing or other does always drop on me and botch my best laid plans! Here I had got myself the mistress that suited me, poor devil, and carried her off for cash, thinking I could have her unbeknown to my father. And now he has discovered it, and seen her, and done for me! And I haven't thought what to say when he questions me, what with the ten minds inside me all in confusion and conflict! What course to take now I can't conceive, I'm so worried and perplexed. At times my servant's plan suits me thoroughly; then again it doesn't suit me, and it seems impossible my father can be induced to think that such a girl was bought to be my mother's maid.

But supposing now I tell him how it really is and announce that I bought her for myself, what would he think of me? And as for her, why, he'd tear her away, transport her across the sea for sale! I know how harsh he is, and not from hearsay. So this is a lover's life? (bitterly) I'd prefer a ploughman's life to such a lover's life as this! He has already turned me out of his house once against my will, ordered me off on a trading trip. That's what got me into this mess! For what pleasure is there in a thing that brings you more grief than gratification? It was all for nothing I kept her close, concealed, under cover: my father's a regular fly—you can't keep anything from him, (seeing him) Oh Lord! There he is, there's my father! (pauses) I'll up and speak to him.

(advances, obviously embarrassed) How goes it, father?

(pleasantly) Where do you hail from? Why so flustered, my lad?

It's . . . all right, father.

I hope so, but what does that change of colour mean? You're not in pain?

Somehow I . . . feel a bit . . . uncomfortable, father. And then . . . last night I didn't . . . rest as well as I could wish!<sup>1</sup>

Ah, yes, that explains your pallor. You would do well to go home and go to bed.

I haven't time, sir: I have some commissions I want to attend to first.

Oh, do it to-morrow, do it the day after!

(dutifully) But, father, I have often heard you say yourself that all sensible men should give a commission their very first attention.

Quite so, sir, all the time—that is, while I was there; but on reaching port here I've somehow felt out of sorts.

Oh, yes, from sea-sickness, no doubt; however, it won't last long. (casually) But I say, did you bring some . . . maid for your mother from Rhodes?

(choking) Yes, sir.

So? And what do you think of her?

Why, really, sir, she is . . . not bad.

(severely) And her character?

I never saw a girl of better, sir, in my opinion.

So it seemed to me, too, by Jove, when I saw her.

I saw her. But she won't do for us, she really isn't suitable.

weave, to grind meal, to cut wood, to do her stint of spinning, to sweep the house, to stand a beating, to do the family cooking day in and day out. Not a single one of these things can that girl do.

Quite right, sir. But you see this was the reason I bought her—she's to be a personal present for my mother.

(firmly) Don't give her, and don't say you've brought her.

(aside, delighted) The gods are with me!

(aside, delighted) I'm gradually making him waver!

(aloud) But I omitted to say—she's hardly the proper sort of person to attend your mother, and I can't permit it.

Indeed? Why not?

Because it would breed scandal for such a beauty to be the attendant of a wife and mother; when she passed through the streets all the men would eye her, ogle her, nod and wink and whistle, pinch her, accost her, annoy her; they would serenade the house and scrawl my doors black with their love ditties. And worse still—people are so slanderous nowadays—they would charge my wife and me with pandering. Now where's the occasion for this?

(as though seeing a great light) By Jove, sir, you are quite right, and I agree with you! But what shall be done with her now?

(easily) That's all right. I'll buy your mother some big lusty wench, a good one, though not good looking, such as befits the mother of a family—some Syrian or Egyptian. She shall grind meal, cook, do her share of spinning, take her thrashings—a maid like that will bring no disgrace to our doors.

(after due reflection) How about returning my wench to the man I bought her of, then?

(hastily) Not for the world!

He agreed to take her back, if she didn't suit.

I want no dispute, no, no, nor to have your honour impugned. Good Lord! I much prefer to incur a loss, if I must, than to face opprobrium and the disgrace ~~of throwing a woman out!~~ (after cogitation)

And I do believe I can sell her for you at a splendid figure.

(worried) Only . . . for heaven's sake, father . . . you mustn't . . . sell her for less than she cost me!

Hush, boy, hush! (confidentially) There's a certain old man who commissioned me to buy her—or a girl of her appearance.

(eagerly) But, father, a certain young man commissioned me to buy him a girl of precisely her appearance.

(momentously) I believe I could sell her for eighty pounds!

(triumphantly) But if I wanted to, why, I'm already offered a hundred and eight!

But I——

Why, I tell you, I——

(peevishly) See here! You don't know what I'm going to say! Do keep still! I can (turning and looking down the street) mint up twelve pounds more and make it a hundred and twenty.

(aside) Oh, damn! Heaven's curse on him, whoever he is!

There! There! He nods again, I am to add twenty-four pounds more!

(looking animatedly in the opposite direction) And my man says twenty-eight!

By Jove, he'll never beat me, never!

It's good honest coin he offers, father!

It's no use his offering! She's mine!

But his offer came first!

I don't care!

He's offering two hundred pounds!

He won't get her for four hundred! Can't you stop bidding against my earnest wishes? Good heavens! You'll make a tremendous haul! Why, the old man I'm buying her for is fairly crazed with love of her! You'll get your own price.

But that young man I'm buying her for—upon my soul, he's simply distracted, dying for love of her!

Lord, Lord, but that old man is much more so, if you only knew!

But, father, I swear that old man never, never was or will be more crazed from love than that young man I'm doing this for!

Be quiet, I tell you! I'll manage matters properly.

(after hard thinking) See here, father!

What is it?

I didn't take her with legal rights.

But he'll take her. Never you mind.

You can't sell her lawfully.

(untroubled) I'll find some way.

What does that matter to me?

Because he ought to have control of his own property.

What do you say——

(interrupting) I own her in common with him; and he isn't here now.

You answer before I ask!

And you buy before I sell, father! I don't know, I tell you, whether or not he's willing to have her disposed of.

What? Will he be willing, if she's bought for that "certain man" who commissioned you to get her, but unwilling, if I buy her for this man who commissioned me? Rubbish! By the Lord, never a soul shall have her in preference to the man I want her for!

(struggling with his emotions) Is that final, sir?

Don't you take it for final? Why, I'm going to the ship this instant, and there she'll be sold.

Do you want me to go with you?

I do not.

I don't like this, father!

You had better give those commissions of yours your first attention.

But you don't let me!

Well, lay the blame on me: say you did your best.

You're not to go to the harbour, now mark my words.

You shall be obeyed, sir.

ENTER Lysimachus, FOLLOWED BY Pasicompsa
IN TEARS.

(pleased with himself) Well, I've done a friend a friendly turn—bought this piece of goods (indicating Pasicompsa) as my neighbour suggested. (to Pasicompsa) You're mine, my girl, so come along. (ogling her appreciatively) Don't weep: it's very silly of you to spoil such pretty eyes. Really now, you have more reason to laugh than to cry. Oh, you dear old gentleman, do be nice and tell me——

Ask anything you like.

—— why you bought me.

Why I bought you? Why, so as to have you (amorously) do what you're bid, just as I would do your bidding.

(taking his hand, coyly) I'll certainly do what I think you like, to the very best of my ability and understanding, sir.

(smirking) I won't order you to do anything very hard.

Goodness, no, you dear old thing! For really, I never learned to carry anything heavy, or feed the flocks on a farm, or nurse children.

MERCATOR

If you'll be a good girl, you'll have a good time.
(in feigned dismay) Oh dear! Then there's no hope for poor me at all!

How's that?

(archly) Because where I was brought from it's usually the naughty girls who have a good time. That amounts to saying there's no such thing as a good girl.

Oh, no indeed, I don't say that; it's not my way to announce a fact I think everyone's familiar with.

(aside, delightedly) By gad, it's worth more than she cost just to hear her prattle! (aloud) I want to ask you this one thing.

If you ask, I'll answer.

Tell me—but what name shall I call you?

Pasicompsa, sir.

(approvingly) Ah, a name given you for being so lovely!<sup>1</sup> But tell me, (lingeringly) Pasicompsa, if need arose, could you weave a fine woof?

I can, sir.

If you know how to weave a fine one, I know you can weave a coarser one.

At weaving, I'm not afraid of anyone of my own age. By Jove, you are a good girl, I do believe, and a useful girl, and plenty old enough, seeing you know how to do your duty, my lass.

Oh yes, sir, I've learned my lessons well. I won't let anyone complain of my work.

Ah-h! That's the way, by Jove! Now look here, I'll give you a (pointing to Demipho's house) sheep, a sheep sixty years old, for your very own.

As ancient as that, you dear old thing?

Genuine Greek stock! If you take care of it, it will prove a very fine one, and you can shear it to perfection.

MERCATOR

I'll show my appreciation and be grateful for anything that's given me, sir.

Now then, my girl, not to deceive you—you're not mine, don't think you are.

Mercy me! Whose am I, then?

You've been bought again for your own master. I did the buying, at his request.

(thinking he means Charinus) Oh, I'm alive once more, if he keeps his word with me!

Cheer up! He'll set you free, he will! Why, good Lord, he's dying for you, and to-day's the first time he ever saw you!

Oh, sir, it's two years now since he began relations with me. I'll let you into our secret, now that I know you're a friend of his.

(astonished) What's that? Two years now he's had relations with you?

Why, yes. And we promised each other solemnly, I him and he me, never to have a thing to do with any man or woman except our own two selves.

Ye immortal gods! Won't he sleep with his own wife, even?

(with a start) Oh, my dear man, he isn't married?

(defiantly) He's not, and he won't be, either!

Well, I wish he weren't! Lord, Lord, how he did lie!

There's no young man alive that I love more.

(quizzically) He's a boy, a boy, silly! Really, you know, it's not long ago that his teeth dropped out.

(mystified) What's that about his teeth?

Oh, nothing. (going towards his house) This way, please. He begged me to put you up for this one day, my wife being in the country.

[EXEUNT.]

MERCATOR

e 2.           ENTER Demipho IN HIGH SPIRITS.

At last I've claimed the privilege of going to the dogs! Here's a mistress bought, unbeknown to wife, unbeknown to son! I'll take up my old ways again, I certainly will, and be good to myself. Only a short space of life is left me, I'll sweeten it with pleasure and wine and love. Why, my age is just the proper season to have my fling. When you're young and your blood's fresh, that's the time to settle down to making your fortune; and then at last when you're old, why, that's the time to take your ease and enjoy your love affairs, while you can. For then each day of life is clear profit.

Now I propose to practise what I preach. Meanwhile, however, I'll just look in at home here: my wife has been hungrily awaiting me there this long while. (reflecting) Her tongue will do me to death in no time, once I'm back inside. (belligerently) But just the same, I tell you what, by Jove, for all that I'm—— (weakly) not going in. No, I'll see my neighbour here before I go back home; I want him to hire some house for me, for that girl to live in. (a noise at Lysimachus's door) Aha! There he is, coming out!

e 3.           ENTER Lysimachus.

(to Pasicompsa within) I'll bring him to you directly, if I come across him.

(aside) He means me.

(seeing him) I say, Demipho——

(tempestuously) Is the girl inside there?

(thoughtful) Well, what do you think?

(blithely) What if I have a look? (makes toward the door)

What's your hurry? Wait.

(halts) What shall I do?

You would do well to consider what you ought to do.

What is there to consider? Lord, man! I certainly take it that what I ought to do is to (all a-quiver) go inside there! (makes for door again)

(scornfully) Do you, really? You old wether! Go inside, eh?

(halting again, puzzled) What else should I do?

Look here now and listen to me, first: there's still something I think you should do first. Why, if you go inside there now, you'll want to hug and palaver and kiss.

(ecstatically) Well, if you haven't got my mind in your body! You know just what I intend to do! You'll be doing the wrong thing.

(indignant) When you love a girl, can't you——

All the worse. Is a foul-breathed old goat like you to kiss a girl (emphatically) on an empty stomach? D'ye want to turn her stomach the moment you come near her? Gad! I see what a lover you are when you announce such intentions!

(crestfallen, then hopefully) Well, what if I attend to this then? If you think best, let's capture some cook to cook us up a meal here at your house against the evening.

(his hopes realized) There! I do think that best. Now you're talking in a wise and loverly way.

(impatient) Well, why stand here? Let's go, then, and see to our marketing, and make a beautiful day of it. (going)

Yes, yes, I'm with you! (trying to catch up, and pulling at Demipho's cloak) And I say, you'll find quarters for her, if you're wise. I say, she can't

Oh, I'm miserable! I can't be comfortable anywhere! If I'm at home, my thoughts are out; and if I'm out, my thoughts are at home! Such flames of love as my heart and breast are in! If it weren't for the protection of my tears, I do believe my head would be ablaze by now. (sublimely) My hope is all I cling to; my life I've allowed to go—whether to return or no, I know not! If my father crushes me by doing what he said, my life has left for exile; but if my chum has fulfilled his promise, my life is left for me. (pauses, then petulantly) But even if Eutyclus had the gout, he could have got back from the harbour by this time. That's a terrible failing of his—being so awfully slow, in comparison with my heart's desire. (looking down the street) But is that he, that man I see running? It is, it is! I'll go meet him! Oh, he's stopping! Now I'm lost, lost! I don't like that look of his at all! That slow step! That gloomy air! Oh, my heart's on fire! I'm caught! He's shaking his head! (calling) Oh, Eutyclus!

ENTER Eutyclus.

(dejectedly) Oh, you Charinus!

(beside himself) Before you get your breath—just one word, out with it! Where am I? Here, or with the dead?

Neither with the dead, nor here.

Nowhere at all.

Oh, damnation! Those words have killed me! Too much talk in time of action does make words wearisome.

Whatever it is, come to the main points!

First of all—we're done for.

(bitterly) Why don't you tell me some news I don't know, instead?

The girl has been taken away from you.

(tragic) Eutyclus, you are committing a capital crime!

Eh? How so!

I am your comrade and your chum, a free born citizen, and now you murder me!

Heaven forbid!

You have thrust a sword into my throat! Ere long I'll fall!

Now, now, for heaven's sake, don't lose courage!

I have none to lose! Tell me more, more of my misery! For whom was she bought?

I don't know. She had already been auctioned off and taken away when I reached the harbour.

Oh my God! Man, man, all this time you've been hurling whole mountains of red-hot misery

You've destroyed me, and, with me, all my confidence in you!

God knows it's no fault of mine!

(savagely) Bravo! Calling God to witness, when He's not here! How can I believe your words?

Because your beliefs are in your own control, as my words are in mine.

You're ready enough in repartee, but in carrying out commissions you're a lame, blind, mute, maimed remnant of a man! You promised to bamboozle my father—and I, I believed I had left the matter to an intelligent human being, only to find I left it to a great big block of stone!

(patiently) What could I do?

What could you do? You ask me that? You could have investigated, inquired who he was or where he came from, who his family were, whether he was a citizen or an alien!

They said he was an Athenian citizen.

You might at least have found out where he lived, if not his name.

What do you want me to do?

The same thing you see me doing—die! Why didn't you ask what the man who bought her looked like, and see if she could be traced that way? Oh dear, oh dear!

Do stop crying—the one thing you do do at present!

But at least you might have inquired about his appearance!

I did.

Well, then, what did they say he looked like?

I'll tell you—a gray-haired, knock-kneed, pot-bellied, big-mouthed, stubby fellow, with blackish eyes, lantern jaws, and feet a bit splayed.

That's no description of a man, it's some collection of freaks! Can't you tell me anything else about him?

That's all, so far as I know.

Lord, Lord! He has done anything but light my life with his lantern jaws! (in another tragic flight)

Oh, I can't endure it! My mind's made up, I'll hence into exile! (pauses) But let me consider what country I had best choose—Megara . . . Eretria . . . Corinth . . . Chalcis . . . Crete . . . Cyprus . . . Sicyon . . . Cnidus . . . Zacynthus . . . Lesbos . . . Boeotia!

What makes you think of taking such a step as that?

Ah, because I suffer so from love!

But see here! When you reach the place you're about to go to, suppose love happens to overtake you there, and you still can't gratify it, will you then proceed to fly that place, too, and the next place as well, if the same thing happens again? Really now, what end will there be to your exile, what finish to your flight? What land or home can you ever call your own? Answer me that. Look now, if you leave this city, do you think you'll leave your love behind you here? If you're

You have talked in vain. This is my fixed intention. I shall go home to pay my respects to my father and mother, and then without my father's knowledge I shall flee this country, or (darkly) settle upon some plan!

[EXIT PRECIPITATELY INTO HOUSE.]

Yes, yes, let me have this laurel branch. (taking it) You go on in.

RE-ENTER Syra IN CONSTERNATION.

Oh, Lord, help us, Lord pity us! Oh, oh, this is terrible!

For heaven's sake, are you in your senses? What are you shrieking about?

Oh, Dorippa, my poor Dorippa!

For heaven's sake, what are you howling about?

There's some strange woman in the house here, ma'am!

e 2. ENTER Lysimachus, OUT OF TEMPER.

Isn't it bad enough for Demipho to be in love, without his being so extravagant, to boot? Why, if he'd invited a dozen dignitaries to dinner, the food he bought would be excessive. But the way he kept exhorting the cooks, just as a coxswain does his crew! I hired a cook myself. (looking about) But I wonder why he doesn't come, as I told him. e 3. ENTER Dorippa MUCH AGITATED.

Oh, there'll never be, never was, a more wretched woman than I am, to be married to such a man! Oh, dear me, dear me! Just see to what a husband you may entrust yourself and all you own! Just see to what a man I brought two thousand pounds in dowry, only to witness such sights, to suffer such insults!

(aside) Ye gods, I'm in for it! My wife's back from the farm already! I'll bet she saw that girl in the house! But I can't catch what she says from here. I'll get closer. (does so)

MERCATOR

(aside) Oh Lord! I'm the one that's lost and lost for good, confound it! She has seen her. May all the powers above consume you, Demipho!

Yes, indeed! This is the reason why my husband didn't want to go to the farm.

(aside) What can I do now but step up and speak to her? (approaching and addressing her with playful courtliness) Greetings from your husband to his wife, my dear! Have our rustics become city folk?

(hotly) They act with more decency than those who have not become rustics.

Our own rustics haven't misbehaved, have they? Less than our city folk, mercy me, yes! And they do much less looking for trouble!

Well, well, but how have the city folk misbehaved? Tell me. By Jove, I'm eager to know.

You're simply sounding me, and you know it. (viciously) Whose woman is that inside there?

(tentatively) You . . . saw her, eh?

I did.

And you . . . ask whose she is?

(turning away indignantly) I shall discover, just the same!

You want me to . . . say whose she is? She . . . by Jove, she . . . (aside) Damnation! I don't know what to say!

You're stuck!

(aside) I never saw a man more so!

Well, why don't you say?

Well, if I only had a chance—

You should have said it already.

(desperate) I can't, the way you keep at me; you hound me as if I were guilty!

(ironically) Oh, of course, you're not guilty!

You can say that with absolute assurance.

You say, then.

I will say.

But say it as it should be said, though.

She is . . . do you want her name, too?

What trifling! I've caught you red-handed in your guilt!

What guilt? Really now, that girl is . . . the girl that—

What girl?

The girl . . .

Whose girl?

(badly flustered) Now— (on a new tack) if it weren't necessary, I shouldn't tell you at present.

You don't know who the girl is?

(suddenly illumined) Oh yes, now I know: I was made an arbitrator in her case.

An arbitrator? (drily) Now I know, too: so you've summoned her for a conference with you.

No, no, it's this way—she was left with me for safe-keeping.

(witheringly) I understand!

I swear it's nothing of that sort at all!

You absolve yourself too soon.

(aside) This is more than I can manage! I am stuck, to be sure!

e 4. ENTER A COOK, HIS ASSISTANTS FOLLOWING AT A DISTANCE AND STAGGERING UNDER BASKETS OF PROVISIONS.

(calling to assistants) Come, step along, stir yourselves! I've got to get up a dinner for an old gallant. On second thoughts, though, it's to be got up for ourselves, not for the chap that hired us. For if a lover has the girl he loves, he has his food—looking, caressing, kissing, chatting.

(seeing them) Damnation! Will you look at that! Here's the cook!

(cheerfully) We've got here, sir.

(in a low tone) Get out!

What? Get out?

Sh-h! Get out!

Get out?

Get out!

You're not to have a dinner?

We've had our fill already.

But—

Oh, this is dreadful!

See here, sir! Is all this (indicating provisions) brought you, too, by order of the parties you were made arbitrator for?

(to Lysimachus) Is this your lady friend you told me you were in love with, a while ago when you were marketing?

(in agony) Shut up, can't you? (Dorippa comes closer)

A rather well-made wench, too! (confidentially)

But, my word, she is annuating!

Get to the devil out of here, will you?

(soothingly) She's not bad.

But you are!

By gad, I'll bet she makes a fine bedfellow!

Oh, won't you get out? I'm not the man that hired you a while ago!

Eh? What? None of that! By gad, you're the one, all right.

I? I said that to you?

Yes, to me, by gad.

(to Dorippa, solemnly) So help me Heaven, my dear, I never said any such thing!

(icily) You really deny it? It's perfectly plain that you do hate me.

I deny it, I tell you!

(to Dorippa in apparent guilelessness) No, no, ma'am, he didn't say he hated you, but his wife; and he said she was in the country.

(desperately) This lady is my wife. What makes you pester me?

Because you deny knowing me—but perhaps you're afraid of her.

(to Dorippa, placatingly) Which is wise of me, for she's my one and only.

D'ye want to try me?

(angrily) I do not!

Give me my pay.

Come for it to-morrow; you'll get it. And now get out!

(in tears) Oh dear me, dear me!

(aside) I'm proving the truth of that old proverb now: "A bad neighbour brings bad luck."

(to attendants) Why stand here? Come on, let's go.

(to Lysimachus, sweetly) If any harm has happened, it's no fault of mine.

(forlorn) Oh, damn it, man, you're eradicating me!

That most winsome father of yours has introduced his mistress into the house.

(amazed) How's that?

On arriving from the country your mother discovered her at home.

Good heavens! I never supposed my father was that sort? Is the woman still inside?

She is.

(hurrying to the door) Come along!

[EXIT INTO HOUSE.]

6.

My, my! Women do live under hard conditions, so much more unfair, poor things, than the men's. Why, if a husband has brought home some strumpet, unbeknown to his wife, and she finds it out, the husband goes scot free. But once a wife steps out of the house unbeknown to her husband, he has his grounds and she's divorced. Oh, I wish there was the same rule for the husband as for the wife! Now a wife, a good wife, is content with just her husband; why should a husband be less content with just his wife? Mercy me, if husbands, too, were taken to task for wenching on the sly, the same way as wanton wives are divorced, I warrant there'd be more lone men about than there now are women!

But what if my mind's in turmoil?

- t. I saw her, myself.
ar. Who took her to your people?
t. A very unfair question! What does it matter to you who came with her?
ar. Provided she's there! (anxiously) You're telling the truth?
t. Charinus, you haven't the vestige of a sense of shame. Of course she's there.
ar. Then in return for this news, ask for anything you like!
t. What if I do ask for it?
ar. (laughing hysterically) Well, pray God you'll get it!
t. (tolerantly) Wag!
ar. Only let me set eyes on her, and all's well! But I must get out of this rig! (shouting at his door) Hey, someone! Come out here, quick, and bring me a mantle! (strips off his travelling coat) There! Now you suit me.

ENTER A SLAVE WITH MANTLE.

- ar. Just in time, my lad! Here, catch this coat (passing it over with his sword and luggage, and putting on the mantle) and stay right where you are, so that (glaring at Eutyclus and relapsing into melodrama) if this news be false, I may continue and complete the journey I had begun!
t. You don't believe me?
ar. (suspiciously) I believe all you tell me, oh, of course. But why don't you take me in to see her?
t. (embarrassed) Do wait a little while.
ar. Why wait?
t. This isn't the right moment to go in.
ar. You're killing me!
t. It's not advisable for you to go in just now, I tell you.

MERCATOR

For what reason? Answer me!

There's no time for it.

Why?

Because it's not convenient for her.

(indignant) So? Not convenient for her—the girl that loves me, the girl that I love, too?

(pauses, then wildly, with a sly glance at Eutychnus)

A pretty dance this fellow leads me! The more fool I, to trust him! (turning to the slave) He delays me! I'll on with my cloak again! (removes his mantle).

Do wait a minute and listen to me!

Here, boy, kindly take this mantle! (passes it over and dons his travelling cloak)

My mother's in a terrible rage at my father for having brought a wench into the house right before her face, while she was in the country. She suspects her of being his mistress.

(taking articles from slave, one by one) Ah, my belt! (puts it on).

And she's investigating the matter inside there now.

(growing wilder) Now I have my sword in hand!

(alarmed) You see, if I should take you in—

Aha! My flask! And now I go! (strides away)

(running after him) Wait, Charinus, wait!

You miscalculate, you cannot deceive me!

Good heavens, no! Nor do I want to!

Then why dost not permit me to continue on my journey?

(clutching him) I won't permit you!

I delay myself! (to slave) You, boy! Inside with you, quick, be off! [EXIT Slave.

(tearing himself away, apparently frenzied) Now have I mounted my car! Now have I reins in hand!

(distracted) You're mad!

Feet, why fling ye not yourselves straight on the course for Cyprus, forasmuch as my father doth doom me to exile?

You foolish fellow! For merey's sake, don't talk like that!

I will! I'll carry on! I'll undertake the task of tracing her, where'er she be!

But she's at home!

For what this man hath said is but a lie!

I've told you the truth, really I have!

Now am I come to Cyprus!

(succumbing in his alarm for Charinus's sanity and going towards his door) Come on, follow me, and see the girl you're after!

(hiding a smile) I have asked for her, but found her not!

I'll disregard my mother's anger now!

I'll pursue my search still further! Now have I reached Chalcis! There I see a host of mine from Zacynthus; I tell him what has brought me thither, and inquire if he has heard it rumoured who carried her there and who possesses her.

(at his door) Why don't you drop that nonsense and step inside with me?

My host replies that at Zacynthus they grow figs, not bad ones.

That's no lie.

But as for my sweetheart, he affirms that rumours reached him that she is (winking covertly at the audience) here in Athens!

That Zacynthian is a perfect Calehas.<sup>1</sup>

What's the matter?

(to his father, officially) Your wife, sir, is now placid and placated. Your hands, sirs, at once! (seizes them)

Heaven be praised!

(to Demipho) To you, sir, I announce that you have no mistress.

(with a start) Heaven curse you! Tell me what the devil you mean by that!

I'll speak out, sirs. Attention, then, the two of you!

Yes, yes, we're both at your service!

(magisterially) When men of good birth are of an evil bent, though intelligent by birth, they nullify their birth by their bent, and have only themselves to blame for it.

That's true, what he says.

Well, you're the man he says it to.

(to Demipho) This makes it all the more true. Why, the impropriety in a man of your age to seize his son's sweetheart, when he's young, and loves her, and had bought her with his own money!

What's that? She the sweetheart of Charinus?

(to his father) How the villain dissembles!

Nor is anyone hereafter to prevent his youthful son from having love affairs and mistresses, within due bounds. Such prevention shall cost him more privily than would open provision of the funds required. And furthermore, old men are to be subject to this law from this night on.

Fare ye well. And hark ye, young men, if this law please you, for the old men's sake, I swear, you should applaud us roundly. [EXEUNT OMNES.

ARGUMENT OF THE PLAY (I)

A soldier carries off a courtesan from Athens to Ephesus. Her lover's servant, intending to bring this news to his master, who is abroad on an embassy, is himself captured at sea and given as a gift to that same soldier. Having summoned his master from Athens, he secretly opens a passage in the party wall of the two houses so that the lovers may be allowed to meet. The girl's guard sees them as he is roaming over the roof. But he is hoaxed and humbugged into believing her to be another girl. Palaestrio also induces the soldier to give up his mistress on the score that the wife of the old gentleman next door yearns to marry him. The soldier begs the girl to leave him voluntarily, and lavishes presents on her. Then he himself is caught in the old gentleman's house and comes in for punishment as an adulterer.

ARGUMENT OF THE PLAY (II)

A young Athenian and a free-born courtesan were madly in love with each other; but he left home on an embassy to Naupactus. A soldier falls in with the girl, and against her will carries her off to Ephesus. The Athenian's servant sets sail to inform his master of this fact; he is captured, however, and as a captive is presented to that same soldier. He writes to his master to Scene:—Ephesus. A street in which are the adjoining houses of Pyrgopolynices and Periplectomenus.

ACT I

ENTER Pyrgopolynices FROM HIS HOUSE, ATTENDED BY Artotrogus AND ORDERLIES, THE LATTER CARRYING A TREMENDOUS SHIELD.

Pyrgopolynices (to orderlies, as he struts back and forth, Artotrogus mimicking him at his heels) Mind ye make my buckler's sheen outshine the wonted radiance of the sun in cloudless sky, that, when 'tis needed in the fray, its rays may dazzle the array of foes that face me. (contemplating his sword) Verily would I comfort this blade of mine, lest he lament and pine at lingering idle by my side so long, when he doth long, poor lad, to slash to shreds our foemen. (halting) But whereabouts here is Artotrogus?

Artotrogus (popping out from behind, with a covert wink at the orderlies) Here, sir, beside our hero bold and blest and of princely bearing! While as a warrior—Mars would not presume to call himself your peer, or match his powers with yours.

(sublimely reminiscent) Who was the wight I succoured at Weevil Field, where the commander in chief was Battleboonski Mightimercenarimuddlekin, the grandson of Neptune?

I remember, sir. Of course you mean that one with the golden armour whose legions you puffed away with a breath, much as the wind does with leaves, or a thatch roof?

Oh, a mere nothing, that, really!

(turning, expecting to find Artotrogus at his heels) Where are you?

(hopping over behind him) Here, sir! And that elephant in India, for instance! My word, sir! How your fist did smash his forearm to flinders!

Eh? Arm?

His foreleg, I should say, sir.

'Twas but a careless tap.

Lord, yes, sir! If you had really made an effort, your arm would have clean transperforated the beast, hide, flesh, bone, and all.

Enough now of these trifles.

Bless your soul, sir, it really isn't worth while to recount your daring deeds to me who know of them. (to audience, as Pyrgopolynices resumes his parade) It's my belly brings all these afflictions on me—I must 'ear him through with my ears, or my teeth will have nothing to teethe on. I've got to agree to any lie he tells.

Aha, sir! I know what it was already! By Jove, sir, so you did! I remember you did!

Did what?

It behooves me to study and understand your ways, sir, and to take care to scent your wishes before you speak.

(with clearly assumed indifference) So you remember, eh?

Indeed I do, sir. (calculating) One hundred and fifty in Cilicia . . . . a hundred in . . . . Jugotheevia . . . . thirty Sardians . . . . sixty Macedonians—that's the list of the men you slew in a single day, sir.

The sum total being what?

Seven thousand, sir.

(reflecting) Yes, it should come to that. Your computation is correct.

I have none of it written down, either, sir. Even so, I remember, just the same.

Upon my soul, you have a splendid memory.

(aside) Victuals jog it.

Provided you conduct yourself as hitherto, you shall eat incessantly, and always share my table with me.

(reinvigorated) And how about that time in Cappadocia, sir, when you would have slain five hundred men all at one stroke, if your sword had not been dull?

Ah, well, they were but beggarly infantry fellows, so I let them live.

Why should I tell you, sir, what the whole world knows—that you are the one and only Pyrgopolynices on earth, peerless in valour, in aspect, and in doughty deeds? All the women love you, sir, and you can't blame them, when you're so handsome. Those girls, for instance, that caught me from behind by the cloak, only yesterday.

(with laborious unconcern) What did they say to you?

They kept asking about you, sir. "Is he Achilles?" says one of 'em. "No, his brother," says I. "Goodness gracious! That's why he's such a fine, handsome gentleman," says the other one. "Just see what lovely hair he has. My! but the girls that cuddle him are lucky!"

(giving his cloak a rakish hitch) So they really said that, eh?

Well, sir, didn't the both of them implore me to lead you past there to-day, just as if you were a parade?

(trying to yawn) It really is such an affliction to be so handsome.

Yes, indeed, sir. The women are a nuisance, with their teasing, soliciting, exsupplicating me to let 'em see you, and sending for me so much that I can't attend to your affairs, sir.

(with an effort) Well, it seems to be time for us to go to the forum, so that I may pay the recruits whom I enlisted here yesterday. King Seleucus, you know, begged me most urgently to raise and enrol recruits for him. I have determined to devote this day to obliging the king.

Come, then, sir, let us be going.

he who does not care to listen may arise and leave, so that there may be a seat for him who does. (pauses, with a glare ready for fugitives) Now as to the reason for your assembling in this place of mirth, I shall acquaint you with the plot and name of the comedy we are about to act. The Greek name of this comedy is Alazon, a word which we translate as Braggart. This town is Ephesus. That soldier who left here for the forum is my master, a bragging, brazen, stercoraceous fellow, full of lies and lechery. He says that all the women insist on running after him. The fact is, wherever he struts, he is the laughing-stock of them all. Why, the harlots here make such faces at him, that most of them, you can see, have bowlegged lips. (tries to laugh contagiously)

Now I have not been serving long in his service, myself; and I want you to know how I came to be his servant and left my former service. Attention, please, for now I begin with the plot.

I had a master at Athens, a splendid young gentleman. He was madly in love with a courtesan in Athens, Athens in Attica, and she with him—which is the sweetest kind of love affair to have. Now he was sent as a public commissioner to Naupactus on a matter of public importance. This soldier, meanwhile, chancing to come to Athens, wormed his way into an acquaintance with that mistress of my master, and began to wheedle her mother with his wine and gewgaws and costly catering, till he got to be on very good terms with the old bawd there. But the moment his chance came our soldier played a game on the bawd—the mother of the girl my master loved —by spiriting away her daughter, clapping her aboard ship, and carrying her off to Ephesus here against her will.

As for me, when I learned my master's mistress had been carried away from Athens, I got me a ship as fast as I knew how, and embarked to take the news to my master at Naupactus. Once out at sea, the gods saw fit for pirates to capture the ship that carried me. There I was, dished, before I had reached the master I was bound for!

My captor made this soldier a present of me. On being taken to his house by him, whom did I see but that sweetheart of master's who had been at Athens! When she spied me in front of her, she signalled me with her eyes not to speak her name; and then, when a chance came, she told me how unhappy she was, saying she longed to escape from this house to Athens, loving that man who had been my master at Athens as she did, and loathing no one worse than that soldier.

When I perceived how she felt, I got some tablets, sealed a letter, and gave it on the sly to a certain merchant to carry to that master of mine who had lived at Athens and loved her, so as to get him here. The message was not disregarded by him, for here he is, and in this house next door, too, (pointing) stopping with a friend of his father's, a delightful old gentleman, who is seconding his guest in his love affair and giving us every encouragement and help in word and deed. In consequence, I have got up a splendid scheme inside here for letting the lovers meet and be together. You see the soldier gave his girl one room in which no one but herself was to set foot, and I dug a hole through the wall of this room, so providing a secret passage for her from this house (pointing) into that one. And this with the old gentleman's knowledge—in fact, at his suggestion.

Now, the fellow-servant of mine that the soldier set on guard over the girl is no good at all. What with our clever hocus-pocus and canny flimflam, we shall throw dust in his eyes and make him fail to see what he does see. And just to keep you from confusion later on, this girl (pointing to the soldier's house) will soon take the parts of two girls, appearing as one from this house, and one from (pointing to the house of Periplectomenus) that—the same girl, mind you, but pretending to be another one. That is how her guard will be made game of. (listening and looking) But I hear a noise at our old neighbour's door! He is coming out, himself. (to audience) This is that delightful old gentleman I was speaking of. (steps aside)

SCENE 2.      ENTER Periplectomenus FROM HIS HOUSE.

Periplectomenus (to slaves within) By the Lord, if after this you don't break the legs of every outsider you see on our roof, I'll make rawhide of your ribs! The idea of my neighbours witnessing what goes on in my house by looking in through the skylight in that way! Now mark my words, all of you! Whoever you see from that soldier's house on our roof, with the one exception of Palaestrio, pitch him off into the street! And as for his saying he's chasing a hen, or a dove, or a monkey—you're dead men, if you don't cudgel him till he's a corpse. And furthermore, just to keep them from breaking the Dicing Act, see to it that when they give a party there's not a set of bones amongst 'em!

(seeing him) Isn't that Palaestrio coming towards me?

How goes it, Periplectomenus, sir?

There aren't many men I had rather see and meet now than you, if I had my choice.

What's the matter? What are you squabbling with our people for, sir?

We're done for!

What's the trouble?

It's all out.

What's all out?

Someone or other from your house just now looked in from the roof through our skylight and saw Philocomasium and my guest inside here kissing each other.

Who was it saw them?

A fellow-servant of yours.

Who was he?

I don't know. He darted off like a shot, all of a sudden.

(dryly) Methinks I am done for!

I yelled at him as he went. "Hey!" says I, "What are you doing on the roof?" "Chasing a monkey," says he, and disappears.

It's damned hard luck to see myself done for all on account of a worthless beast! But Philocomasium—is she still here? (pointing to Periplectomenus's house)

She was when I came out.

Please go tell her to go over to our house, sir, as fast as she can, so that folks there can see that she's at home—that is, unless she wants her love affair to cause all us slaves to be made Companions of the Cross.

Consider her told. Anything else before I go?

Yes, sir. Tell her this—she must be sure not to depart one inch from women's ways, but abide strictly by their tactics and training.

How do you mean?

So as to persuade the servant that saw her he didn't see her. No matter if she were seen here a hundred times, she must deny it just the same. She's cheeky and glib and crooked, with plenty of shrewdness and nerve; she's full of intrepidity, indomitability, fraudulency. If anyone accuses her, she's to turn on him and out-swear him. She's stocked with smooth talk, smooth tricks, and smooth oaths, stocked with wiles, stocked with wheedling ways, stocked with humbug. I tell you, sir, a woman never applies to a costermonger, if she's full of the devil; she has her own stock of garden stuff, and all the sauces, for dishing up every kind of deviltry.

I'll take this message to her, if she is here. (seeing Palaestrio is lost in meditation) But what are you communing with yourself about, Palaestrio?

Keep still a moment, sir, while I call my wits to council and confer as to what to do and how to take my turn at tricking that tricky fellow servant of mine that saw her kissing here, so as to make what was seen unseen.

Think it out. I'll step over here in the meanwhile. (moves away and amusedly watches Palaestrio at his gesticulations) Just look at him, how he stands there with bent brow, considering and cogitating. He's tapping his chest with his fingers. Intends to summon forth his intelligence, I suppose. Aha! Turns away! Rests his left hand on his left thigh, and reckons on the fingers of his right hand. Gives his right thigh a smack! A lusty whack—his plan of action is having a hard birth. Snaps his fingers! He's in distress. Constantly changes his position! Look there, though; he's shaking his head—that idea won't do! He won't take it out half baked, whatever it is, but give it to us done to a turn. Look, though! (as Palaestrio rests his chin on his hand) He's building—supporting his chin with a pillar. None of that! I don't fancy that sort of building, not for a minute. For I happen to have heard that a foreign poet<sup>1</sup> has a pillared face and a couple of custodians<sup>2</sup> always lying on him hour after hour. (as Palaestrio takes a new attitude) Glorious! A graceful pose, indeed! Just like the slaves in the comedies! Never will he rest this day till what he wants is all worked out. (Palaestrio suddenly seems illumined) He's got it, I do believe! (aloud, impatiently, as Palaestrio's light seems to fail) If you're going to do anything, do it! Wake up, don't settle down to a snooze—that is, unless you prefer to stand watch here pummeled to a piece of patchwork. I say, you! You didn't get drunk yesterday, did you? Hey! (still preoccupied) I hear, sir.

Don't you see that the enemy are upon you and endangering your rear? Lay your plans!<sup>1</sup> Get hold of help and support to meet the crisis. This is a time for doing, not dreaming! Steal a march on them in some way, or encircle 'em with your army somehow. Aid our men, and ambuscade our foemen! Cut off the enemy's supplies, secure your line of march so that stores and supplies can come to you and your troops in safety. Act! Quick action's called for! Just you say you'll take charge of operations yourself, and I'm confident we can overthrow our foes.

(sublimely) I do say so. I do take charge.

(clapping him on the back) And I say you will obtain what you want.

And you, sir, may God bless you!

Won't you impart your scheme to me?

(magnificent) Silence, sir, while I conduct you into the purlieus of my machinations, that you may know my plans as well as I.

You shall have them back from me intact.

Now, sir, my master is circumcompassed with an elephant's hide, not a human being's, and he has no more sense than a stone.

I know that, myself.

Now this is the way I'll work it, sir; here's the machination I'll set agoing. I'll say that Philocomasium's own twin sister has arrived from Athens with some lover of hers, and that she and Philocomasium are as much alike as two drops of milk. I'll say they're being entertained at your house here.

Fine! Fine! Glorious! That's a great idea!

So if that fellow servant of mine goes to the soldier charging her with the fact that he saw her kissing a stranger here (indicating Periplectomenus's house) I'll rebut him, claiming that the fellow saw this sister at your house hugging and kissing her own lover.

Wonderful, wonderful And I'll tell the same story, in case the soldier questions me.

But tell him they're absolutely alike, sir. And Philocomasium must be warned, so that she'll know about this and not make any slip, in case the soldier questions her.

A very shrewd scheme, indeed! But if the soldier wants to see them both together, what then?

That's easy, sir. Hundreds of excuses can be evolved:—"She's not at home . . . she's out for a walk . . . she's asleep . . . dressing . . . bathing . . . dining . . . at a party . . . she's busy . . . not at leisure . . . it's impossible." You can put him off in any number of ways, so long as we get him started right—believing the lies we tell him.

Yes, that sounds good.

Go in, then, sir, and if the girl's there, bid her go over home at once. And tell her about this, inform and instruct her fully, so that she'll understand this plan we're setting on foot, about her twin sister.

I'll give you a girl who's coached and coached completely. Anything else?

Just that you go in, sir.

I am going.

[EXIT.]

And I'll go home, too, and do the old gentleman a good turn, surreptitiously, by tracking down that fellow servant of mine who chased the monkey to-day. For he couldn't have helped talking and letting someone of the household share his news about master's mistress, how he saw her and a strange young fellow kissing each other here next door. I know their way—"Why, I just can't keep a secret all to myself." If I find the chap that saw her, I'll at him with mantlet and siege-shed. I'm ready for action, determined to take him by storm and assault. If I don't discover him in that way, I'll go sniffing about like a hound till I've followed the fox up by his track. (listening) But our door creaked! I must lower my voice. (Sceledrus appears in the doorway) Aha! It's my fellow servant, Philocomasium's guard, that's coming out. (steps back)

e 3. ENTER Sceledrus, WORRIED AND PERPLEXED.

Now if I wasn't walking on the roof in my sleep to-day, I'm positive, positive, by gad, that I did see master's mistress, Philocomasium, next door here looking for trouble!

(in a low tone) He's the chap that saw her kissing, from what I heard him say!

(hearing a voice) Who's that?

(advancing) Your fellow servant. How goes it, Sceledrus?

Oh, Palaestrio, I'm awfully glad to meet you!

How is that? What is the matter? Let me know.
(looking about cautiously) I'm afraid——

Afraid of what?

Oh Lord! That all sorts of trouble and torture are what every one of us slaves here is in for to-day!

(coldly) In by yourself, then! No such innings or outings for me!

I daresay you don't know about the horrible, unheard of thing that has happened at our house.

What is this horrible thing?

It's shameless!

You keep your knowledge quite to yourself; don't tell me; I do not want to know.

Well, I won't let you not know. I chased our monkey to-day on their roof. (*pointing to Peria worthless beast!

You be damned!

I just happened to happen to look down through the skylight into the house next door here, and there I spied Philocomasium and some young fellow, I don't know who, kissing each other.

(horriified) Seeledrus! What scandalous tale is this?

I certainly did see her.

You yourself?

I myself, with these two eyes of mine.

Oh, get out! A likely story! You saw no such

THE BRAGGART WARRIOR

Enough of your threatening! I know the cross will be my tomb. There's where my ancestors rest—father, grandfather, great-grandfather, and great-great-grandfather. These eyes can't be dug out for me by any threats of yours. But I want a few words with you, Palaestrio. (draws him aside) For the Lord's sake, where did she come from?

Where else but from home?

From home?

(solicitous) You can see me?

(curtly) Yes, I can see you. (pondering) It's awfully queer how she could cross from here to here; for we certainly have no balcony, and no garden, and no window that isn't grated. (to Philocomasium) I certainly did see you inside here. Still at it, you scoundrel? You persist in accusing her?

(in ingenuous wonderment) Goodness me! Then that dream I dreamt last night has come true for me!

What did you dream, ma'am.

I'll tell you all about it. But both of you be attentive, please. Well, last night in my sleep my own twin sister seemed to have come from Athens to Ephesus with a certain lover of hers; they both seemed to have come on a visit, stopping in this house next door.

(aside) Thus dreamed Palaestrio. (aloud, excitedly) Go on, go on!

I seemed glad to have my sister come, but owing to her I seemed to be subjected to a perfectly dreadful suspicion. For in my dream, it seemed that my own servant charged me, me, just as (to Sceledrus, resentfully) you are doing, with having kissed some strange young man, when it was that twin sister of mine kissing her own lover. This was my dream—that I was falsely accused, wrongfully.

(much impressed) So on waking, the same things befel you that you speak of dreaming about, ma'am? Well, well, by Jove! What a pat dream! In with you, ma'am, and pray! I would suggest, ma'am, that you tell the soldier about this.

(emphatically) Indeed I will; I'll not be falsely accused of shameful conduct and (with a vindictive glance at Sceledrus) let the insult pass unpunished!

[EXIT INTO SOLDIER'S HOUSE.]

(aside, much worried) I'm afraid I've gone and done it, the way my whole back itches.

You realise that you are done for?

(with conviction) Well, now she's at home, for sure.

(wavering) This much is sure—I'm going to watch our door now, wherever she is. (plants himself in front of it)

But upon my soul, Sceledrus, how that dream she dreamed did correspond to your suspicion that you saw her kissing!

I don't know what to believe my own self in, now, for what I . . . believe I saw, I'm . . . thinking now I didn't see.

Gad, man, I fancy you will be too late in coming to! Once this matter reaches master's ears, you are finely finished!

Yes, there must have been a mist over my eyes; at last I realise it.

Lord! That was evident before—she having been inside here all along.

(scratching his head) I can't say anything for sure. I didn't see her, and yet I did.

Man alive! You surely sent us all to smash, almost, by your stupidity. Your wanting to show yourself master's faithful servant has almost been your ruination. (listening) But our neighbour's door creaked! No more now!

5. ENTER Philocomasium FROM Periplectomenus's HOUSE.

(in an artificial voice, to servant within) Put fire upon the altar that I may give glad praise and thanks to Ephesian Diana and offer her the grateful odour of Arabian incense, since she saved me in Neptune's realm and blustering abode where I was so buffeted about by the angry billows.

(who has been listening and staring at her) Palaestrio! Oh, Palaestrio!

(mimicking him) Oh, Sceledrus, Sceledrus! What d'ye want?

This woman (pointing) just coming out from here—is she master's mistress, Philocomasium, or isn't she?

(looking at her, amazed) By Jove, I think so! She seems to be! But it's a marvel how she could pass from here (pointing) to here, if it really is she! You don't doubt her being our girl, surely?

(cautious) She seems to be.

Let's go up and hail her! (advancing) Hey there! What does this mean, Philocomasium? What right have you in that house? What's your business there? What are you silent for? I'm talking to you.

(kanging back) Gad, no! To yourself; for she makes no reply.

(glaring at her) It's you I'm talking to, you shameless slut, roaming about amongst our neighbours.

To you—who else?

And who are you, sir, or what is your business with me?

You ask me who I am?

Why should I not ask what I do not know?

Who am I, then, if you don't recognize him?

(surveying him frigidly) An annoyance to me, sir, whoever you are—you and he, both.

You don't know us?

Neither of you. (walks away)

(to Palaestrio aside, nervously) I'm frightfully afraid——

Afraid of what?

Why, that we've lost our identity somewhere; for this woman says she doesn't know you, or me, either.

(earnestly) Sceledrus, I want to investigate here and now whether we are ourselves or other people.

Why, maybe some neighbour has transformed us meanwhile without our knowing it.

(after cogitation) I am certainly myself, anyhow.

(looking himself over) And so am I, by Jove! (to Philocomasium, severely) Madam, you're looking for trouble!

(she pays no attention) I say, you! Hey! Philocomasium!

(indignant) Sir, what sort of fit have you got, to address me so absurdly by a coined name?

(open-mouthed) Eh? Eh? What is your name, then?

I?

Yes, you.

When I arrived at Ephesus from Athens just last evening with the Athenian gentleman who loves me?

(more respectful) Tell me this, ma'am—what are you doing here in Ephesus?

I heard it rumoured that my own twin sister was here, and I came to look for her.

You're a bad one!

(disdainfully) Oh, no, merely a very silly one, goodness me, yes! to be chattering with you two!

(turns away) I am going.

(seizing her) I won't let you go!

(struggling) Let me loose!

You're caught in the act! I won't let you loose!

Well, my hands and your face will soon smack, unless you do let me loose! (slaps him)

(to Palaestrio, angrily) What the devil are you standing by for? Why don't you grab her on the other side?

(narily) I have no desire to get my back into difficulties. How do I know but that she is not Philocomasium, and only someone else that looks like her?

Will you let me loose, or not?

No! And unless you go home willingly, I'll use force and drag you home despite you, willy nilly! This (indicating Periplectomenus's house) is my home while I am abroad here; and my real home is at Athens in Attica. As for that home of yours, I want nothing to do with it, and with you men I have not the slightest acquaintance.

(releasing her) There! Loose you are!

(darting into Periplectomenus's door) Well, now that I am let go, I'm—going! (slams the door)

(bitterly) Kept her word like a woman!

You let your prize slip through your fingers, Sceledrus! She is our master's girl, sure as can be. (reflecting, then ferociously) D'ye want to handle this like a man of spirit?

(cautiously) What shall I do?

(more ferocious) Go in here and get me a sabre!

What'll you do with it?

(beside himself) I'll burst headlong into the house! And whomsoever here within I see Philcomasium kissing, I'll slay him on the spot!

(dubious) So you think it was she?

Think? No, by heaven! 'Twas plainly she!

But how she did pretend!

Be off! Bring me a sabre!

[EXIT INTO Pyrgopolynices's HOUSE.]

(chuckling) There's certainly no one, cavalry or infantry, audacious enough to do a thing as coolly as a woman does it. The skilful way she did get off the lines of both parts! And my fellow servant, that wary watchman—the ass she made of him! Oh, it's glorious—that passage perforating the wall!

RE-ENTER Sceledrus, WITH MIXED EMOTIONS.

At home, indeed!

Lying on her couch!

Good Lord! You surely have made a mess for yourself, from what you tell me.

How so?

By daring to lay hands on the lady from next door here.

(glum) Oh Lord! I'm awfully afraid I have!

But no one can ever make her anything but our girl's twin sister. Yes, by gad, it was her you saw kissing here.

You're right, it's clear enough she was the one.

Oh! wasn't I within an inch of being done for, if I'd told master?

(very coldly) Well then, if you are wise, you will keep mum. A servant ought to know more than he tells. I am going to leave you, so as not to be at all mixed up in your manœuvres, and drop in at our neighbour's here. This muddle of yours likes me not. (coldly) Why do you beseech me?

To pardon my senselessness and stupidity, sir. Now at last I realize I've been a blind, brainless blockhead. Why, there's Philocomasium inside, sir!

Well now, you gallowsbird? You have seen 'em both, eh?

Yes, sir.

(sternly) You will please produce your master.

I admit I deserve an awful thrashing, sir, indeed I do, and acknowledge that I did your lady guest an injury; but I mistook her for master's mistress who was put in my charge, sir, by my master, the soldier. For, sir, you couldn't draw two drops of water from the same well more like each other than she's like that guest of yours, sir. ## THE BRAGGART WARRIOR

Yes, sir—why should I deny what I saw?—but I thought it was Philocomasium I saw.

(his indignation rising again) So rating me as the lowest rascal living, then, if I knowingly allowed my neighbour to receive such an infamous injury in my own house?

Now at last I do think I've acted like an idiot, sir, now that I understand the matter; but just the same, sir, I didn't do it maliciously.

No, presumptuously! For a beggarly slave ought to have his eyes, and hands, and tongue, too, under control.

(ferrently) Oh, sir, if after to-day I ever breathe a word, even of what I myself know for certain, have me tortured! I'll give myself up to you. Now do please pardon me this time.

(reluctantly) I shall constrain myself to believe that you did not do this maliciously. You are pardoned.

Oh, the Lord love you, sir!

(still stern) And as for you, by heaven, if the Lord is to love you, you will certainly hold your tongue in the future, and not know even what you do know, or see what you do see.

That's good advice, sir, and I intend to follow it.

(worried by Periplectomenus's sternness) But have I begged your pardon enough, sir?

(gruffly) Off with you!

(solicitously) There's nothing else you want with me now, sir?

(turning away) Yes—no further acquaintance.

(aside, sourly) He was bluffing me. How nice and kind of him to give up being angry with me! I know what he's up to: the minute the soldier comes home from the forum, I'm to be nabbed at

No indeed, I'll flit somewhere now and lie low for a few days while this storm dies down and their wrath subsides. For I've earned enough punishment to do for a whole godless nation.<sup>1</sup> [EXIT. (looking after him) He has decamped. (laughing) Bless my soul! I'm positive that a stuck pig often has much better brains than that fellow—to be diddled out of seeing what he did see! Why, his eyes, ears, and ideas have all deserted to our side. So far we have done finely. The way that wench romped through her part! Well, I'll return to the senate chamber, Palaestrio now being at my house, while Sceledrus is now away. Now is our chance for a full session. I'll go in, so that by reason of my absence, the second member may not miss the drawing for appointments.<sup>2</sup> [EXIT INTO HIS HOUSE.

ACT III

ENTER Palaestrio FROM THE HOUSE OF
Periplectomenus.

(very importantly to Pleusicles within) You folks stay inside for a few moments more, Pleusicles, and let me reconnoitre first, so as to prevent any ambuscade of the council we want to hold. For we need a safe place now, where no enemy can appropriate our plans. A well-laid plan is ill-laid, if it helps your enemies, and if it does help (aside) But I'll spy about and see there's no one here, or at the left or right, to pursue our plans with long-eared nets. It couldn't be better adapted to our purpose.

No, but—but what do you think, Pleusicles?

Can I be dissatisfied with what satisfies you two? Who's more a man after my own heart than you are?

Very pleasant and becoming remarks, sir.

(smiling at Pleusicles) The kind he ought to make, by Jove! ✓

(to Periplectomenus, apologetically) But, sir, this matter does make me awfully miserable; it's a torture to me, soul and body.

(cheerily) What's a torture to you? Out with it! For me to be throwing on to you, a man of your years, sir, these juvenile concerns so unbecoming you and your noble character ; for me to look to you to help me with all your might, out of regard for me, and to have you aiding me in my-love affair, and doing these things that men of your years more often shun than seek. I'm ashamed, sir, to throw this burden on you in your old age.

A new kind of lover you are, if you're actually ashamed of anything you do ! You are not in love, you're no lover, you're only the shadow of a lover, Pleusicles !

But to harass him, at his age, with my love affair ? (a trifle piqued) How is this ? You take me for a regular old Death's-head, eh ? So I seem to be such coffin contents, eh, to be living such a very long life, do I ? See here, my lad, I'm not over fifty-four, and I'm still keen-sighted, quick-handed, and nimble-footed.

(to Pleusicles, reprovingly) His hair may be white, sir, but not a sign of age does he show in spirit. He keeps precisely the same noble nature he was born with.

That's perfectly true, Palaestrio, and, upon my soul, I'm proving it. Why, his friendliness is as youthful as can be.

(entirely mollified) Ah, well, my dear boy, the more you test me, the more you'll be convinced of my good will toward you in your affair.

What need of conviction when I am convinced, sir ?

I want you to prove it by your own experience, not at second hand. (with a knowing air) For unless a man has been in love himself, he can hardly see inside a lover's heart. Now I, I still have some fervour and freshness in my carcass,

Tactlessness at table is a thing I tax my memory to avoid. I take my fair share of talking, and my share of silence, too, when someone else has the floor. I'm none of your spitting, hawking, sniffing fellows, either, not I. In short, sir, I was born in Ephesus, not in Apulia; I'm no Animulian.<sup>1</sup>

(warming up again) I never make free with another guest's girl at a party, or appropriate the titbits, or grab the loving cup out of turn, or start a quarrel over the wine at a party, not I, never! If anyone there annoys me, I take myself home, cut off the conversation. At table I go in for graciousness, love, and gladsomeness.

God I may say so—I'm a rich man and could have taken a wife of wealth and station; but I have no desire to admit a she-yapper into my house.

Why not, sir? Getting children is a delightful duty, you know.

I'll take oath that getting the joys of freedom is much more delightful.

You, sir, are a man who can give good counsel to another, and to yourself, as well. ✓

Yes, yes, it's all very pleasant to marry a good wife—if there were any spot on earth where you could find one; but am I to bring home a woman who'd never say to me: "Husband mine, do buy me some wool to make a soft, warm cloak for you, and some nice, heavy tunics so that you won't be cold this winter." Nothing like that would you ever hear from a wife, but before cockcrow she'd wake me up with: "Husband mine, give me some money for a present for mother at the Matrons' Festival<sup>1</sup>; give me some money to make preserves; give me some money to give to the sorceress at the festival of Minerva,<sup>2</sup> and to the dream interpreter, and the clairvoyant and the soothsayer. for sending her so little. What? Will you send nothing to the nurse that cares for the slaves born under your own roof?" These ruinous outlays of the women, and a lot more like 'em, keep me from taking a wife to torment me with talk like that.

The gods are kind to you, sir, for, by gad, once you let go of that liberty of yours, you won't readily restore it to its old place.

But it's a praiseworthy thing, sir, for a man of a great family, and of very great wealth, to rear children as a memorial to his family and himself.

Seeing I have plenty of relatives, what do I need of children? As it is, I live comfortably and happily, doing as I like and indulging my inclinations. My property, at my death, goes to my relatives, to be shared amongst 'em.<sup>1</sup> (chuckling) They're at my house before daybreak, asking if I passed a restful night.<sup>2</sup> They offer sacrifice, and give me a larger part of it than they give themselves; they take me to the sacrificial feast; they invite me to their houses to lunch, to dinner; the most depressed man amongst 'em is the one that has sent me least. Why, they're all in an endowment competition—and I murmuring to myself: "It's my property they're gaping for, but it's me they're competing to support and endow."

<sup>1</sup> V. 708: They will be at my house, look after me, come to see how I'm doing, if there's anything I want.

THE BRAGGART WARRIOR

Ah, sir, you know what's what, all right, and how to enjoy life! If you enjoy yourself, why, that's as good as twins or triplets.

Heavens! If I had had children, misery enough they'd have brought me! I should be in torment directly. If my son happened to have a fever, I'd think he was dying; or if he had got drunk and had a fall, or been thrown from his horse somewhere, I'd be afraid it had broken his legs or neck for him. ✓

(to Pleusicles) Here, sir, is a man that merits his money and many a long year of life; he keeps an eye on his property, enjoys himself, and benefits his friends. ✓

A perfectly delightful creature! So help me Heaven, the gods should have provided that we shouldn't all live lives allotted on the same principle. Just as a good market-inspector fixes the price of merchandise—fixing such a price on the good merchandise as to make it sell according to its merits, and paring down the owner's price on the bad according to its demerits—that's the way the gods should have allotted human life. The man of delightful characteristics should be granted a long life, while wicked scoundrels should be made to give up the ghost with despatch. If they had so provided, bad men would be less abundant, and would do their scoundrelly deeds less boldly, and furthermore, for the good man the cost of living would come down.

THE BRAGGART WARRIOR

(in kindly reproof) A man who found fault with the divine scheme of things, and censured the powers above would be a silly ignoramus. Enough now of all this. Now I must do some marketing, guest mine, so as to entertain you in my home as befits us both, courteously, delightfully—and with delightful things to eat. ✓

I have put you to quite enough expense already, sir. Why, no guest can accept the hospitality of a friend like this without becoming an affliction after a three days' stay; but after a ten days' stay he becomes a whole Iliad of afflictions. Even though the master is no unwilling sufferer, the servants grumble.

(genially) I have schooled my servants to do me servant's service, my friend, not to give me orders or keep me under their thumbs. If they dislike what pleases me, I steer my own course—if a task's an "affliction," they must do it, just the same, to the tune of a thrashing, willy nilly. (going) Now for the marketing I mean to do.

Well, if market you must, do be reasonable about it, sir, don't be extravagant; anything is enough for me.

(turning on him amiably) Oh, do dispense with that hackneyed, ancient twaddle, won't you? Really, my friend, now you're falling into the cant of the common run of guests. Why, when they're placed and dinner put on the table, it's the regular thing for them to say: "Host, host! What need of all this extravagance just for us? Good heavens,

(to Pleusicles) By gad, sir, that's just what they do do! What a clever, sagacious philosopher he is!

(gratified) But no matter how high the table is heaped, these same men never say: "Have that dish taken off . . . remove this platter . . . away with the ham, I don't care for any . . . off with that pork . . . this conger eel will be fine, cold—out with it, be off, take it away!" No such sentiments would you hear from a one of 'em, but down they flop, hanging their upper halves over the table, grabbing for food.

(still patient and polite) A good man's description of bad manners, sir!

Oh, I haven't told you a hundredth part of the things I could bring up, if there were time for it.

(grasping his chance) Then the matter in hand—that ought to have our first thought, sir. Now turn your attention here, you two gentlemen. I must have your help, Periplectomenus; for I've hit on a delightful ruse for clipping our long-haired soldier close, and giving our lover here a chance to carry Philocomasium off and keep her for himself.

Let's have that scheme of yours.

Well, sir, let me have that ring of yours. (pointing)

What can you use it for?

When I get it, then you shall hear the scheme I've devised, sir.

That's immaterial, so long as you give me one

Oh, you know—a fine juicy bit, just as delightful

Well, you will see. (to Periplectomenus) But has she a maid?

Yes, and a precious sly one.

(with increasing importance and imperiousness) She is needed, too. Give the wench and her maid these instructions: the mistress is to pretend that she's your wife, and dying for this soldier, and that she gave this ring to her petting of a maid who turned it over to me to give the soldier, I being the go-between in the affair.

(sharply) I hear you. Please do not assume that I am deaf. I have full use of my ears.

(less consequential) I shall give it to him, sir, saying it was sent by your wife and given to me so that I might bring her and him together. This is the sort he is—he'll be crazy for her, poor fool, for adultery is the rascal's leading interest.

(genial again) Why, if you gave old Sol the job of hunting for 'em, he couldn't find two more delightful wenches for this purpose than I can. Rest easy.

See to it, then, sir, but we need them quickly.

With his . . . eyes, I suppose. (turns away)

I'm not asking you that, you villain! Step up here!

(Lucrío obeys) You're a dead man this minute, unless I know the truth! Did you draw wine for him?

I-did . . . not.

You deny it?

Why, of course I . . . deny it, for he . . . forbade me to . . . admit it. And I didn't draw him off eight . . . half-pints into a . . . pitcher, not I, and he didn't . . . drink it off . . . hot for lunch . . . either.

See here! Did he ever draw wine before? Answer me, you villain! And just to give you warning, I tell you this—if you tell any lies, Lucrío, you'll be lying on a cross.

Oh yes! Just to give you a . . . chance to tattle . . . what I told, and . . . after I'm ousted from my . . . storeroom . . . gorging, get another under-butler for . . . yourself, if you get the butler's job.

No I won't, upon my word. Come now, speak out boldly to me.

I never saw . . . him draw any wine, upon my . . . word. But it was . . . this way: he'd give me . . . orders, and then I'd draw it.

That's why the casks there continually kept standing on their heads.

Lord, no! That wasn't why the . . . casks cut such . . . capers. But there was a . . . little spot in the . . . storeroom that was awfully . . . slippery, and there, standing . . . so (illustrating) near the . . . casks, was a . . . two-quart jar, and this jar often . . . filled itself up . . . ten times over. Well, now I understand what the wench has been at: Sceledrus being asleep, she has got rid of this under-guard of hers, while she crossed over to our house. Good! ## THE BRAGGART WARRIOR

I have added nothing new of my own to your instructions.

You want your master, the soldier, to be fooled, I understand?

You've said it.

It is all arranged, delightfully and shrewdly, properly and neatly.

And I want you to pretend to be this gentleman's wife.

His wife I'll be.

And to pretend that you're smitten with the soldier. I shall be smitten.

And that this matter is being managed for him through me, as go-between, and your maid.

You could have made a fine clairvoyant, for what you say will all come true.

And that your maid brought me this ring from you to pass on to the soldier in your name.

Quite correct.

What's the use of all that repetition of things they remember?

It's better so. For consider this, my dear patron,—when you have a fine master-builder, and he has once laid down the keel true to line, building your ship is easy when that's all laid and set. Now this keel of ours is laid finely as can be and well set, and the master-builder has workmen for this job that are not unskilled. If we're not delayed by the timber-dealer with our raw material—I know what our powers promise—our ship will be ready in no time.

No doubt you know the soldier, my master?

It's a wonder you ask. How could I help knowing such a general nuisance, such a boastful, frizzle-pated, perfumed lady-killer?

THE BRAGGART WARRIOR

(anxiously) But he doesn't know you, does he?

Never having seen me, how should he know who I am?

How delightfully you do talk! What we do to him can be made all the more delightful!

Can't you leave the man to me, and feel easy as to the rest? If I fail to make a delightful fool of him, lay all the blame on me.

All right, then, you girls go inside, and set yourselves to work on this with all your wits.

(easily) Leave that to us.

Come, Periplectomenus, take these girls inside at once; I'll meet our man at the forum and give him this ring, making out that it was given me by your wife and that she's dying for him. The moment we get back from the forum, send this girl (indicating Milphidippa) to us as though she were a secret messenger to him.

We will. Leave it to us.

Only you manage your part; I'll fetch him here already stuffed in fine shape. [EXIT.

(calling after him) A good walk to you—and do a good job! (to Acroteleutium) If I make a real success of this, and my guest gets the soldier's girl to-day and carries her off to Athens, and if we do turn this trick, such a present as I'll send you! Is the girl herself (nodding toward the soldier's house) helping us?

Oh, delightfully, toutafaitly!

I trust things will turn out well. When we've lumped together our talents for mischief, I have no fear of our being beaten at artful wiles.

THE BRAGGART WARRIOR

Well, then, let's go inside to practice and think over our parts, so that we can put the job through carefully and properly, and make not a single slip when the soldier comes.

It's you that delay us.

[EXEUNT.]

ACT IV

ENTER Pyrgopolynices AND Palaestrio.

Ah, it is a great pleasure to have your affairs proceed in just such a delightful fashion as you wish. My own case, now—to-day I sent my parasite to King Seleucus so that he might conduct to Seleucus the mercenaries whom I hired to protect his kingdom while I take a rest.

Come, sir, attend to your own business rather than Seleucus's. Such a love affair as I'm commissioned to submit to you, sir, a new one, a dazzling one!

(condescendingly) Oh, well, everything else shall be secondary, and you shall have my attention. Speak. I surrender my ears to your suzerainty, by all means.

(mysteriously) Look about, then, sir, and see that no one is here to catch our conversation. For I was instructed to do this business secretly.

(majestically surveying the neighbourhood) No one is here.

(producing Periplectomenus's ring) First, sir, take this as a token of her affection.

(taking it) What have we here? Whence comes it?

From a dazzling and delectable lady, sir, who loves you, and longs to enjoy your beauteous beauty. And now she has sent me her ring by her maid, for me to hand over to you, sir.

THE BRAGGART WARRIOR

(examining the ring and trying to hide his elation)

What about her? Is she freeborn, or some slave set free by the rod?<sup>1</sup>

Tush, sir! Would I dare be an envoy to you from a freedwoman, when you are unable to make adequate response to the freeborn ladies who crave for you?

Is she married or unmarried?

Married and unmarried, both, sir.

How can the same woman be both married and unmarried?

Because she's the young wife of an old husband, sir.

Excellent!

Oh, she's delightful, sir, and every inch a lady!

No lies, my man!

Sir, she's the one woman worthy of comparison with you.

(genuinely surprised) By Jove, what a beauty she must be! But who is she?

The wife of old Periplectomenus here next door, sir. She's simply perishing for you, sir, and longs to leave him; she hates the old fellow. And now she has ordered me to beg and beseech you to grant her the opportunity and privilege of being yours.

(forgetting his indifference) By Jove, I certainly long to have her, if she wishes it. (slips on the ring)

Wishes it, sir? Longs for it!

What shall we do with that wench at home?

Why, sir, tell her to leave you and go where she likes—here's her twin sister, for instance, come to Ephesus with her mother, and they are after her.

THE BRAGGART WARRIOR

Eh? What? Her mother has come to Ephesus?
So say those who know, sir.

By Jove! A delightful opportunity to get the girl out of my house!

But listen, sir. Do you want to do it in a delightful way?

Speak, out with your advice.

Do you want to put her out at once, sir, and yet have her part with you pleasantly?

I long to!

Then this is what you should do, sir. You have any amount of money: bid her keep the jewels and finery you fitted her out with for a present and take them and go away where she likes.

A good suggestion! But just look out that I do not let her go, only to have this other one break faith.

Tut, tut, sir! You're joking! When she loves you as her very eyes. ✓

(complacently) It is Venus who loves me!

(listening) Sh-h! Keep still, sir! The door's opening! Step aside here out of sight! (pulls him back)

ENTER Milphidippa INTO Periplectomenus's DOORWAY.

This is her despatch-boat coming out, her go-between,<sup>1</sup> who brought me that ring I gave you, sir.

(ogling her) A pretty little piece, upon my soul!

Oh, sir, she's nothing but a little baboon, a miserable dodo chick, beside her mistress! (as

2.

(aside, coming out from the doorway and seeing them) The circus where I must do my tricks is in front of the house now. I'll pretend not to see them, or to know they're here yet.

(aside to Palaestrio) Hush! Let us listen quietly and see if any mention is made of me.

(aloud, looking everywhere save in their direction) Is there anyone near, I wonder, that minds other people's business more than his own, to spy out my doings—someone that doesn't have to earn his supper?<sup>1</sup> They're the people I'm afraid of now, that they'll hamper me or hinder somewhere, if mistress leaves her home, on her way across here, longing to lie in the arms of the man she loves—that, oh, so delightful, oh, so handsome soldier, Pyrgopolynices!

(aside to Palaestrio) So this wench is dying for me, too, eh? She admires my looks. Upon my soul, her words need no ashes.<sup>2</sup>

How do you make that out, sir?

Why, because what she says is so elegant and polished.

And why not? She speaks of you, sir: she has a polished subject.

Moreover, her mistress is a most delightful and elegant woman. Upon my soul, Palaestrio, I do begin to fancy her a bit already.

Before you've set eyes on her, sir?

My confidence in you amounts to seeing her.

THE BRAGGART WARRIOR

Besides, this little despatch-boat inclines me to love, even in absence.

Not to love her, sir, by gad, no! This girl is engaged to me: if the mistress marries you to-day, the maid becomes my wife directly. ]

Then why so backward in speaking to her?

(stepping forward) This way, then, sir.

(at his heels) I am your footman.

Oh, for a chance to meet the man I came out to see! (Palaestrio steps back again and pulls back the soldier)

(in a melodramatic tone) You shall have it, and what you pray for will come to pass. Be of good heart, have no fear; there is a certain man who knows the whereabouts of what you seek.

(alarmed, apparently not seeing them) Who is it I heard here?

(mysteriously, from his hiding place) A colleague in your councils, and a sharer of your counsels.

Goodness me! Then my secret is no secret!

Oh, no! A secret and no secret, both.

How can that be?

Secrets you keep from the untrustworthy: me you can trust entirely.

Give me the watchword, if you belong to our Bacchantes.

A certain woman loves a certain man.

Goodness me, many women do that!

But not many send a present from off their fingers.

Ah, now I know, now you have made the rough places plain! (anxiously, as Palaestrio steps out and comes toward her, waving the soldier back) But is anyone about here?

(reassuringly) Oh, quite as you please.

I want you all alone.

THE BRAGGART WARRIOR

For a short or long talk ?

A couple of words.

(aside, to Pyrgopolynices) I'll soon be back with you sir.

(petulant) What of me? Am I to stand about here, meanwhile, so handsome and heroic all for naught ?

(returning to him) Be patient, sir, and do stand here; it's your affair that busies me.

(somewhat mollified) Hurry! This waiting racks me!

It's best to go slow with wares of this sort, sir,— you know that.

(trying to compose himself) All right, all right, act as you think most fitting.

(aside) The fellow's as stupid as a stone. (rejoining Milphidippa) Here I am again! What did you want of me ?

Some advice as to how you want this Troy to be attacked.

Pretend she's dying for him——

I understand that.

Praise his handsome person, and talk about his doughty deeds.

I'm all armed for that, as I already showed you some time ago.

See to the rest yourself, look sharp, and catch your cue from me.

(calling to Palaestrio) Give me some slight part in this to-day. Come here sometime, you clog!

(hurrying back to him) Here I am, sir, command me, state your wish.

What is she telling you ?

She says her mistress is moaning, in torment, poor thing, and all worn out with crying, because she answer this wench: she's the one from that woman I spoke of a while ago.

(bored) From which one? So many come to my mind, you know: I cannot remember.

h. From the one who despoils her own fingers and decks yours, sir. (pointing to the ring) For I brought him (indicating Palaestrio) this ring from a lady who pines for you, sir, and he passed it on to you.

Well, woman, what wish you now? Speak.

h. For you not to scorn a lady who longs for you, sir, who now lives but in your life. In you alone rests her hope, whether she is to survive or perish.

Well, what is her wish?

h. To converse with you, sir, to clasp you in her arms, caress you. Ah, sir, unless you bring her succour, she will soon be broken-hearted. (seizing his hand) Oh, my Achilles, come, grant my prayer, graciously save that gracious lady, draw forth from the wells of your mercy, O capturer of cities and slayer of kings! (Palaestrio nearly collapses)

(pushing her away) A fine to do! Lord, Lord, this is so tiresome! (to Palaestrio) How many times have I forbidden you, you villain, to promise my services in this fashion to the common crowd?

Do you hear, woman? I told you this before, and I tell you again: this boar must receive compensation, or he won't consort with every little sowlet.

h. (humbly) He'll be given any sum he asks for.

He must have two hundred pounds; he will take less from no one.

Why don't you give her some answer, sir, yes or no?

Why torment that poor heartsick lady, sir, who has never deserved ill of you?

(overcoming his repugnance) Tell her to come out here to us herself. Say I will do all she wishes.

THE BRAGGART WARRIOR

As a matter of fact, they live right on for a thousand years, from one generation to another.

I understated it, sir, for fear she might suppose I was lying to her.

(open-mouthed) Heaven save us! How many years will he live himself, when his sons live so long?

My girl, I was born on the day after Ops was delivered of Jupiter.

If he had been born the day before Jupiter, it's he would be reigning in Heaven.

(overcome) Enough, enough, now, I pray you! Let me leave your presence, if I may, alive! ✓

Why don't you leave, then, seeing you have your answer?

(to Pyrgopolynices) I'll go and get the lady in whose behalf I'm acting, sir. Is there anything else you wish, sir?

(with a sigh) That I may be no handsomer than I am! Ah yes, my beauty is an endless source of trouble to me.

(to the rapt Milphidippa) Why do you stand here now? Why don't you go?

(reluctantly withdrawing her gaze from the soldier) I am going.

(following her toward the door) Yes, and furthermore—are you listening? In telling her, show some acuteness and art, so as to make her heart dance within her—(in a lower tone) if Philocomasium is there, tell her to go over to our house: say he's here.

(in a low tone) She is here (indicating Periplectomenus's house) with my mistress; they've been overhearing our conversation from under cover here.

Delightful! Now they'll steer a better course later on, from hearing us.

(calling after her) Bid her make haste and come out here. This affair shall have our primary attention now. (struts about, then worriedly) Palaestrio, what do you now recommend that I do regarding my mistress? For it is perfectly impossible for this lady to be received into my house before I get rid of her.

Why consult me about what to do, sir? I've told you, you know, how the matter can be handled most considerately. All the jewellery and clothes you fitted her out with, let her keep. Let her take 'em, keep 'em, carry 'em off; and tell her it's just the time for her to go home: say her twin sister and her mother are here and she can reach home quite comfortably in their company.

How do you know they are here?

Because I saw her sister here with my own eyes, sir.

Have they met?

Yes, sir.

(lickerishly) A fine, strapping wench? Eh, what?

(reprovingly) You want to get hold of everything, sir.

Where did the sister say her mother was?

She's abed on board the ship, sir, with her eyes all sore and swollen, according to the skipper who brought them here. He's stopping with these neighbours of ours. (nodding toward Periplectomenus's house)

How about him? A fine, strapping lad, is he?

Oh, now, now, sir! You've certainly been a rare stallion, that's sure, the way you run after everything, male and female. Do get down to business now, sir!

(deciding not to be angry) As to that advice you give me—I want you to discuss the matter with her yourself; for you are an ideal person to parley with her.

How is that better than going to her yourself, sir, and managing your own affair yourself?—Say it's necessary for you to marry; your relatives urge it, your friends force it upon you.

(reluctant) That is your opinion?

Of course it is, sir.

(gathering himself together) I will go inside, then. You keep watch in front of the house, meanwhile, so as to call me out when the other one comes out.

(reassuringly) Just you see to your part of the business, sir.

(with affected ease) Oh, that is seen to. Why, if she declines to go of her own free will, I shall put her out by force.

Oh, sir, don't do that! No, no, do let her leave you on good terms. And give her those things I spoke of; let her take away the jewellery and finery you furnished her with.

Lord! I only hope she will!

I think you'll easily prevail upon her, sir. But do go in, sir. Don't keep standing here.

I am yours to command. [EXIT SLOWLY INTO HOUSE.]

the danger's greatest of your falling down again? We have our affair at the top of the well now: if the soldier gets suspicious, it'll all escape us. Now's the time when we most need to be artful. I see we have at hand enough material for our siege—three women, you, sir, for a fourth, me for a fifth, and the old gentleman for a sixth; with the stratagems we six have to draw on, I know for sure that whatever city should be assigned us can be captured by our arts. Only give me your attention. That's why we are here, to learn your wishes.

Delightful of you! Now this is the mission I command (to Acroteleutium) you to undertake. ✓

Your desires shall be compassed, commander mine, to the best of my ability. ||

I desire our soldier to be delightfully, cleverly, and superbly swindled.

Goodness me! Your command is a pleasure.

You know how?

By pretending that I'm rent with passion for him, of course.

Precisely.

And that this passion has made me divorce my husband (with a nod toward Periplectomenus's house) in my longing to marry him.

Quite correct. There's only one more point, though—say that this house (indicating that of Periplectomenus) is part of your dowry, and the old man left you and went away after you divorced him. We mustn't have our warrior timid about entering another man's house later on. ✓

A good suggestion!

But when he comes out, I want you to stay there at a distance and pretend to scorn your own beauty in comparison with his, and to be awed by his opulence, and you must be full of praise, too, of his lovely person and handsome face. Are you coached enough?

Yes indeed. Will it be enough if I produce a piece of work so finished that you can't find a fault in it?

Quite enough. Now, sir, (turning to Pleusicles) it is your turn to learn my commands. Just as soon as all this is done and she (indicating Acroteleutium) has gone inside, you are to come to us here at once, in shipmaster's togs: wear a broad-brimmed, rust-coloured hat, a woollen patch over your eyes, and a short, rust-coloured cloak—that's the maritime shade—this to be fastened on your left shoulder, with an arm stuck out; and contrive to be all tight and trim. You're to pretend to be the master of a ship. The old gentleman has all these things, for some of his slaves are fishermen. ✓

Well? Why don't you tell me what to do when I'm in those togs?

Come here for Philocomasium, in her mother's name, and tell her if she intends to go to Athens to hurry to the harbour with you, and to order anything she wants put aboard to be carried to the ship. Say that if she's not going, you will cast off directly, there being a fair wind. ✓

A very pleasing picture! Proceed.

The soldier will promptly urge her to go, to hurry up, so as not to keep her mother waiting. ✓

There's no limit to your foresight! \

I'll tell her to ask for my assistance in carrying her luggage to the harbour. And to the harbour

How is that, sir?

How I did have to talk and talk! What stubborn stuff she was to deal with! However, I finally gained my point in the way I wished: I granted her, gave her, all she wished, all she asked for. I gave you to her, also, as a gift.

(trying to resign himself) My hopes will rest in heaven and you, sir. But at any rate, sir, bitter though it is to me to be deprived of such a wonderful master as you, this at least is a joy to me—that your own irresistible beauty, and my efforts, have brought you this affair with our neighbour whom I'm now securing for you.

Enough said. You shall be a free man, and a wealthy one, if you carry it through.

Carried through it shall be, sir.

But I'm aching for her!

I do, sir. How happy she is at having approached you!

Oh, you fortunate woman!

(aside to Palaestrio) How the women do seem to love me!

You deserve it, sir.

My goodness! That is a most amazing story that you had access to him and prevailed upon him.

Why, they say he is addressed only by dispatch or envoy, just like a king.

No doubt, for, dear me, such a time as I had approaching him and winning his consent!

(aside to the soldier) How renowned you are, sir, amongst the ladies!

(devoutly) I must resign myself, since such is the will of Venus.

Ah, I offer thanks to Venus, and beg and entreat her that I may win the man I love and yearn for, and that he may be gracious to me, and not grudge me my desire.

I hope it will be so, ma'am, although there are many women that yearn for him: but he scorns them, spurns them all, ma'am, except you alone.

(despairingly) Ah, that, that disdain of his, is just what makes me suffer so from fear that his eyes may make him change his mind, on seeing me, and that a man of his fine taste may spurn my poor attractions instantly.

No he won't, ma'am; do cheer up.

If he's unwilling to take me for his wife, I vow I'll clasp his knees and implore his pity. Otherwise—if I cannot prevail upon him—I will do myself to death; for I know I can never live without him.

(aside to Palaestrio) I must not let the woman die, surely. Shall I approach her?

By no means, sir. Why, you'll cheapen yourself, if you lavish yourself, unasked. Let her come to you, unasked; let her do the seeking and pining and waiting. Do you want to lose that reputation that you have? Please, sir, don't do it. For I am sure that no mortal man save two—yourself and Lesbian Phaon<sup>1</sup>—has had the fortune to be so loved by woman.

THE BRAGGART WARRIOR

(as Acroteleutium suddenly halts) Why have you stopped there, ma'am, stupefied? Why don't you knock?

(as in a trance) Because he whom I want is not within.

How do you know?

I know, ah Heavens, I know! I can smell. Yes, yes, my nose would detect it from the odour, were he within!

(aside to Pyrgopolynices) She has second sight, sir.

Because she loves me, she is therefore endowed by Venus with powers of divination.

(sniffing delicately) Somewhere hereabout is the man I yearn to see! I smell him, I do, I do!

(aside to Palaestrio) Upon my soul, the woman actually sees better with her nose than eyes!

Love blinds her, sir.

(catching sight of the soldier) Hold me, hold me, for heaven's sake! (about to swoon)

(supporting her) Why?

(weakly) Or I'll fall!

What for?

Because I cannot stand—so do my senses fail me by reason of my eyes!

(after a moment of mystification) Heavens! You've spied the soldier! (looks about)

Yes!

I don't see him. Where is he?

Ah me! You would see him, if you loved him!

Goodness gracious, ma'am, you don't love him any more than I would, if you gave me leave,

(aside to Pyrgopolynices) All the women certainly do fall in love with you at first sight, sir!

TITUS MACCIUS PLAUTUS

Milph. Ad se ut eas: tecum vivere volt atque aetatem exigere.

Pyrg. Egon ad illam eam, quae nupta sit? vir eius me deprehendat.

Milph. Quin tua causa exegit virum ab se.

Pyrg. Qui id facere potuit?

Milph. Quia aedis dotalis huius sunt.

THE BRAGGART WARRIOR

(confidentially) I do not know whether I have informed you of it or not—but I am the grandson of Venus.

(trembling) Milphidippa, dear, approach him, go up to him, I beseech you! (gazes upon him, entranced, throughout the scene)

(aside to Palaestrio) How I do awe her!

(as Milphidippa nears them) She's making for us.

(pleadingly) I want you, sirs.

(ogling her) And we you!

I have brought my mistress out, as you bade me, sir.

(repenting of his ardour) So I perceive.

Then do bid her approach, sir.

I have prevailed upon myself not to loathe her as I do the others, since you have pleaded for her.

Dear me, sir, she won't be able to utter a single word, if she once comes near you. While she gazes upon you, sir, her eyes have meanwhile cut off her tongue.

The woman's ailment must be alleviated, I perceive.

How tremulous and terror-stricken she was when she beheld you!

(sublime) So also are armed warriors wont to be; wonder not at this terror in a woman. But what does she wish me to do?

To go to her house, sir: she wants to live with you, to pass her whole life with you.

(alarmed) I go to her house—a married woman? Her husband would discover me.

But she has put her husband out for your sake, sir. ✓

How could she do that?

Because the house is part of her dowry.

Indeed?

Oh, yes indeed, sir.

(struggling against his elation) Bid her go home. I will be there shortly.

Do see you don't keep her waiting, sir, or you'll make her suffer agonies.

No, no, I will not. Be off with you!

(rejoining the dazed Acroteleutium) We're going, sir.

[EXEUNT, Acroteleutium SUPPORTED BY Milphidippa, HER LANGUISHING GAZE STILL FIXED UPON Pyrgopolynices.]

(looking down the street) But what is this I see?

What do you see, sir?

(pointing) Look! Someone or other is striding up—and in sailor's togs!

He's making for our house! He wants you, sir, that's clear. Why, it's that shipmaster!

Coming to fetch the wench now, no doubt!

I do believe so. (they step back)

7.

ENTER Pleusicles.

(aside, not seeing them) If I weren't aware that love has led other men to play all sorts of other scurvy tricks, I'd have more scruples over my own love's making me parade about in this rig. But considering the many men I've heard of who've done many dishonourable things, indecent things, because of love—not to mention how Achilles let his own compatriots be slaughtered—(seeing Palaestrio and the soldier) Aha, though! Palaestrio standing there with the soldier! I must change the tenor of my remarks!

(loudly and irritably) Woman is certainly the daughter of Delay personified! Why, any other delay, even one of equal length, seems shorter than that a woman lets you in for. I really do believe they do it just out of habit. Now here's my case—come to fetch this Philocomasium. (looks about for her disgustedly) But I'll knock at the door. (does so) Hello! Is anyone here?

(stepping up to him) What's the matter, sir? What do you want? What are you knocking for?

(brusquely) I'm looking for Philocomasium. I come from her mother. If she's going, she must go now. She's delaying everyone: we want to cast off.

We have been ready this long time. Palaestrio, go get some assistants to help you to carry her things to the ship, her jewellery, trinkets, clothes, all her valuables. All the stuff I gave her is packed up: let her take it away.

Going, sir.

[EXIT.]

(shouting after him) And for God's sake, hurry!

He will not keep you waiting. (interested in Pleusicles's bandage) What ails you, pray? What have you done with your eyes?

(lifting the bandage a bit from his right eye, which is more exposed) Lord, man, I have an eye, all right.

But the left one, I mean.

Well, I'll tell you. It was my love of the deep, by gad, that cost me the full use of this eye, for if it wasn't for this deep-love of mine, I'd be using it as well as the other one. (hastily) But they're keeping me too long!

(as his door opens) Look, there they come.

(to Philocomasium, in the doorway) For heaven's sake, ma'am, will you never cease weeping?

THE BRAGGART WARRIOR

8. ENTER Palaestrio AND Philocomasium.

(sobbing bitterly) How can I help . . . weeping? Life has been . . . oh, so . . . beautiful here, and now I'm . . . going away!

(pointing to Pleusicles) Look! There's the man who's come from your mother and sister.

I . . . see him.

(calling) Palaestrio! Do you hear me?

What is it, sir?

Why do you not order all the things I gave her to be carried out? (Palaestrio goes to the door and gives instructions to slaves within)

Good day, Philocomasium.

Good day to . . . you, sir.

Your mother and sister told me to give you their best wishes.

They have . . . mine.

They beg you to come while there's a fair wind, so that they may set sail. If your mother's eyes had been in condition, they would have come along with me, of course.

I'll . . . go. Although I go . . . unwillingly, it would be . . . undutiful not to go.

That's a sensible girl.

But she would be a simpleton still, if she had not lived with me.

(adoringly) That is what . . . torments me—to be . . . separated from such a man as . . . you—for you can make . . . anyone (glancing slyly at Pleusicles) clever as can be. And because I was with . . . you, it did make me so . . . so proud, and now I see I must . . . forfeit that . . . distinction. (Breaks down entirely) (condolingly) Don't cry.

I can't . . . help it, when I . . . look at you!

TITUS MACCIUS PLAUTUS

Pyrg. Habe bonum animum.

Phil. Scio ego quid doleat mihi.

Pal. Nam nil miror, si libenter, Philocomasium, hic eras,

Phil. Obsecro licet complecti prius quam proficisco?

Pyrg. Licet.

Phil. O mi oculo, o mi anime.

Pal. Obsecro, tene mulierem, ne adffigatur.

Pyrg. Quid istuc quaesost?

Pal. Quia abs te abit, animo male factum est huic repente miserae.

Pyrg. Curre intro atque ecfero aquam.

Pl. Si magis vis, eammittam.

Pyrg. Nolo, retine.

Pl. ~~At ultro misero.~~

Pyrg. Exite atque ecferite huc intus omnia quae isti dedi.

THE BRAGGART WARRIOR

Bear up, bear up.

Ah, but I know how I . . . suffer!

Indeed, I don't wonder at all that you loved to live with him, Philocomasium, and that his beauty and his ways and his bravery hold your heart here, for, mere slave though I am, when I look on him, I (hiding his face) weep at our being parted. ✓

May I embrace you before I go my way, oh, may I?

(graciously) You may.

(falling on his breast) Oh, my precious one, oh, soul of my soul!

(drawing her away and guiding her tottering steps to Pleusicles) For heaven's sake, hold the woman, sir, or she'll dash her brains out! (Pleusicles supports her, much too tenderly, as she swoons)

(looking at them) Eh? Eh? What does that mean?

(hurriedly) She's suddenly fallen into a faint, poor thing, because of leaving you, sir?

Run inside and bring some water!

Never mind the water, sir; I think she had better rest. (as Pyrgopolynices advances toward her) Don't get near her, sir, for mercy's sake, while she's recovering!

(doubtfully) That pair have their heads too closely together. I don't like it. (shouting, as Pleusicles kisses her) Hey, sailor, get your lips away from hers! Look out for trouble!

I was trying to see if she was breathing, or not.

You should have used your ear for that.

(indifferently) If you prefer, I'll let her go.

No, no! Keep hold of her!

But I'll be glad to let her go.

(still more alarmed, to servants within) Come out here, and bring out all those things I gave her!

THE BRAGGART WARRIOR

ENTER SERVANTS WITH Philocomasium's LUGGAGE.

(turning for a last sad look into the house) And now once more, God of this household, I salute thee before I go! And you, my fellow servants all, male and female, good bye and good luck to you! Speak good things of me amongst yourselves, I pray you, absent though I am! (sobs violently)

Come, come, Palaestrio, take heart!

Ah, sir! I can't help . . . weeping at leaving . . . you! ✓

Bear it bravely. ✓

Ah, but I know how I suffer!

(regaining consciousness, slowly) But what is this?

(looking about vacantly) What's the matter? What do I see? Ah, light of day!

Have you recovered now?

(horrified) For heaven's sake, what man have I embraced? Oh, this is death! Am I in my senses? (sinks again on Pleusicles's breast)

Never fear, (in a low tone) my heart's delight!

(noticing Pleusicles's unnecessary fervour) What does this mean?

(stepping up to them) She lost consciousness just now, sir.

(in a low tone to Pleusicles) I'm frightfully worried this'll finally become altogether too public! (Philocomasium revives again)

(overhearing, in part) What do you mean?

(extemporizing weakly) Our being followed through the city now by all this stuff, sir. (pointing to Philocomasium's luggage) I'm afraid people may turn this to your discredit, sir.

(loftily) These gifts come from me, not from them; little I care about such folk. (impatient) Come, be off, and heaven bless you!

It's on your account I say this, sir.

THE BRAGGART WARRIOR

Of course, of course.

And now farewell, sir.

And fare you well, my man.

(bustling the others off) Quick! Go along! I'll follow you directly: I want a few words with (choking with sad devotion) my master.

[EXEUNT, Philocomasium SUPPORTED BY Pleusicles

AND LOOKING BACK WISTFULLY AT Pyrgopolynices.

Although you have always held other slaves more loyal to you than me, sir, I am nevertheless deeply grateful to you for everything; and if it were your will, sir, I should much prefer to be your slave than another's freedman. (sobs)

Bear up, bear up!

Ah me, sir, when I . . . reflect how I must change my . . . ways—learn the ways of . . . women, and forget the . . . warriors'!

Be a good, honest fellow.

(hopelessly) I can't, sir . . . now! I've lost all my . . . desire!

Go, follow them, don't delay!

(going reluctantly) Farewell, sir, farewell!

And fare you well, my man.

(stopping) Sir, if I find myself beginning the life of a free man—I'll send you word of it—please do remember not to . . . desert me.

That is not my way.

Reflect, sir, now and then, upon my . . . fidelity to you. If you do this, sir, you will . . . finally know who your good and . . . bad servants are.

I know it now, I have often noted it.

But even though you've known it before, sir, you'll know it . . . to-day, especially. No, sir, I warrant that . . . later on you'll say all the more that I was a servant that just suited you this day.

(quite stirred) I can hardly refrain from bidding you stay.

(taken aback) Ah, sir, don't do that! People will say that you're a . . . liar, false and . . . faithless—and I the only . . . faithful servant you had, they'll say, sir. Ah yes, if I thought you could do so honourably, sir, I'd urge it, but it . . . cannot be. Don't do it, sir!

Well, be off, now!

(turning away) I'll bear . . . whatever comes, sir. Fare you well, then.

(hastening off, apparently to avoid a complete breakdown) I'd better go in a . . . hurry, sir!

[EXIT, SHAKEN WITH EMOTION.]

(calling after him) Once more, farewell! (reflectively) Before to-day's experience I always considered this fellow the worst sort of servant: but I find he is devoted to me. Now I think it over, I was a fool to let him go. (turning toward Periplectomenus's house) Well, now for a call on my inamorata. (listening) But hark! A noise at the door here! (steps back)

9. ENTER A SLAVE BOY FROM THE HOUSE OF Periplectomenus.

(to those within) You needn't remind me. I remember my duty. Yes, I'll reach him, no matter where on earth he is! I'll track him down, I'll spare myself no pains!

(aside) He is looking for me. I'll up to the lad. (advances)

Oh, sir! I'm looking for you, sir! Hail, most delectable hero, teeming with timeliness, blest beyond all others with the favour of two deities!

Mars and Venus, sir.

A knowing lad!

She implores you to go inside, sir, she wants you, seeks you, looks for you longingly. Comfort the adoring creature, sir. Why stand here? Why not go in to her, sir?

(rampant) I am going!

[EXIT INTO HOUSE.]

(gleefully) Now he's done it, tangled himself in the nets there! The trap's all laid. The old man's standing on guard to spring at this adulterer who's so lordly over his looks, and fancies all the women fall in love with him at sight—when everyone detests him, men and women, both! (sound of a scuffle within) Now I'll get into the row! I hear 'em yelling inside!

ACT V

ENTER Periplectomenus.

(to slaves within) Bring him along! If he won't follow you, pick him up and throw him out! Give him a berth between earth and heaven! Tear him apart!

ENTER Pyrgopolynices, STRIPPED OF SWORD, CLOAK AND TUNIC, IN THE GRIP OF SEVERAL ENERGETIC SLAVES.

(in an awful fright) Oh, my Lord! Periplectomenus, I beseech you!

(grimly) Oh, my Lord! Your beseeching is no use. (to a slave) Cario, see that that knife of yours is good and sharp.

(cheerfully testing a vicious looking blade) Bless you, sir, it's been itching this long time to dock his bestial belly and hang the trimmings round his neck now like a baby's string of beads! (makes a pass with his knife, to Pyrgopolynices's exquisite terror)

THE BRAGGART WARRIOR

Oh, murder, murder!

Not yet; you anticipate.

(brandishing his knife) Shall I fly at the fellow now, sir?

Oh no, he must be clubbed, first of all.

Give him plenty, plenty! (all close in on him)

How did you dare seduce another man's wife, you shameless villain?

I swear by the love of heaven, sir, she made the first advances!

(to a slave) He lies! Beat him!

Wait, sir, let me explain!

(to slaves) What makes you so slow? (they raise their cudgels)

Won't you let me speak, sir?

Speak.

I was begged to go to her, sir.

But how did you dare go? There! Take that!

(flogs him with his cane, the slaves joining in, earnestly)

Ow-w-w! Oh, I've been clubbed enough! Oh, for heaven's sake!

(very zestful) How soon shall I cut, sir?

When you like. (to the slaves who hold him) Spread him apart, stretch him out as far as he'll go!

(as they lay him on his back, Cario standing over him, knife in hand) Oh, good Lord, sir! I beseech you, hear my words before he cuts!

Out with them.

(in a pathetic state) I didn't want to . . . do it, sir, and I . . . didn't. Oh, Lord! I thought she wasn't . . . married now, and that's what that . . . bawd of a maid . . . told me, sir!

(reflecting, then sternly) Swear that you will not harm a living soul for all this—for having been clubbed here to-day, or for any future clubbing—if we let you out of here alive; you dear little grandson of Venus!

(fervently) I swear by Jupiter and Mars, sir, not to harm a single soul for being cudgelled here to-day, and I think I was treated rightly, sir! And if I get away from here without losing my power to bear witness as a man, I'll be getting more than I deserve, sir!

What if you break your promise?

Then I'll promise to live all my life without that power, sir.

(to Periplectomennus, judicially) I move we club him again, sir, and then let him go.

(overjoyed) Oh, God bless you forever and ever, for coming to my support!

Well then, give us (indicating the slaves) twenty pounds.

What for?

For letting you get away from here to-day, bearing your witnesses intact, you dear little grandson of Venus! Otherwise, (surveying his knife) you shan't get away, don't fool yourself!

(hastily) You shall have it!

That's wiser of you. As for your tunic and military cloak and sword, have no hopes of them, you won't get 'em. (to Periplectomennus) Shall I club him again, sir, or will you loose him now?

(drearily) Really, sir, I've been beaten till I'm loose already. Have mercy!

(to slaves) Release the fellow. (they do so)

(rising, gratefully) Thanks, sir, thanks!

If I catch you here hereafter, you shall lose those witnesses.

Oh, damnation!

You'd say that all the more, if you knew what I know. Why, that chap with the woollen patch on his left eye was no sailor.

(startled) Who was he, then?

Philocomasium's lover.

How do you know?

I know. Why, they no sooner got outside the city gate than they fell to kissing and hugging each other.

(aside) Oh, poor fool that I am! I've been gulled, I see it now! It's Palaestrio, that scoundrel of a fellow, that enticed me into this trap! ## ARGUMENT OF THE PLAY

Philolaches, in his father's absence, purchases and sets free the girl he loves, and runs through all his property. When the old gentleman returns, Tranio takes him in with a tale how his house was haunted by ghastly apparitions which long ago forced the family to leave it. A money-loving moneylender obtrudes himself and demands his interest. Again the old gentleman is made the butt, Tranio alleging that they had got a loan to make a payment on the house they had bought. Asked what house it was, Tranio said it was their next-door neighbour's. The old gentleman inspects it. Later, though stung by being made a laughing-stock, he is nevertheless appeased by his son's chum.

ENTER Tranio, DAPPER AND DEBONAIR.

Why the devil are you making all this row out in front here? Think you are on the farm, do you? Away from the house with you! Off to your farm! Off and be hanged! Away from the doorway! There! (cuff's him) Is that what you were itching for?

(covering) Oh, oh-h! What are you hitting me for?

Oh, for living.

All right, all right! But only let old master come back, only let him get safely back—the man you're eating out of house and home while he's away!

You neither tell the truth nor anything like the truth, you growth! How could anyone eat anyone out of his house, when he's not in it?

THE HAUNTED HOUSE

Oh, yes, you city swell, you public pet, you! So you're throwing the farm in my face, eh? And I reckon I know why, all right, Tranio—because you know you'll be landed in the mill before long. Within a few days, by gad, you'll be swelling our numbers on the farm and joining our ball-and-chain club! So now you've got the chance, and choose to do so, drink away, wreck the property, demoralize that fine young son of master's! Get fuddled day and night, live like Greeks, buy girls and set 'em free, feed parasites, go in for fancy catering! Are these the instructions the old master gave you when he went abroad? Is this how he'll find his property here has been attended to? Is this your notion of a good servant doing his duty—to ruin his master's estate and son, together? For ruined he is, I take it, from the sort of things he's going in for. Why, before, there wasn't a young fellow in all Attica that had his reputation for thrift, or led a cleaner life, while now he wins the prize the other way. And it's you and your teachings he can thank for it!

What the devil do you mean by minding me or my affairs? At the farm, for heaven's sake, have you no cows to mind? I choose to drink my wine, to have my love affairs, to bring home girls. I take chances with my own hide thereby, not with yours.

Listen to the cheek of him!

Oh, be damned to you! Phew! You smell of garlic! Ugh, you lump of native filth, you clod-hopper, he-goat, pig-sty, mixture of mire and manure!

Your lot is happy, mine is miserable. Very well, very well! So long as a good time is coming to me, and a bad time to you! You seem rather wrathful, Grumio, because I am having the good time, at present, and you the bad one. But that is quite as it should be—I am the man for the ladies, you for the lowing herd. Fine fare for me and husks for you is quite correct. Oh, I bet the hangmen will have you looking like a human sieve, the way they'll prod you full of holes as they run you down the streets with your arms on a cross bar, once the old man gets back! Because I never deserved it, and you have, and do. (advancing) Well, save yourself some of that talk, unless you crave the honour of being badly beaten up.

Shut up, and be off to the farm! I want to go to the Piraeus and see about some fish for supper for myself. To-morrow I shall send someone to the villa with (emphatically) your fodder for you. (as Grumio bridles) What ails you? What are you scowling at me for now, gallowsbird?

THE HAUNTED HOUSE

there, when you hear what I say, won't say anything different, but admit it's exactly as I now aver. Listen while I let you hear how I . . . reason it all out. I want you to be as . . . well informed about it all as I am.

As soon as a house is all . . . complete, all finished off, constructed to a T, they . . . compliment the builder and commend the house. Everyone prays the owner for the . . . plan, everyone wants one like it for himself, and spares himself no expense and effort. But when some . . . slacker with a shiftless household, some slovenly good-for-nothing sluggard moves into that house, then the house suffers for it, being a good house, but badly . . . cared for. And then it often happens that a . . . storm comes and smashes the tiles and gutters. Then the shiftless owner refuses to replace them. Down comes a . . . rain, and runs right through the walls, oozes into 'em, rots the . . . timbers, ruins the builder's work. And now the house grows the worse for wear. And it's not the builder's fault at all, but this is the way with most people—if a thing can be repaired for sixpence, they . . . put it off and put it off and don't attend to it, till finally the walls cave in—and the whole house has to be rebuilt.

So much for . . . buildings. Now I want to go on and state why you should think men are similar to houses. Now in the first place, parents are the . . . builders of their children. They lay the foundations of their children's lives. They rear them, do their best to construct them . . . solidly, and spare nothing necessary to making them useful and ornamental as men and citizens. Money spent on this they don't count expense.

They put on the finishing touches—teach them literature, the . . . principles of justice, law, expend their money and their labour in striving that others may pray for their own sons to be like them. So . . . constructed, they send them into the army, now at the last giving them as a support some kinsman of their own. So much for this. They leave the builders' hands. And after one campaign is served, then signs are seen how the building will turn out.

Myself, now—till then—while I was in the builders' hands, I was always a steady, serious-minded chap. But after I . . . moved into my own disposition, I ruined the builders' work instantly and entirely. A spirit of idleness came over me. That was my . . . storm. Coming upon me heavy with hail, it instantly beat down and bared me of my poor coating of modesty and morals. And after that I was too negligent to . . . re-cover myself. Presently, in place of rain, love came and kept dripping, dripping into my breast, drenching my very heart. And now my money and my credit, my reputation, character and good name all are gone together. I, also, have become very much the worse for wear. Yes, by heaven, these . . . timbers of mine, too, are all soaked and rotten now! And I seem unable to repair my house and keep it from . . . caving in entirely and falling in everlasting ruins, foundations and all, and not a soul can help me.

It makes me sick at heart to see what I am now, and what I was. Not one of our young fellows trained harder or was better known as an . . . athlete. Discus, spear, ball, running, fencing, riding—that was high life and happiness enough for me, a pattern, as I was, for others, of strict and . . . simple living, a man whom all the finest fellows sought to make their . . . model. And now that I'm good for nothing, oh well, (stops moodily in front of Simo's house) it's my own disposition that has made me so.

THE HAUNTED HOUSE

ENTER Philematium AND Scapha WITH TOILET ARTICLES FROM THE HOUSE OF Theopropides.

Gracious! I haven't enjoyed a cold bath more for ages! I do believe I never had a better scouring, Scapha, dear. (begins to busy herself with her toilet, continuing it throughout the scene)

(smiling at her mistress's enthusiasm) Everything has its outcome, just as this year brought a big harvest. (puzzled) What has that harvest got to do with my bath?

(lightly) No more than your bath has to do with the harvest.

(aside, seeing her) Oh, lovely queen of love! Here, here, is the storm that stripped me bare of all my covering of modesty! Then love and passion oozed into my breast, and now I can't re-cover it, ever. Now the walls of my heart are drenched, this house an utter ruin!

(prinking) Scapha, dear, do please look me over and see if this gown is really becoming. I do so want to please Philolaches, (fondly) my darling, my protector!

Why not wear just winsome ways for decoration, since you are so winsome yourself? It's not the gown a lover loves, but the gown's contents.

THE HAUNTED HOUSE

l. (aside, forgetting his remorse) Lord love me, but isn't Scapha winsome, too? And what a knowing old wretch! The winsome way she has of understanding just how lovers act and feel!

(posing) Well, now?

(pretending not to understand) Well, what?

Oh, look, do look me over and see if this is becoming!

You're so lovely yourself that whatever you have becomes you.

l. (aside, warming up) There now! I'll certainly make you a present of something, Scapha, for those words. I won't let you praise the girl that pleases me, for nothing.

(soberly) I don't want you to flatter me.

You're a very silly girl, then. Oho! You'd rather be run down insincerely than sincerely admired? Goodness gracious, I much prefer a compliment, insincere or not, to sincere criticism, or to having folks make fun of my looks—indeed I do!

(quietly) I love sincerity, I want what is said to me to be sincere. I hate a liar.

I swear by your love for me, ma'am, by your Philolaches' love for you, you're simply charming!

l. (aside) What's that, you wretch? What sort of an oath was that? By my love for her? How about hers for me? Why wasn't that added? I give up giving you that present! You're done for. And as for the present I promised you, you have done for that!

But, upon my word, I'm really surprised at such silly, silly conduct in such a shrewd, sensible, well-trained girl as you.

THE HAUNTED HOUSE

Oh, do please show me what it is, if I'm making any mistake!

"Mistake"? I should say you were—the way you're all wrapped up in that one man and fairly worship him, without as much as looking at anyone else! This giving yourself up to one lover is all right for married women, but not for mistresses.

/. (aside) Good Lord! Why, what sort of monster's at large in my house? May I be damned by all the powers above to death and torment, if I don't do that old hag to death, with hunger, thirst, and cold!

Scapha, I don't want any such wicked advice from you!

But you are silly, that's plain, to think he'll always be fond of you and nice to you for ever. I warn you—he'll leave you when you're older and he's colder.

(wistful) I hope not.

"More oft come true our hope-nots than our hopes." I tell you what, ma'am, if words can't convince you that my words are true, just look at facts. You see what I am now. And, oh, what I used to be! I was loved no less than you are now; I devoted myself to just one man—and he, oh well, when age came on and changed the colour of this head of mine, he left me, deserted me. That will be your ease, too, I fancy.

/. (aside) It's all I can do to keep from flying at her eyes, the fiend!

He spent his own money to set me free, just me, and just for himself. I feel I'm only doing what I ought in devoting myself to him, and just him.

THE HAUNTED HOUSE

l. (aside) Ye immortal gods! Now, isn't she a sweet, pure-hearted creature? By Jove, I did a good job, and it's glad I am to be a ruined man for her sake!

My goodness! Such a little stupid!

Why?

To care about his loving you.

"Care"? For mercy's sake, why shouldn't I?

You're free now. Now you've got what you were after. As for him, unless he still goes on loving you, he'll have thrown away all that money he paid out for you.

l. (aside) By gad, I'll be damned if I don't kill that woman off by inches! Trying to spoil the girl with her vile suggestions, the old bawdyslut!

I can't ever be grateful enough to him, never! And don't you try to make me think any less of him, Scapha.

But see you consider this one thing—if you give yourself up to him entirely now while you're young, you'll rue it bitterly when you're old.

l. (aside) Oh, if I could change to a quinsy, so as to catch that viper in the throat and kill her off, the foul old fiend!

I ought to feel the same affection, now I've obtained my wish, as I did when I used to pet him before I'd won it.

l. (aside) May Heaven work its will on me, if I don't set you free all over again for saying that—and also, if I don't kill Scapha!

THE HAUNTED HOUSE

Well, if you have a guarantee that he'll be food for you eternally and be your own fond lover all your life, the thing for you is to put yourself at his sole disposal and—(almost venomous) fix up your hair for the wedding.<sup>1</sup>

One is generally able to get money according to the sort of name one has. If I always keep a good name, I shall be rich enough.

l. (aside) By Jove, now, even if it comes to selling my father, sold he shall be, much sooner than I'll let you come to want or beggary while I'm alive! What'll become of those other men that are in love with you?

They'll love me all the more when they see that I show gratitude to my benefactor.

l. (aside, ecstatic) Oh, for news now of my father's demise, so that I could disinherit myself of all I owned and make her my heir!

All he has, anyhow, will soon be squandered—eating and drinking day and night, with no one giving a thought to thrift. Downright stuffing, I call it.

l. (aside) Thrift? By gad, I'll try it, for a fact, and try it first on you. Not a thing to eat or drink shall you have in my house for the next ten days!

(firmly) If you wish to say something nice about him, do so. But if you go on abusing him, I swear you shall have a whipping directly!

l. (aside) By gad, if I had made an offering of an ox to Jove Almighty with the money I paid out for her, it would never have been so well invested. You can see she loves me with all her soul. Oh, I'm a fine one! I've freed an advocate to plead my case for me.

THE HAUNTED HOUSE

I see you feel there's no one fit to hold a candle to Philolaches. So I'd rather agree with you, and not get whipped on his account.<sup>1</sup>

Give me the mirror and the jewel casket. Quick, Scapha! I must be all got up when Philolaches comes, (reminiscently) the darling! (takes mirror and arranges her hair)

It's the woman that's dubious about her looks and years must use a mirror. What do you need of a mirror, when you yourself are the very mirror's own best mirror?

l. (aside) You shan't make such a pretty speech for nothing, Scapha. I'll certainly give you something for your very own—Philematium dear.

Is everything all right—won't you look? Is my hair put up prettily enough?

When you're pretty yourself, you can be positive your hair is pretty.

l. (aside) Bah! Can you mention anything worse than that woman there? Now she's all compliments, the slut! A moment ago she was all contradictions!

l. Give me the ceruse.

Ceruse, indeed! What for?

To rub on my cheeks.

You might as well expect to whiten ivory with ink.

l. (aside) Very neat—ivory and ink! Bravo, Scapha! Congratulations!

l. Well, then, give me the rouge.

No, I won't. Lots of sense you show! You want to daub fresh paint on a perfectly lovely picture?

THE HAUNTED HOUSE

Girls of your age shouldn't touch a bit of colour, or ceruse, Melian cream, or any other cosmetic.

Here, then, take the mirror. (holds it close to her face for a final examination and then hands it to Scapha) ol. (aside) Blast it! She kissed the mirror! Oh for a stone to smash that mirror's head with!

Take a towel and wipe your hands.

For merey's sake, why?

(grinning) Now that you've held the mirror, I'm afraid your hand will smell of silver, and that's something Philolaehes mustn't suspect you of taking from anyone.

ol. (aside) I don't believe I ever saw a sharper old bawd. Pretty neat—that idea about the mirror, and canny, too, the sinner!

Surely I should put on a little perfume, don't you think?

Most certainly not.

Why?

Goodness me! Because a woman smells right when she doesn't smell at all. Why, those ancient dames that pickle themselves in perfume, made-up crones without any teeth, that try to paint away their bodily blemishes—as soon as their perfume and perspiration come together, they smell the same as when a cook combines a lot of sauces. You can't tell what they smell of, but you're sure of one thing—they smell vile.

ol. (aside) Oh, she's a mighty wise one! She's up to it all! There never was a wiser old wench!

(turning to the audience) You know she's right, most of you who have old dames at home for wives, that bought you with their dowries.

THE HAUNTED HOUSE

(after a few final adjustments) Here now, Scapha, do look over my jewellery, and gown, and see if it really is becoming.

That shouldn't be any concern of mine.

Whose should it be, then, for goodness' sake?

Well—Philolaches'!<sup>1</sup> So that he won't buy anything except what he thinks suits himself. But what's the use of showing off to him, unmasked, something he doesn't want to own?<sup>2</sup> A pretty girl is prettier undressed than dressed in purple.<sup>3</sup> For then she's overdressed, if she's really pretty.

l. (aside) I'm keeping hands off too long. (stepping up to them) What's going on here?

(in his arms) I'm getting all dressed up to please you.

l. (ogling her) Oh, you're dressed enough! (to Scapha, gruffly) Be off inside with you, and take this (with a wave at the toilet accessories) frippery along. [EXIT Scapha.

But, my darling, my own Philematium, I'd love to have some wine with you.

Oh, and I with you! For whatever you like, I like, my (snuggling closer) darling.

l. (rapturous) Ah! That word would come cheap at a hundred pounds.

(smiling up at him) Well, give me fifty, there's a dear! I want you to buy at a bargain.

l. (lightly) You owe me fifty still—tot it up, dear, if you like. It was a hundred and fifty I paid for you.

<sup>3</sup> Vv. 290-291: And then it's no use being nicely dressed if one's ways aren't nice. Disgusting ways soil a pretty dress more than mud.

THE HAUNTED HOUSE

(hurt) Why do you throw that at me?

I throw it at you? When I long to have it thrown up to my own self? Why, I've not made such a fine investment anywhere for many a day.

(happily) And I'm sure I couldn't do anything better with my love than give it to you, dear.

Then our books balance perfectly—you love me, and I love you, and both of us think that's just as it should be. (looking, rapt, to heaven) And may those who rejoice with us rejoice forever at their own unending joys. And those who envy us—may absolutely no one ever envy them for their blessings.

(drawing him to a couch) Come, then, take your place.

(to a slave within) Some water for our hands, boy! Put a small table here. And the dice—look for them. (to Philolaches) Would you like some perfume?

(his arm*around her on the couch) What for? With essence of myrrh beside me!

ENTER SLAVE WITH TABLE, ETC.

(looking down the street) Is that my chum, though, rolling up here with his mistress? It is. It's Callidamates, and that's his mistress with him. Hurray, dearest! Look! The regiment's assembling! Our pals are coming for part of the plunder!

4. ENTER Callidamates, VERY DRUNK, WITH Delphium
AND A SLAVE.

(to slave) I . . . want you to . . . come to . . . Philolaches' . . . and get me . . . and . . . come in time. Mind . . . now! There! You've . . . got your . . . orders. [EXIT SLAVE.

(to Delphium) Would you . . . say I . . . ma-ma-mat all drunk? (stops for her to survey him)

The same as usual. (pulling him along) You're delaying yourself. Here's (pointing to the house of Philolaches) the place to go to.

(leering at her) I'll hug . . . you, and you . . . hug me, d'ye . . . want to?

(patient) Very well, if you'd enjoy it.

(embracing her) You sweet . . . thing! Take my . . . arm, that's a . . . dear. (lurches)

See you don't fall. (getting a firmer hold on him) Stand up!

My o-o-only one! I'm your . . . baby . . . boy, honey dear!

Yes, but do see you don't sit down in the street, before we can get to that nice, soft couch where we can lie down together.

(sleepily) Let, let . . . me fall.

(struggling to keep him up) I'll certainly let this fall. (dropping a parcel she carries and pulling him to his feet) If you fall, you shan't fall without my falling with you.

Somebody'll find us lying here and . . . pick us both . . . up, after a . . . while.

The man is drunk!

(thinking) I know. It just . . . came to me.

Of . . . course! I'm going . . . home to have . . . something to drink.

No, no, you're going there. (pointing to the house of Philolaches) (gravely sighting along her finger) Now I remember!

(to Philematium) You don't mind if I go meet them, do you, precious? I think more of him than any friend I have. (gets up and goes toward pair) I'll be back in a minute.

(tenderly) That minute will be hours to me!

(bawling in the direction of Philolaches's house)

Anyone at . . . home?

Here we are!

(embracing him) Fine! Philolaches! How . . . are you? You're the . . . best friend I've . . . got in the world!

(steering him to the couch) God bless your soul! Here's your place, old fellow! Where do you hail from?

(sinking down on the couch) Where you get . . . well drunk.

Come, come, Delphium dear, why don't you settle down? (places her beside Callidamates. To the slave) Give him a drink.

(after draining the glass) Now I'm . . . going to sleep. (flops back on the couch)

(to Delphium, smiling) Nothing new or strange for him, is it?

What shall I do with him now?

Oh, leave him by himself just as he is, my dear.

ACTVS II

Tr. Iuppiter supremus summis opibus atque industriis me periisse et Philolachetem cupit erilem filium.
occidit Spes nostra, nusquam stabulum est Confidentiae,
nec Salus nobis saluti iam esse, si cupiat, potest:
ita mali, maeroris montem maximum ad portum modo conspicatus sum: erus advenit peregre, periit Tranio.
ecquis homo est, qui facere argenti cupiat aliquan-tum lucri,
qui hodie sese excruciiari meam vicem possit pati?
ubi sunt isti plagipatidae, ferritribaces viri, vel isti qui hosticas trium nummum causa subeunt sub falas,
ubi quinīs aut denis hastis corpus transfigi solet?
ego dabo ei talentum, prius qui in crucem ex-cucurrerit;
sed ea lege, ut offigantur bis pedes, bis braccia.
ubi id erit factum, a me argentum petito praesentarium.
sed ego—sumne infelix, qui non curro curriculo domum?

Philol. Adest adest opsonium. eccum Tranio a portu redit.

Philol. Quid et ego et tu?

THE HAUNTED HOUSE

(to slave) Come, boy! Quick! Take the tankard round meantime—Delphium first.

ACT II

ENTER Tranio IN GRIM CONSTERNATION. STOPS AT SOME DISTANCE FROM THE HOUSE AND REARRANGES A TOPPLING LOAD OF PARCELS.

(to himself) Jove Almighty's after us, with all his might and main, bound he'll ruin me and young master Philolaches for good! Our Hope is dead; Confidence can't find standing room; not even Salvation herself can save us now, no matter if she yearned to! Such a mountain mass of misfortune and misery as I just now set eyes on at the harbour! Master's back from abroad, and Tranio's bound for ruin! (to the audience) Anyone anxious to make a bit of easy money by taking my place at an execution? Where are those valiant, fetter-offrictionacious young rawhides, or those bold chaps that for four bob will rush the ramparts of the foe where you generally get five or ten spears stuek through you at once? I'll give two hundred pounds to the first man to charge my cross and take it—on condition his legs and arms are double-nailed, that is. When this is attended to, he can claim the money from me cash down. But I—ain't I a cursed fool not to race off home on the run? (hurries on towards the house)

(seeing him) Here we are! Here are the provisions! Look! Tranio's back from the harbour! Philolaches!

What is it?

Both of us are——

(nervously) Both of us are what?

THE HAUNTED HOUSE

Done for!

How so?

Your father's here!

(in a panic) What's that you say?

We're dead and buried! Your father's come, I tell you.

Where is he, for heaven's sake?

Here!

Who says so? Who saw him?

I did, I saw him myself, I tell you.

(desperately) Now where am I?

Well, why the devil are you asking me where you are? You're on that couch.

You saw him your very self?

I myself, yes.

You're positive?

(his contempt and masterfulness rising rapidly) Yes, positive.

It's all up with me, if you're telling the truth!

What should I gain by lying?

(helplessly) What shall I do now?

Have all this truck (with a wave at the party generally) cleared off. Who's that asleep there?

Callidamates.

Wake him up, Delphium.

(prodding him) Callidamates! Callidamates!

Wake up!

(half-sitting up, drowsily) I'm . . . wide awake.

Give me a . . . drink. (drops back again)

(digging at him) Wake up! Philolaches's father's back from abroad!

Hell t' the . . . father.

Healthy father? Indeed he is! And I'm a dead one! More!

(interested) Dead . . . once more? How can . . . that be?

l. Oh, for God's sake, man, get up! My father's come!

(sitting up) Your father's . . . come? Order him to . . . go. What's he . . . mean by . . . coming back here?

l. Oh, what shall I do? This is awful! He'll be here soon and find me drunk, and his house full of revellers and women! Oh, it's an awful business—waiting till thirst has you by the throat before you dig your well! That's my fix—my father back and I just wondering what to do, poor fool!

(who has been meditating) Look at him (pointing to Callidamates), will you? Head down again and gone to sleep! Stir him up!

l. (shaking him and pulling him up) There! Wake up, will you! (shouting) My father, I tell you, will be here in no time!

(staggering to his feet) You don't . . . say so? Your father? (roaring) My . . . pumps! My . . . arms! By gad, I'll . . . kill your father . . . dead in . . . no time:

l. You're wrecking everything!

Do keep still, there's a dear!

(to slaves) Catch hold of him and haul him off inside at once! (resumes his meditations)

(as the slaves drag him in) By the . . . Lord, I'll soon be . . . using you . . . fellows for a . . . chamber pot, unless you . . . give me one.

THE HAUNTED HOUSE

It's all up with me!

Hush, hush! I'm the man to think you up a sedative for all this. Will you be satisfied, if I fix it so that when your father arrives, he'll not only keep out of the house, but take to his heels out of its neighbourhood, too? (to slaves) Inside with you fellows now, yes, and clear away this stuff (indicating the table, etc.), and be quick about it!

Where shall I be?

Where you like best to be—with this girl, with that one.

Suppose we go away from here, then?

(confidently) Not an inch, Delphium! No, and you're not to drink a drop the less inside there because of this.

Oh dear! I'm all a sweat from fear what this smooth talk of yours will end in!

(sternly) Can't you keep cool and do what I tell you?

(cowed) Yes, yes!

First of all, Philematium, you go inside, and you, too, Delphium.

(going) We'll do anything you like, both of us.

[EXEUNT.]

I hope to heaven you will! (to Philolaches, who is gazing anxiously down the street) Here, you! Your attention at once, while I tell you what I want seen to! In the first place, now, have the house all shut up. And mind you don't let anyone breathe a word inside.

(nervously) I'll see to it.

Just as if there wasn't a living soul inside occupying it.

All right, all right!

THE HAUNTED HOUSE

And no one is to answer when the old man knocks at the door.

(shuddering) Anything . . . else?

(thinking) The front door key<sup>1</sup>—have that brought out to me directly. I intend to lock the house up from the outside.

(forlornly) I'm putting myself and my hopes in your hands, Tranio! [EXIT.]

(complacent) It doesn't matter a feather's-weight whether it's patron or client who's the better man. Why, a fellow without a bit of nerve in his chest<sup>2</sup> can make a mess of things easily enough, on the shortest notice. But it takes a mighty smart man to see to it that all the mess that's planned and perpetrated turns out nicely, without landing him in such trouble that he's sorry he's alive. And that's what I'll do—fix it so that all the storm we've raised here will absolutely clear away and quiet down, without bringing us a bit of discomfort.

ENTER A SLAVE FROM THE HOUSE.

But what are you coming out for, Sphaerio?

(showing a key) You'll soon—

(grandly) Very good! You have obeyed orders. He told me to beg you my very best to frighten his father away somehow from coming in upon him.

Well now, you just tell him this—that I shall see to it he does not dare give that dwelling so much as a glance, but cover his head and take to his heels in an awful funk. Come, the key! (takes it)

<sup>1</sup> Laconicam—a key fashioned for locking a door from the outside, rather than from the inside, as was usual.

Inside with you, and lock up! I shall lock up from the outside.

[EXIT Slave, Tranio LOCKS THE DOOR.]

Now let him come! It's a royal send-off I'll give the old chap to-day, while he's alive and with us—which is more than he'll ever get when he dies, I'm thinking. I'll just drop back from the door (stands in the alley by Simo's house) and keep a look out, from over here, for my chance to load the old boy up when he arrives.

2. ENTER Theopropides, FOLLOWED BY SLAVES WITH HIS LUGGAGE.

(dryly) I am deeply grateful to you, Neptune, for letting me get away home with a bit of life left in me. But if you ever hear of my going one foot's-breadth on the billows after this I give you leave to go straight ahead and do what you wished to do with me this time. Avaunt! Avaunt, now and forevermore! I've trusted you with all I mean to trust you.

(aside) Gad, Neptune, you made a big mistake in letting go such a fine chance!

(approaching his house) Here I am, home from Egypt after three years! And a welcome arrival I'll be to my household, I fancy.

(aside) An arrival we could welcome much more, by gad, would be that of a man with news of your death!

(trying to open the door) But what does this mean? The door locked in broad daylight! I'll knock.

(does so) Hey! Anyone inside? Open up, will you!

(stepping out, with a horrified air) Who's the man who got near our house?

(brusquely) All this time, as you see.

That's splendid, sir!

What ails you folks? Are you crazy?

Eh? How so?

This is how so—here you are strolling around outside, not a mother's son of you minding the house, no one to unlock the door, no one to answer it! I nearly smashed the panels, pounding on it.

(aghast) Oh-h-h! You didn't touch this house, yourself?

(angrily) Touch it? Why shouldn't I? Man alive, I nearly smashed the panels, pounding, I tell you!

You touched that door?

Touched it, yes! And pounded it!

(almost collapsing) Oh, my God!

(mystified) What's the matter?

Lord, Lord, what an awful act!

Eh? What d'ye mean?

Oh, it's beyond expression—the dreadful thing you've done, the awful thing!

What's all this?

Run, for God's sake, and get away from the house! (Theopropides, somewhat awed, backs away from the door) Run! This way! Nearer to me!

Run! (Theopropides joins him hurriedly) You actually touched that door?

THE HAUNTED HOUSE

The master here overpowered his guest and (suddenly clutching Theopropides's arm, to his discomfiture) murdered him! That fellow who sold this house to you, in my opinion!

Murdered him?

And robbed him of his gold—his guest!—and buried him—his guest!—here, here in the house!

What makes you suspect that all this happened?

Listen, and I'll tell you. (after peering about, warily) One night when your son had dined out, after he got back home from the dinner, we all went to bed. We fell fast asleep. I happened to have forgotten to put out the light. And then, all of a sudden, he let out a frightful (loudly) yell!

(with a start) Who? Who? Not my son?

Sh-h-h! Keep quiet! Just listen! He said that in his sleep that . . . dead man came to him!

(regaining some of his composure) Oh, so it was in his sleep, then?

Yes. But just you listen! He said that . . . dead man spoke these words to him.

In his sleep?

(irate) It is odd he didn't speak to him when he was wide awake, considering he's been killed these sixty years! You are an awful dunderhead at times, Theopropides!

(meekly, impressed by Tranio's tremendous earnestness) I'll say nothing.

But hear what that dead man told him in his sleep, sir—(melodramatically) "Diapontius am I, a guest from o'er the sea. Here do I abide, this house is the abode allotted me. For Orcus hath denied me entrance into Acheron, I having been cut off before my time. I trusted, and I was betrayed. Here was I murdered by my accursed host, for the sake of gold, and in this very house did he give me secret, unhallowed burial. Hence with you now! Accursed is this house, 'tis a defiled abode!" Oh, sir, I could hardly tell you in a year all the . . . weird things that have happened here!

THE HAUNTED HOUSE

(listening, terrified) Sh-sh-h!

(his eyes bulging) For God's sake, what was it?

(backing away) A . . . creaking of the . . . door!

(sidling up to the house and calling to the ghost placatingly) He did it! (pointing to Theopropides)

He knocked!

(quaking) Oh, I haven't a drop of blood in my body! Dead men are after me, to take me down to Acheron alive!

(aside) Damnation! Those people in there will soon be dishing this whole performance! Lord! I'm horribly afraid he'll catch me at it!

What's that you're muttering there? (comes nearer)

(yelling) Get away from the door! Run, for God's sake, run!

(backing away, but suspicious) Run where? You run, too!

I have nothing to fear. I am at peace with the dead.

within Hey, Tranio!

(to the ghost, for the benefit of all parties) You won't call me, if you have any sense! (Theopropides retreats rapidly) I haven't done anything wrong!

It wasn't I knocked at that door!

within I want to know—

(loudly) Not one word!

THE HAUNTED HOUSE

Tell me why you're breaking off the conversation.
(more loudly) Be gone! Be gone!

What possesses you, Tranio? Who are you saying all that to?

(turning in surprise) For heaven's sake, it wasn't you that called, sir? Lord love me, I thought that dead man was getting savage because you knocked at the door! (listens intently, Theopropides watching him with renewed nervousness; then in sudden alarm) But you (Theopropides gives a start)—you're still standing here? Not minding what I say?

What shall I do?

Run! Cover your head! And don't look back!
(scared, but somewhat suspicious) Why don't you run, yourself?

I am at peace with the dead.

I see. But how about a moment ago? Why were you in such a panic then?

(still listening at the door) Don't bother about me, sir, I tell you. I'll look out for myself, all right.
(listens more intently; a look of horror comes over his face; he leaps into the air with a screech) Run, run, for all you're worth, as you began! And call on Hercules!

(bolting, his nerves shattered) Oh, Hercules, I call on thee! [EXIT.

And so do I—to make short shrift of you to-day, old chap! Good Lord deliver us, but I've done a fine day's work!

ACT III

ENTER Misargyrides, IN LOW SPIRITS.

Harder times in the loan business than we've had this year I never did see. Down town all day long from morning till night, and I can't put out two bob!

THE HAUNTED HOUSE

(aside, seeing him) Oh, my Lord! I'm in a most everlasting mess now, and no mistake! There's the moneylender that let us have the cash to buy the girl and run the house with! Everything's out, unless I get the start and hit on some way of keeping the old man in the dark. I'll go meet the fellow. (glancing down the street in the opposite direction and seeing Theopropides) But what on earth is he coming home so soon for? I'm afraid he's got wind of this! I'll up and at him! (going to meet him) But, oh dear, I am in an awful funk! There's nothing more awful than a guilty conscience—and mine does bother me! Well, no matter what's up, I'll keep on complicating things. That's what the case demands.

ENTER Theopropides.

Where have you been, sir?

(scrutinizing him) I have met the man I bought this house from.

You didn't tell him anything about what I told you, sir?

Indeed I did, by Jove,—everything.

(in a low tone) Oh dear, this is the very devil! I'm afraid my scheme has gone to smash everlastingly!

What are you saying to yourself?

(hurriedly) Why, nothing. But tell me, sir, did you tell him, really?

I did, I say—everything from beginning to end.

And he confesses about the guest, eh?

He does not. He denies it utterly.

The villain denies it?

Denies it up and down, I say.

Think again, sir! Doesn't he admit it?

TITUS MACCIUS PLAUTUS

h. Dicam si confessus sit.
r. quid nunc faciundum censes?

r. Numquam potuisti mihi magis opportunus advenire quam advenis.

is. Quid est?

r. Concede huc.

THE HAUNTED HOUSE

I should tell you, if he did. What do you think should be done now?

(indignant) What do I think! For God's sake, sir, get some arbitrator, you and he! (aside) But see you get one who will take my word, (aloud) and you'll win as easily as a fox eats a pear.

(seeing him) Aha! There's Philolaches' servant, Tranio! Neither principal nor interest do I get from those two!

(as Tranio edges toward Misargyrides) Whither away?

(stopping) Oh, nowhither. (aside) Lord! but I'm an unlucky rascal! It was an evil star I was born under! He'll catch me now while the old man's here! Lord! but I am an unlucky chap—the way they're hounding me right and left! But I'll board him first. (advances toward Misargyrides)

(aside, pleased) He's coming up to me! Saved! I have hopes of my money.

(aside) See him grin! He's fooling himself.

(aloud) A very good day to you, Misargyrides.

Good day! How about the money?

Kindly get out, you beast! The minute I get in range, you open fire on me!

(disappointedly, seeing no sign of a wallet) There's nothing in this fellow.

There's second sight in this fellow, that is sure.

Come, drop that chaffing, will you?

Come, tell me what you want.

Where is Philolaches?

(confidentially) You could not have turned up at a better time than this. (tries to lead him further away from Theopropides)

(resisting) How so?

Step over here. (pulls him)

THE HAUNTED HOUSE

(more loudly) Why don't I get my interest?
I know you have a good voice. Don't strain it, yelling.

By the Lord, I certainly will yell!

(placatingly) Oh, now, now! Do oblige me.

How d'ye want me to oblige you?

Go away, go home, there's a good fellow.

(snorting) Go away?

And come back here about noon.

(hopefully) I'll get my interest, then?

(pushing him along) You'll get it. Go away.

(rebellious) Why should I keep chasing back here, expending all that effort, or wasting it? Suppose
I stay here till noon instead?

No, no! Go on home! I'm telling you the truth. I swear I am! Only do go away!

See here, you pay me my interest! Why all this trifling?

(sarcastically) Splendid, by Jove! You certainly —(pleadingly) do go away now, do listen to me!

(barling) By Jove, I'll denounce him publicly this minute!

Fine! Make it loud! You're really happy, now you're yelling!

I want what's mine! Day after day now you've fooled me this way! If I bother you, pay me my money—and I'll be gone! You can shut me up tight with just one word.

(as if ready to pay) Here, take your principal.

No, no, the interest! I want that first!

What is that, you vile old reprobate? Did you come here to spread yourself? Do your worst.

He will pay you nothing, he owes you nothing.

Owes me nothing?

Not as much as a granule can you get out of him.

THE HAUNTED HOUSE

You are not afraid he will leave the country, are you, all because of your interest, when you can have the principal at once?

I'm not after the principal, I tell you! You've got to pay me that interest first!

Don't bother me. No one will pay you, do what you like. You are the only moneylender alive, I suppose!

My interest! Give me my interest! Give me my interest, you two! Are you going to pay me my interest this minute? Am I to get my interest?

Interest, interest everywhere! Upon my soul, the only word he knows is "interest!" Off with you! I do believe I never saw a more disgusting beast than you.

You don't scare me off now with talk like that, not on your life!

(who has been surveying them, aside) This is pretty hot! I'm getting well singed, even at this distance. (advances, calling to Tranio) What on earth is that interest the fellow's after?

(to Misargyrides, hurriedly) See! There's his father, just back from abroad! He'll pay you your interest and principal, both. (attempting to push him off) Don't try to make any more trouble for us. Just see if he puts you off.

(holding his ground) Well, if anything is paid me, I'll just take it along.

(coming up, to Tranio) Answer me!

What is it, sir?

Who is that fellow? What is he after? What does he mean by dunning my son Philolaches this way and reviling you to your face? What's owing him?

THE HAUNTED HOUSE

Oh, for the love of heaven, sir, tell us to throw that money in his face, the filthy beast!

Tell you——?

Tell us to pound his face in with the money, will you, sir?

(grinning) I won't be bothered a bit by pounds of money.

D'ye hear him? By the Lord, now! Isn't he just the sort to be a moneylender, the worst pack of rascals living?

(sternly) I am not concerned with who he is, or what he is, or where he's from. What I want to be told, what I'm anxious to know, is what that money is.

(floundering) It's—well, Philolaches owes him a little something.

How little?

About—er—two hundred pounds. Of course you surely can't think that's much, sir, surely.

(more sternly) It's a "little something," indeed! Beside, there's interest due to him, too, I understand.

Two hundred and twenty pounds, sir, altogether, principal and interest, both.

Exactly! I'm not claiming any more.

(who is casting about for an inspiration) By gad, I just wish you would claim one penny more! (to Theopropides) Tell him you'll pay him, sir, and get rid of him.

Tell him I'll pay him?

Tell him, sir.

I?

You yourself, sir. Go on, tell him. Listen to me, sir. Come, come, sir, promise him, I say. I authorize it, myself.

THE HAUNTED HOUSE

Answer me—what has become of this money?

Oh, it's secure.

Well, secure it yourselves, then, if it's secure.

(the inspiration arriving) Your son has bought a house, sir.

A house?

A house.

(growing pleased) Ah, that lad's capital! A chip of the old block! Quite a business man already!

A house, you say?

Yes, sir, a house! D'ye know what kind of a house, though?

How should I?

(admiringly) Whew-w-w!

What about it?

Oh, don't ask me, sir!

Eh? Why not?

It would dazzle a mirror, sir! Simply stunning!

Bless my soul, that's fine! Er—how much did it cost him?

Three hundred pounds, sir,—times the sum of you and me.<sup>1</sup> But this two hundred was in part payment. And he got the money from this fellow. (indicating Misargyrides) Is it all clear, now, sir? You see, after this house turned out as I told you, he bought himself another at once.

Bless my soul, well done!

Hey there! It's getting nigh noon!

(outraged) For mercy's sake, pay him off, sir, or he'll splutter the life out of us!

(to Misargyrides, with dignity) You are to deal with me, young man.

You mean I'm to look to you for my money?

Yes, look for it to-morrow.

THE HAUNTED HOUSE

(going) I'm off—well off, if I get it to-morrow.

[EXIT.

(aside) Get hanged to-morrow! I hope to heaven he does, the way he all but sent my plans to pot! By gad, you can't find a more disgusting, or less honourable, class of men than these moneylenders! Whereabouts is the house my son bought?

(aside) Aha! Here I am, floored!

Are you going to answer me?

I will, sir. But . . . I'm trying to get hold of the owner's name.

Come on, then, think of it.

(aside) Now what shall I do—unless I pass it off on our next door neighbour here, and say his son bought this house? By Jove, the best kind of lie, so I've heard, is a red hot one. Here goes! I'll give him whatever the gods give me to say!

Well now? Have you thought of it yet?

The devil take that fellow! (aside) Or, better, this fellow! (aloud) It's your next door neighbour's house here that your son bought, sir.

Honestly?

Why, yes, honestly, if you pay the bill, but not if you don't, sir. But didn't he buy in a jolly fine quarter, sir?

"Fine?" The very best! Bless my soul, I'm eager to look over this house! Come, knock at the door and call someone out, Tranio.

(aside) Aha! Here I am, floored again! Now I don't know what to say! Driven up again against the same old rock! What now? By gad, what I'm to do now I can't imagine! I'm caught in the act!

Come, quick! Call someone out and ask him to take us round. (advances toward house) (desperate) Oh, I say, sir! Why, there are ladies here. We've got to see whether they're willing or not, first.

(stopping) Right you are! That's proper. Go inquire, and ask permission. I shall wait outside here, meanwhile, till you get back. (busies himself with a pleased survey of the house from various angles)

(aside, going toward Simo's door) May you be totally damned, old fellow, with the confounded way you bombard my plans from every quarter! (listening and looking) Good! Splendid! Here's the owner of the house, Simo himself, coming out! I'll just step back here, (stations himself in the alley) while I summon my wits to a senatorial session in my chest. An after-luncheon snooze is no good. Lord deliver me! I sneaked away and slipped out. She's in there all boiling over at me, I know that.

Take my own case now—I'm going down to the forum, I am, (glancing back into the house nervously) certainly am, rather than go to bed at home. (to the audience) Good Lord! I don't know what your wives are like—but I do know well enough what a rough life mine lets me in for. I'll find the future rougher than the past. (aside) It's your own truancy that'll make it rough, old boy. There'll be nothing for you to keep laying up to Heaven; the only right and proper thing for you to do is to lay into yourself. Now's the time for me to have a word with the old fellow. (an idea strikes him) This gets him! I've found a way to take him in! I'll decoy him and duck all damage myself. Here goes! That was living, you should say, sir. That's all over for us, now, everything at once.

Why, how's that?

We're a total wreck, Simo, the whole lot of us.

Don't talk like that! Everything has been going smoothly for you all this time.

Quite right—I'm not denying that. We've certainly had the tiptop life we wanted. But how the wind has failed our ship now, Simo!

What do you mean? In what way?

The very worst!

A ship that was hauled up safe on shore?

Ugh!

What's wrong?

Lord help me! I am a wrecked man!

How so?

Because a ship has come to ram our craft.

Answer me this question first—has your old master got any inkling of those antics?

Not a glimmer, sir.

He hasn't given his son a blowing up?

He's serene as any summer's day, sir. And just now he told me to ask you most urgently to allow him to inspect this house of yours.

(surprised) It is not for sale.

Oh yes, sir, I know that. But the old fellow wants to build women's apartments on to his own house here, and baths, and a walk, and a portico.

Well, what sort of a dream has he had?

It's this way, sir. He wants to get his son married as soon as possible. That's why he wants new women's apartments. And he says some architect or other has praised your house to him as being awfully well built. So now he wants to take it for a model, if you don't mind. He's all the keener, you see, sir, for taking it as a model because he has heard you're so wonderfully shaded there during the dry summer weather, all day long.

Bless my soul! But the fact is that when it's shady everywhere else, the sun is always here, just the same, from morning till night, all the time. It's forever right at my door, just like a

Come then, move, lead the way!

He does? Why?

He begs me to persuade Philolaches to let him have it back.

(indignant) I think not! Each for himself at harvest time! If we had got the worst of the bargain, there’d have been no backing out of it for us. Get what you can, and keep what you get. A man should keep his heart strings tightly drawn.

(moving on) Now, now, sir, you’re delaying me with your proverbs! Do follow after me.

Certainly. At your service. (they go on to the house).

There’s your gentleman, sir. (to Simo) Here he is! I’ve brought him, sir!

That's a fact.

Well then, sir, don't seem to have the laugh on him or to be over-eager. I shouldn't mention having bought the place.

I see. That's certainly a good suggestion, and one, I think, that shows fine feeling. (to Simo) Well? Go inside, do, and look about at your leisure, just as you see fit.

That's very kind and considerate of you, I'm sure. Oh, you're quite welcome!<sup>1</sup>

(examines the pillars)

Fifteen pounds for the pair of them, besides the freight.

Bless my soul! They're in very much worse condition than I at first supposed!

How's that, sir?

Well, well! Because a worm has been at work on the base of both of them.

They (slyly indicating the old gentlemen) were felled out of season, I fancy; that's what ails them. They're all right enough even now, though, with the help of a coat of tar. It wasn't any slopswilling foreigner did this job, I tell you, sir. Do you see those door joints?

Yes, indeed.

Look how they (again indicating the old men) sleep together! In position, that's why!

Sleep?

Yes, that is, slip together, I meant to say. You take me, sir?

The more I look at everything, the more I like it all!

Do you see the picture, sir, where one crow is making game of a couple of vultures?

(looking about) Gracious, no, I don't see it.

But I do, sir. Why, the crow is planted between the pair of vultures (casually steps between Simo and Theopropides) and he's pecking at the pair of 'em in turn. For mercy's sake, sir, look this way, toward me, so as to see the crow! (as Theopropides looks vainly in Tranio's direction down the portico)

See it now?

I certainly do not discern any crow there at all.

For when those that stand in awe of nothing, have once earned a thrashing, the course they take is idiotic. They train for racing. But when they're caught they earn and save more welts from whips than they ever could earn and save from tips. Their income grows from almost nothing till they become regular rawhide kings. But personally, my plan is to beware of welts before my back begins to pain me. I feel it desirable to keep a whole skin, as I have hitherto, and debar drubbings. If I only control this article (surveying his pilfering left hand), I'll keep well roofed, and when it's raining welts on the rest of 'em, I won't get soaked. ## THE HAUNTED HOUSE bad. Now you see we've got a housful of slaves as bad as bad can be, that blow in all their savings on their backs. When they're called on to fetch their master home, it's: "I'm not going, don't bother me! I know what your hurry is—itching to be out somewhere! Oh yes, you mule, now you want to be off to pasture!" That's all the thanks I got from them for being dutiful. I left 'em. Here I am, the only one of the whole gang to see master home. To-morrow, when he finds it out, he'll give 'em a morning dose of cattle hide. Oh well, I consider their backs of less consequence than mine. They'll go in for tanning<sup>1</sup> long before I do for roping. (proceeds towards the house of Theopropides)

2. ENTER Pinacium.

Wait, you! Stop where you are, Phaniscus! Look round, won't you?

Don't bother me.

See how stuck up he is, the monkey! Wait where you are, won't you, you filthy parasite?

(halting) How am I a parasite?

Well, I'll tell you how—a dinner would draw you anywhere.

I live for myself, and like to live well. How does that concern you?

You're perky, just because you're master's pet!

La! La! How my eyes burn!

Why?

Too much hot air here.

Oh, you kindly close your mouth, you coiner of counterfeit quips!

(savagely) You can't make me (sweetly) say nasty things to you. Master knows what I am.

If you were sober, you wouldn't say such nasty things.

Am I to mind you when you won't mind me?

(moving on) Well, come along with me to meet master, you riff-raff. And for heaven's sake, drop that sort of talk now!

I will, and take a crack at the door. (pounding on it furiously) Hey! Anyone here to defend this door from assault? Anyone going to open up?

(listens) No one's coming out from here, that's sure! They're just what you'd expect of good-for-nothings! (pounds still more furiously, then listens again) But I must be more careful, or someone may come out and make a mess of me. (they step aside)

I'm delighted, delighted!

You don't think it cost too much?

By gad, I know I never saw a house thrown away anywhere, if this one wasn't now!

So you're quite satisfied, sir?

Quite satisfied? Lord, Lord, man! I'm super-satisfied, and that's a fact!

How about those women's apartments? And the portico?

Awfully fine! Really, I don't think there is a public portico any bigger.

As a matter of fact, sir, I myself, and Philolaches, measured all the public porticoes.

Well, what about it?

It's the longest of all, by a long way.

THE HAUNTED HOUSE

Ye immortal gods! What a lovely bargain! By Jove, if he should come and offer me a cool eighteen hundred pounds for it, cash down, I would never take it.

By Jove, sir, and if you yearn to take it, I'll never let you.

Our money is well invested in such a bargain!

Own up frankly, sir, that it all came of my prompting and persuasion. It was I compelled him to go to a moneylender and borrow the sum we gave him in part payment.

You saved the whole ship! So four hundred pounds are due to him, then?

Not a penny more, sir.

He can have it to-day.

By all means, sir, so that he'll have no excuse to back out. Or you might pay it over to me, and then I'll see he's paid.

(surveying him sharply) Only there must be no catch in it for me, if I should give it to you.

(wounded) Would I ever dare deceive you, sir, in word or deed, even in fun?

And would I ever dare not be on my guard against you, against trusting you with anything?

What? Have I ever tricked you at all, sir, since I've been in your service?

Hm! I have been precious well on my guard. You can thank me and my good sense for your rectitude. I show sufficient wisdom, if I simply guard against you alone.

(aside) I agree with you.

Now be off to the farm, and tell my son that I have arrived.

Anything you say, sir.

THE HAUNTED HOUSE

Tell him to come to the city now along with you, and post haste.

Very well, sir. (aside) Now I'll betake myself to my pals by the back door there. I'll tell 'em how things here have calmed down and how I cleared him out of the place. [EXIT.]

(listening again at Theopropides's door) Well! Not a sound from the party in here, as there always has been! (Pinacium joins him) And I don't hear any music girl singing, or anyone else, either.

(aside, seeing them) What does that mean? What are those fellows after at my house? What do they want? What are they looking in for?

I'll keep on dinging at the door. ( banging it) Hey, unlock! Hey, Tranio, open up, will you?

(aside) What sort of show is this?

Open up, will you! We've come for our master, Callidamates!

(advancing, but stopping at a safe distance) Hey, you boys! What are you up to there? What are you battering down that house for?

(after another series of bangs) Hey, you old man! What are you asking questions for, about what's none of your business?

None of my business?

Not unless you chance to be a newly elected prefect, to poke and pry and look and listen in other folks' affairs.

That house you're in front of is my affair.

What's that? (to Pinacium) Philolaches hasn't sold the house now? Or is that old man merely bediddling us?

I am stating the facts. But what is your business here?

THE HAUNTED HOUSE

Your master at a party here ?

That's what I say.

You're joking, boy !

And we've come to get him.

Whom ?

Our master. For mercy's sake, how many times must you be told ?

But, boy, no one lives here ! (scrutinizing him) Yes, you do seem to be a good lad.

Doesn't young Philolaches live in this house here ?

He did, but he moved out long ago.

The old chap's surely ripe for the asylum.

You're making a bad mistake, father. For unless he has moved out to-day, or yesterday, I know for certain he does live here.

Why, nobody has lived here for six months now.

You're dreaming !

I ?

Yes, you !

Don't be impertinent, you ! Let me talk with him (indicating Phaniscus). No one lives here.

Well, he does, that's sure, for yesterday and the day before, and the day before, and the day before, and the day before—why, from the very time his father went abroad there's never been a three-days' stretch without a spree.

(troubled) What's that you say ?

That there hasn't been a three-days' halt in the eating and drinking and wenching, in leading the gay life and bringing in lute girls and flute girls.

(more troubled) Who was doing all this ?

Philolaches.

What Philolaches ?

- m. In this house, yes.
Boy, boy, you're more muddle-headed than you look! Just consider now whether you didn't happen to drop in somewhere for a snack and drink a wee bit too much.
- m. (warmly) What's that?
I say it just to warn you from coming to the wrong house by mistake.
- m. I know the way I should go, and I know the place I've come to. Philolaches lives here. His father's Theopropides. And after his father went away on a trading trip, he set free a music girl.

- m. Just so—and her name's Philematium.
(feverishly) How much?
- m. Three thousand.
(appalled) Pounds?
- m. Non, par dieu! Shillings.
He set her free?

You say a hundred and fifty pounds were spent for a mistress for Philolaches?

gad! But unless you are otherwise engaged, give me your attention.

By all means.

You received two hundred pounds from Philolaches, as I understand.

Never a penny, as I understand.

Well, from my slave, Tranio?

Lord! Much less from him.

The money that he gave you in part payment?

What are you dreaming about?

I? You, you mean. You're hoping you can get out of it by that sort of shuffling.

Indeed! Get out of what?

The deal my son made with you in my absence.

So he made a deal with me here while you were away? What deal, pray? On what date?

I owe you four hundred pounds.

The devil you do! Well, if you do 'owe it, hand it over. A promise must be kept. Don't expect to evade it.

I certainly shall not deny the debt, and I shall pay it. But you—mind you don't deny having received two hundred pounds from us.

For heaven's sake, look me in the eye and answer me this—why did your son, as you say, owe me this two hundred pounds?

This is why. He bought your house from you, so Tranio told me, for six hundred pounds.

Bought my house from me? He did say you wanted your son to marry, and therefore wanted to enlarge your own house here.

I wanted to enlarge my house?

So he told me.

THE HAUNTED HOUSE

other folks do when affairs look alarming and muddled—they go on muddling 'em still more, so that they can't be settled at all. For I'm well enough aware that this can't possibly be kept from the old man now. There's not another friend<sup>1</sup> . . . or . . . for the sake of . . . the man who . . . at the same time to master. I'll preoccupy the ground, forestall 'em, and strike a treaty. But I'm delaying myself. (moves on, then stops, listening) Eh? What's this creaking of our neighbour's door?

ENTER Theopropides INTO Simo's DOORWAY.

Oho! It's my master? I'd like to sample his conversation. (steps back into the alley)

(to slaves within) Stand there where you are, just inside, ready to spring out the second I call. Then, quick! Clap on the handcuffs! (coming out) I'll wait for that funnyfooler of mine in front of the house, and sure as I'm alive, I'll soon make his hide look funny!

(aside) The cat's out! Now, Tranio, you had better see what to do.

I must play him cleverly and artfully when he arrives. I won't show him the hook all at once, but let out line gradually. I'll pretend not to know a thing about the matter.

(aside) Oh, such a slyboots! You cannot name a cleverer chap than he is in all Athens. Why, that chap is no more to be bamboozled by anyone than a—lump of rock. I'll up and have at him!

(advances)

(not seeing him) Now I should like him to come along!

THE HAUNTED HOUSE

(aloud) Well, well, sir, if it's me you're looking for, here I am, face to face with you.

Bravo, Tranio. How goes it?

The farmers come from the farm, sir. Philolaches will arrive shortly.

And an opportune arrival for me, by Jove! This neighbour of ours, in my opinion, is a bold, bad man.

How so, sir?

Because he denies knowing you people.

Denies it?

And denies your ever having given him a single penny.

Oh, get out, sir! You're fooling me! I don't believe he denies it.

What now?

I know—now you're joking. Good Lord! Of course he doesn't deny it!

You're wrong. I swear he does deny it, positively, as well as having sold this house to Philolaches.

Now, now, sir! You don't mean to say he denied being given the money?

Man alive, he agreed to take oath, if I wished, that he had neither sold this house nor been given the money.<sup>1</sup> . . . That is the very thing I said to him.

What did he say?

He agreed to give me all his slaves for cross examination.<sup>2</sup>

Bosh! Never a one will he give, by gad!

Oh, yes he will.

Come on, sir, go to court with him. Let me find him. (makes off)

THE HAUNTED HOUSE

Wait! (Tranio stops) I'll try his slaves, I think.
(pauses, as if debating the question) Yes, that's what I'll do.

(edging over toward the altar in front of Simo's house)
No, no, sir! You bring the fellow to me. Or else order your son to make formal demand for the house from him.

No, no! First I want to take his slaves for cross examination.

(close to the altar) The very thing, by gad, I do believe!

(very guilelessly) Well then, what if I should call them out?

(with a knowing grin) You should have done that earlier! Meanwhile, I'll just occupy this altar.

(seats himself upon it jauntily)

(trying to hide his discomfiture) Why so?

You have no sense, sir. Why, so that the slaves he gives you to cross-examine can't take refuge at it. I'll keep guard for you here and prevent the examination from falling through.

(as gently as possible) Get up!

Oh no, sir!

Don't occupy the altar, for heaven's sake!

Why not?

I'll tell you. (hesitates) Why, . . . because . . . that's (inspired) just what I most want—for them to take refuge there! Let them! Then it will be all the easier for me to get the judge to award me damages.

You follow your first plan, sir. Why go on sowing trouble for yourself? Don't you know how ticklish a thing it is to go before a judge, sir?

Get up and come here, then. There's something I want your advice on.

(making himself more comfortable) Well, I can give my advice from here, just as I am. I'm a whole lot wiser sitting down. Besides, advice is more reliable coming from a holy place.

Get up! No nonsense! Come, look me in the face. (does his best to put on a kindly expression)

(chuckling) I have, already. (looks at him)

(genially) You see?

I do. (chuckling again) If a third man came between us, he'd die of starvation.

How is that?

(breaking into a guffaw) Because there'd be no pickings for him. We're both so devilish sly!

Oh, damnation!

What ails you?

You bamboozled me!

Really? How?

You cleaned me out in fine fashion!

(surveying Theopropides's nose) Do please see if I did a good job, sir. No mucus running, is there?

Oh, no! You cleaned out all the brains from my cranium! I tell you, I've uncovered all your rascality from the roots up; yes, by Jove, and not only from the roots up, but from the roots down.

Well, I'll never accommodate you by leaving this place unless I like, you can count on that.

I'll soon have you in a circle of firewood and flames, you gallowsbird!

I wouldn't. Folks find me tastier boiled than baked.

By the Lord, I'll make an example of you!

Approving of me, you want to set me up for an example, eh?

Tell me this: what sort of a son did I leave here, when I went away?

(to himself, drowsily) After I'd buried my souse in slumber and slept it all off, Philolaches told me about his father being back from abroad and how his slave made a fool of him when he arrived. Said he was afraid to up and face his father. So now I've been selected as sole spokesman from our fraternity to make his peace for him with the old gentleman. (sees Theopropides) And there he is! Splendid! (rushes up and grasps his hand) Well, well, sir! And it's glad I am to see you well, on your return from abroad, Theopropides! You must have dinner with me to-day! Do!

(stiffly) Heaven bless you, Callidamates. As for the dinner, no, thanks.

Why won't you come, sir?

(cheerily) Accept. I'll go in your place, if you don't care about it.

Still jeering, are you, you whipstock?

Just because I offer to go to dinner in your place?

Well, you won't go! I'll have you carried, as you've deserved—to a cross.

Oh, now, now, sir! drop all that and say you'll come to me for dinner!

(to Theopropides) Why don't you speak up?

THE HAUNTED HOUSE

A man without any brains came along, and scared me half to death. (to Theopropides) Now state what I've done. Here's an arbitrator (indicating Callidamates) for both parties now. Come on, present your case.

(struggling with his emotions) I say you corrupted my son.

(easily) Just you listen to me. I admit he caroused, set his mistress free, while you were gone, got money at interest—and got rid of it, I don't mind adding. Has he done anything different than (with a wave toward Callidamates) sons of the best families do?

Well, well! I must look out for you, with that wily, wily tongue of yours!

(to Tranio) Come now, let me judge the case. Get up! I am the man to sit there.

By all means! Take the case in your own hands. (as Callidamates perches himself on the altar, crowding him off) I say! This is a case of being taken in!

(aside to Callidamates) See that I have nothing to be afraid of, and do my fearing for me, yourself!

The most galling thing about it all is the way he made a fool of me!

A good job, by gad, and I'm glad I did it. Men of your age ought to have some sense in their hoary heads.

(to Callidamates, and glaring at Tranio) What shall I do now?

Well, if you're a friend of Diphilus<sup>1</sup> or Philemon,<sup>1</sup> tell 'em how your servant gulled you. You'll have furnished 'em with the best dupe scenes on the comic stage.

THE HAUNTED HOUSE

(vainly attempting to wither Tranio) Very well.

(to Theopropides) Sir, you know that I am your son's best friend. He appealed to me, for he was ashamed to appear in your presence, with the things on his conscience he knows you know of. Now I beseech you, sir, do forgive him for his folly and his youth. He's your own son. And you know that young fellows are always playing such pranks. Whatever he did, he did along with the rest of us. We're all at fault. As for the interest, principal, and all the expense of buying the girl, we'll club together and settle for it all at our own expense, not yours.

(especially pleased by the peroration) A more persuasive spokesman than you couldn't have come to me. I'm not angry with him now, I don't hold anything against him. No indeed, let him love, drink, do what he likes, before my very eyes. If he's ashamed of this—ashamed of having spent all that money—I'll call that sufficient chastisement.

He's awfully ashamed, sir.

(yawning obstreperously) Well, he's forgiven—what about me now?

You shall be flogged, strung up and flogged to tatters!

(with mock plaintiveness) And no matter if I am ashamed?

By the Lord, I'll be the death of you, sure as I'm alive!

Make it a general pardon, sir. Come, come, forgive Tranio this offence, for my sake!

There's not another thing I wouldn't sooner grant you than forgo sending that devil down to what his deviltry deserves!

THE HAUNTED HOUSE

Come, come, let him off!

Let that rascal off? (as Tranio strikes an insolent attitude) D'yc see that pose? The criminal!

Tranio! Quiet down, if you have any sense!

And you keep quiet yourself, about this request now. As for him, I'll reduce him to quiescence with a whip.

(casually) Uncalled for, I assure you.

Oh, come now, do grant this favour I ask.

I don't want you to ask it.

There, there now! I beg you!

I don't want you to ask it, I say.

It's no use your not wanting it. Just this one offence—let it pass, I beg you, for my sake.

Why so reluctant? As if I shouldn't be committing another offence by to-morrow! Then you can settle the score handsomely for both of 'em, this one and the next.

(as Theopropides almost smiles) Do let me prevail upon you, sir!

(to Tranio) All right, get out, get out! I'll let you off. But there's the man (indicating Callidamates) to thank for it. (coming forward) Spectators, our play is over. Give us your applause.

ACT I

ENTER Toxilus, IN LOW SPIRITS, FROM THE FORUM.

The lover that first set out on the highways of love with an empty purse went in for harder labours than Hercules. Why, I had rather wrestle with the lion, or the Hydra, or the stag, or the Aetolian boar, or the Stymphalian birds, or Antaeus, than with Love. Such a devil of a time as I'm having, just looking for a loan—and the people I ask, all they know how to answer is "Can't be done."

ENTER Sagaristio, VERY JAUNTY.

(not seeing Toxilus) A slave that wants to slave it to suit his master, by gad, he certainly has to stow away a lot of things in his chest that he thinks will please his master, present and absent, both. Personally, I don't take to slaving it cheerfully, and master doesn't entirely take to me. But yet, just as if I was a sore eye, he can't keep hands off of me, can't keep from giving me commissions and making me the prop of his affairs.

(aside, seeing him) Who's that standing there facing me?

(aside, seeing him) Who's this standing there facing me this way?

(aside) It looks like Sagaristo.

(aside) Why, it's my friend Toxilus. (they study each other doggishly)

And you? Have you been well all this time?

Not particularly.

Oho! That's why you're pale.

(romantically) I have been wounded in the lists of Love! My heart has been transfixed by Cupid's shaft!

(derisively) So slaves here have their love affairs, now, eh?

What can I do? Should I defy the gods? Like the Titans, should I wage war with those I am no match for?

Because master's abroad.

So? Abroad, is he?

(with a wink) If you can endure enjoying yourself, come along; you shall live with me and be regaled right royally.

(in mock consternation) Wow! It makes my shoulders tingle already to hear you talk like that!

(doleful again) But there is one thing does torment me.

Ah? And what is it?

This is the day, the final day, that decides whether my sweetheart's to be free, or stay slaving it in slavery for life.

Well then, what d'ye want now?

(earnestly) You can make me your friend for life.

(unenthusiastically) How?

By giving me sixty pounds to pay for her release, merely a loan that I'll repay directly, in the next three or four days. (seizing his hand) Come on now, do be a good fellow and help me out!

(shaking him off) Where do you get the nerve to dare ask me for such a sum, you cheeky rascal?

Man alive, if my whole carcass was put on sale, it would hardly bring the amount you ask of me.

Why, you might as well look for water from a pumice stone, that's thirsty itself.

(wounded) Is this the way for you to treat me?

How should I treat you?

Can you ask? Why, beg someone for a loan.

could beat 'em at edacity. Yes, and their family surname was Hardheads. It's from them I inherit this profession and ancestral position of mine.

(primly) As for being a professional informer, that likes me not, and it really is unbecoming to go and snap up other people's property without risk to myself, and I disapprove of men that do so. Do I speak plainly? Of course, when a man does it more for the public welfare than for his personal profit, one may be induced to believe him a good and loyal citizen. But (magisterially) I wish to see a law enacted providing that whosoever procures the conviction of a malefactor give half the proceeds to the public treasury. And another provision of this law should be, that in case an informer summons anyone to court, that party may in turn summon him for the same amount, to the end that they may appear before the court on even terms. Were this rule in force, I warrant those fellows who attack other people's property here with their white nets<sup>1</sup> would disappear entirely.

But ain't I an ass to bother about the public welfare, when we've got magistrates whose duty it is to do the bothering? (moving on toward Toxilus's house) Now I'll step inside here for a look at yesterday's leavings, and see if they had a restful night or not, and didn't suffer from fever, and were snugly covered to prevent anyone's creeping up on 'em. Well, you shall eat, for the braziers for your belly are smoking inside there. I have ordered the left-overs to be warmed up.

(eagerly) The ham—it's in order that ham should be served up cold the day after.

So I ordered.

And some fish-sauce?

Pshaw! Can you ask?

Ah, you're a man of taste, extraordinary taste!

But you—do you remember that matter I mentioned to you yesterday?

I remember: lamprey and conger-eel must not be warmed up; for they make much better picking cold. But why do we delay to open battle? All men should eat while yet 'tis morn.

It's almost too much morn.

The business you begin in the morning (smacking his lips) progresses all day long.

(severely) I must ask you to give me your attention. I have explained things to you already, yesterday, and begged you to let me have sixty pounds, as a loan.

I remember, I know—you begged me for it and I didn't have it for you. A parasite with money of his own is a ruined man: he instantly hankers to begin banquetting, to gobble things down at his own expense, if he has the wherewithal. It jolly well behooves a parasite to be a poverty-stricken cynic—let him have a flask, strigil, cup, sandals, cloak, and a purse garrisoned with next to nothing for the sole delectation of his very own household.

I don't want money now. Just give me the use of your daughter.

And bring your daughter all decked out gorgeously in foreign style.

Prithee, whence the deckings?

Oh, get 'em from the stage-manager. He's got to give 'em to you; the aediles<sup>1</sup> have contracted to have them furnished.

ENTER Sophoclidisca FROM HOUSE OF Dordalus ; TURNS TO Lemniselenis WHO STANDS IN DOORWAY.

h. Why, any foolish, forgetful, fat-witted thing could understand, ma'am, after all the times you've said it. Really, I think you must take me for some awful ninny, for some country girl. I do drink wine, to be sure, but I never had the habit of drinking down my orders along with it. I supposed you had tested me and my talents thoroughly enough by now. Why, goodness me, this is the fifth year I've been attending you, and in that time I do believe even a sheep, if it went to school, could have been taught to rattle off its A B C's. But as for you, you haven't even yet learned my capacities in all this time, speaking or silent. Can't you keep still, ma'am? Can't you stop admonishing me? I remember, I understand, I have a perfectly good mind and memory. Mercy me! You're in love and feeling miserable. You're all boiling over inside. Well, I'm the one to calm things down for you.

m. (dejectedly) Oh, the misery of one in love!

[EXIT Lemniselenis INTO HOUSE OF Dordalus.

'ox. Now, now, go along!

- h. (to herself, reluctantly abandoning her examination of the letter) Well, I must hurry up and go where I was sent. (turns toward Toxilus's house)
- eg. (lazily) I'll be going.
- r. Do, by all means. And I'll go home. Attend to this matter carefully, mind. Now run, fly!
- [EXIT Toxilus INTO HOUSE.]
- eg. That's what an ostrich does at the circus. Well, he's gone inside here. (seeing Sophoclidisca) But who's this stepping up to meet me?
- ph. (aside, seeing him and concealing the letter) It's Paegnium, I do believe.
- eg. (aside, putting his left hand, with the letter, behind him) It's that Sophoclidisca, the special maid of the wench I'm sent to.
- ph. (aside) There's not a little rascal around with a worse reputation.
- eg. (aside) I'll have a word with her. (advances)
- ph. (aside) I'll have to wait.
- eg. I must stop at this barrier.
- ph. (aloud, tenderly) Good morning, Paegnium, you little darling! What's the news? How are you?
- eg. (solemnly) Sophoclidisca, God will bless me!
- ph. (smiling) What about me?
- eg. Gad! That's as He sees fit. But if He does as you deserve, He'll hate you, by gad, and give you blazes.
- ph. Do stop being abusive.
- eg. When I talk the way you deserve, it's not abuse but a blessing.
- ph. (trying to be pleasant) What's the news?
- eg. I'm standing here face to face with you and gazing at a she-devil.
- ph. (losing her patience) A worse little imp than you I certainly don't know, no, not one!

You're a botheration!

I like to be. By gad, you'll never screw so much out of me as to prove yourself slyer than I am.

g. Ah, but I fear I can't drive 'em back to their stall; they might wander away.

ox. I'll drive 'em back! Rest easy!

g. (after a pause) I'll trust you, you can take 'em. (looking about cautiously and withdrawing) This way, please. (lifting the wallet from his neck) Inside here is the money you recently begged me for.

ox. What's that?

g. Master sent me to Eretria to buy some oxen. For the present your house here shall be my Eretria.

ox. (ecstatic) Oh, what a wag you are! Yes sir, and I'll get all this money back to you intact in no time. For now I've got my schemes all laid and ready to do the pimp out of this money——

g. So much the better!

ox. —and free the girl and make him give me still more money. (turning toward his house) But come along: I need your services in this matter.

g. Use 'em as you like. [EXEUNT INTO HOUSE.]

ACT III

ENTER Saturio, FOLLOWED BY HIS DAUGHTER IN PERSIAN COSTUME.

at. (solemnly) May Heaven bless this undertaking for me and for you and for my belly, aye, and bring it food for ever and ever, world without end, amen, to surpass its needs, supply and surfeit it! This way, (going toward Toxilus's house) daughter mine, and God be with us! You know the nature of our task, you grasp it, understand it. I have apprised you of all our plans. This is the reason for arraying you as I have. You are to be sold to-day, young lady.

TITUS MACCIUS PLAUTUS

- Vir.* Amabo, mi pater, quamquam libenter escis alienis studes,
tuin ventris causa filiam vendas tuam?
- Sat.* Mirum quin regis Philippi causa aut Attali

- Vir.* Vtrum tu pro ancilla me habes an pro filia?
- Sat.* Vtrum hercle magis in ventris rem videbitur.

- Vir.* Tua istaec potestas est, pater. verum tamen, quamquam res nostrae sunt, pater, pauperculae, modice et modeste meliust vitam vivere ;
nam ad paupertatem si admigrant infamiae,
gravior paupertas fit, fides sublestior.
- Sat.* Enim vero odiosa es.
- Vir.* Non sum, neque me esse arbitror, nam inimici famam non ita ut natas ferunt.

- Sat.* Ferant eantque maximam malam crucem ;

- Vir.* Pater, hominum immortalis est infamia ;
etiam tum vivit, cum esse credas mortuam.
- Sat.* Quid ? metuis, ne te vendam ?
- Vir.* Non metuo, pater.
verum insimulari nolo.
- Sat.* At nequiquam nevis.

- Vir.* Cogita hoc verbum, pater: 360

THE PERSIAN

Daugh. But oh, father dear, no matter how eager you are to enjoy other people's food, would you really sell your own daughter for the sake of your stomach?

at. (gruffly) A likely thing I should sell you for the sake of King Philip or Attalus, rather than for my own sake, when you're mine.

Daugh. (gently) Which do you consider me, father, your maidservant, or your daughter?

at. Whichsoever seems more serviceable to my stomach, by Jove! I have authority over you, I take it, not you over me.

Daugh. Yes, father, you have the right to do it. Just the same, even if we are nothing but poor people, it's better to live modestly and as our means allow; for if on top of poverty comes dishonour, one's poverty becomes a heavier burden and one's good name a byword.

at. See here, girl, you are impertinent.

Daugh. No, I'm not, sir, and I don't hold it impertinent to give my father good advice, young though I am. I know this—enemies don't carry about a scandalous tale in its original form.

at. Let 'em carry it and go plump to the devil! I no more care for all the enmity there is than for an empty table, if one was set before me this moment.

Daugh. Father, dishonour is deathless; it goes on living even when you think it's dead.

at. See here! Are you really afraid of my selling you?

Daugh. No, father. But I don't wish you to pretend.

at. Well, your not wishing it is no use. I'm going to do this in my own way, not yours. What do you mean by acting so?

Daugh. Just consider this, father: suppose a master

augh. And any girl or woman is certainly bad if she holds her peacc when she sees things going wrong.

it. (angrily) Better look out for something bad yourself !

augh. (earnestly) But if you don't permit me to look out, what shall I do ? For you are the one I want to look out for.

it. So I am bad, eh ?

augh. No, father, and it's not proper for me to say so ; but I'm trying to prevent other people saying so, people whose tongues aren't tied.

it. Let anyone say what he wants ; I am not to be diverted from this purpose.

augh. But if you let me have my way, you'd act wisely rather than foolishly.

it. (sulkily) I'm doing what I like.

augh. I realize I must let you do as you like, but you would not like doing as you like, if you would let me counsel you.

it. (threateningly) Do you intend to obey your father's orders, or not ?

augh. (patiently) I do.

it. You understand my instructions now ?

augh. Entirely.

forcing me to be a bad woman. But see to it that, when you wish to marry me to someone, this scandal may not make the match repudiable.

Sat. Shut up, stupid! Don't you see how men are nowadays? It's easy for any girl to get married here, no matter what her reputation is: only let her have a dowry, a smirch seems no smirch at all.

Daugh. Well then, see you bear in mind the fact that I have no dowry.

Sat. (indignantly) You will please not say that. By heaven, thanks to the gods and my own forbears, let me tell you, you are not to say you have no dowry, when you have one at home. Why, look you! I have a whole hamper full of books. If you do a neat, careful piece of work on this job of ours, I'll give you a good six hundred witticisims out of 'em for a dowry, and all Attic ones, without a single Sicilian quip amongst 'em. Why, with such a dowry you can marry even a beggar.

Daugh. (hopeless) If you intend to take me anywhere, father, why not do so? Sell me, do anything you like.

Sat. A fair and proper request. Come this way. (goes toward Toxilus's house)

Daugh. (following) I hear and obey. [EXEUNT.]

Scene 2.

ENTER Dordalus.

Dor. (with a sour glance at Toxilus's house) Well, what does my neighbour intend to do, I wonder, in view of his having taken oath to give me the money to-day? If the day passes without his paying me, I'll lose my cash and he his credit. (listening) A noise at the door there, though! Who's coming out, I wonder?

ENTER Toxilus.

Tox. (to slaves within) See to things inside there; I shall be back shortly.

Dor. Ah there, Toxilus, how goes it?

Tox. (turning on him savagely and shaking the wallet in his face) Ah, there, you putrefied pimp, you mixture of mire and public dung-pit, you indecent, infamous, iniquitous lump of illegality, you blot on the community, you hungry, hateful money-hawk, you nasty, greedy, grabby miscreant—no one can phrasify your filthiness in three hundred lines!—will you accept your money? Come, kindly accept your money, brassface, kindly take your money! Here, take your money, will you? Can I make you accept your money, muckheap? Didn't suppose I'd be supplied with money, did you, when you wouldn't trust me at all except under oath?

Dor. (gathering himself together) Let me recover my breath for a reply. (bellowing) See here, you idol of the public, you haunt of hangdog menials, you liberator of harlots, you whiplasher, shackle-waster, miller's metropolis, liferslave, you swilling, stuffing, stealing runaway, you kindly hand over my money! Give me my money, brassface! Can I make you relinquish my money? Hand over my money, I tell you! Why don't you pay me my money? Shameless entirely, are you? It's a pimp dunning you for money for setting your mistress free, you embodiment of bondage, and dunning you for all to hear!

Tox. (looking about nervously) Shut up, for God's sake! Lord, man, you've got grand good lungs!

Dor. My tongue was made to return a compliment. Salt is sold me at the same price as to you. And never a lick of it shall my tongue have, unless she looks after me.

Tox. (soothingly) Do stop being angry now. I was offended at you for refusing to trust me with the money.

Dor. (still irate) A wonder I wouldn't trust you, to have you play the same trick on me that some of the bankers play! Once you trust anything to them, they scurry away from the forum faster than a hare from its cage door at the games.

Tox. (holding out Sagaristio's wallet) You kindly take this.

Dor. (as Toxilus withdraws it) Why don't you give it to me?

Tox. (glancing at the contents) You will find here sixty pounds, good honest cash. (passing it over) Set the girl free and bring her here immediately.

Dor. (carelessly, opening the wallet) I'll soon have her here. (half to himself, examining one of the coins) Jove! I don't know whom I can get to test this for me.

Tox. You dread entrusting it to anyone, I daresay?

Dor. It's a wonder<sup>1</sup> . . .

Tox. Go that way, (pointing) by the back alleys, to the forum; let the girl come to my house the same way, through the garden.

Dor. (still examining the money) I'll soon get her here.

Tox. (urgently) But don't make it too public.

Dor. (looking up with a sneer) There's certainly tact in that!

Tox. She can go and thank the gods to-morrow.

Dor. Yes, of course! Lord, yes! [EXIT.]

Tox. (calling after him) You should have got back in the time you've been standing here.

ACT IV

Toxilus ON STAGE AFTER EXIT OF Dordalus.

Tox. (contentedly) If you give a matter serious or proper attention, it generally makes good progress under your management. Yes, by Jove, a man's affairs proceed and prove successful pretty nearly according to the attention he gives 'em, and in the end, if he's a poor sort, some useless stick, his undertakings turn out poorly; but if he's the proper sort, they come out properly. Now I've got this affair of mine under way in clever, canny style, so I'm confident of a happy outcome. I'll proceed to get the pimp so tied up to-day that he won't know how to extricate himself. (calling at his door) Hey! Sagaristio! Come out and bring along the young lady and that letter I wrote and sealed for you, which (chuckling) you brought me from my master all the way from Persia.

Scene 2. ENTER Sagaristio AND Saturio's DAUGHTER IN PERSIAN COSTUME.

ag. (pirouetting) Anything slow about me? (hands Toxilus the letter)

Tox. (surveying him) Good! Good! A royal get-up! That turban sets off your outfit in lovely fashion! (inspecting the girl) Yes, and those little sandals—they suit the stranger maiden to a T! But have you got your parts well in mind?

or. (serenely, not seeing Toxilus) When the gods feel kindly toward a man they put something lucrative in his way. Here's my case—I've just now saved two loaves a day. For that maidservant I owned to-day now owns herself: (glancing at Toxilus's house) he bought his victory. And now she'll dine off someone else to-day and not eat a bite of mine. (grimly) Oh, but ain't I a high-minded, superlative citizen to have made our great and glorious Attic commonwealth greater still to-day by giving it another citizeness? (dreaming) But what a kindly soul I've been to-day! How many men I did trust, without taking security from one! The way I kept trusting everyone entirely! And never a fear of anyone I trusted to-day denying his debts to me in court! I want to be a good man now, from this day on—(waking up) a wish that won't come true and never has!

or. (aside) Now to lead this chap into the net with my masterly manœuvres, the trap being all finely fixed for him! I'll up to the worthy. (advances) How goes it?

- "I wish the service and hospitality of our household to be extended to the bearer of this letter. Give his wishes your careful attention, for he has treated me with the greatest consideration in his own home." (looking up disgustedly)
- What does it matter to me or my welfare what the Persians are doing, or your master, either?
- or. (eagerly) Do keep still, you blitherer! You don't know what a harvest is coming to you, or what a sweet little torch lucreful Luck's ready to light for you!
- or. What's that lucreful Luck of yours?
- or. Ask the party that knows. (indicating letter) All I know is what you do, except that I read it through first. But learn about it from the letter, as you began.
- or. A good suggestion. Keep still.

THE PERSIAN

- x.* Now you'll come to what is to your interest.
- r.* (reading) "The bearer of this letter has brought with him a girl, remarkably beautiful and ladylike, who was stolen, abducted, from the inmost recesses of Arabia; I want you to see to it she is sold there. The buyer is to buy her at his own risk, mind. No warrant will be promised or given. See that my guest receives good honest money, cash down. Look after this, and look out that he is looked after. Farewell."
- x.* (enthusiastic) Well now? Having read what was trusted to the wax there, do you trust me?
- r.* (guardedly) Where is that stranger at present who brought the letter here?
- x.* He'll soon be here, I trust; he went to fetch the girl from the ship.
- r.* (shaking his head) I've got no use at all for lawsuits or quirks. Why should I pay over my money to outsiders? Unless I receive a warrant, what use have I for such wares?
- x.* Will you shut up, or won't you? I never supposed you were such a pothead! What are you afraid of?
- r.* Gad, but I am afraid, for a fact. I've had a good many lessons already, and it won't be any new experience to get stuck in a mudhole like that.
- x.* (with guileless ambiguity) There doesn't seem to be any danger, to me.
- r.* (dryly) I know that, but it's myself I fear for.
- x.* (with a shrug) Oh well, it's of no consequence to me. I'm doing it merely out of consideration for you, so as to give you first chance to pick her up at a bargain.
- r.* Much obliged. But it's pleasanter to profit by a horrible example than to be one.

- x. But surely no one would follow her up (emphatically) "from the inmost recesses of Arabia." You mean to buy her, of course?
- v. (after reflection) Well, but I must see the goods.
- x. Right you are! (looking down the street) But here's luck! Look! There comes that stranger himself that brought the letter!
- v. He's the man, eh?
- x. He's the one.
- v. (looking intently) And is she that stolen girl?
- x. I know just as much as you about that—(eyeing her most appreciatively) except that she certainly has a ladylike look, by gad, whoever she is.
- v. (hiding his delight) Oh yes, she's a rather neat contrivance.
- x. (aside) Such a condescending scoundrel! (aloud, drawing him back) Let's keep quiet and consider her appearance.
- v. (ogling the approaching girl) A good idea! Congratulations!

ENE 4. ENTER Sagaristio AND Saturio's DAUGHTER, LOOKING ABOUT INTERESTEDLY, BUT PRETENDING NOT TO SEE THE OTHER PAIR.

- v. Does Athens seem happy and prosperous enough to suit you?
- Daugh. (demurely) I have observed the aspect of the city; the character of the inhabitants I have not sufficiently studied.
- x. (aside to Dordalus, approvingly) How's that for coming out plump with something shrewd to begin with?
- v. (aside to Toxilus with assumed indifference) I haven't been able to assure myself of her good sense from her first few words.

THE PERSIAN

- g. How about what you have observed? The wall—what do you think of that as a fortification for the town?
- augh. If the citizens are of sound character, I consider the town splendidly fortified. If perfidy and peculation and greed are banished from this city, yes, and envy, for a fourth, and fifth, place-hunting, sixth, vilification, seventh, perjury——
- or. (aside to Dordalus, with a dig in the ribs) Hear!
Hear!
- augh. —and eighth, indifference, ninth, injustice, and tenth and worst in its assaults, crime—the city from which these vices are absent will be walled well enough with a single wall. But where they are present, a hundred-fold wall is not enough to preserve the property within it.
- or. (aside to Dordalus) I say, you!
- or. (rapt) What d'ye want?
- or. You belong to that fraternity of ten: it would become you to banish yourself.
- or. How's that?
- or. For being a perjurer.
- or. (wryly) Her remarks weren't entirely pointless, for a fact.
- or. (earnestly) You can use her to advantage, I tell you. Buy her.
- or. Upon my soul, the more I consider her, the more she pleases me.
- or. If you do buy her, ye immortal gods! There'll be no wealthier pimp alive. You'll turn men out of their estates and households at your discretion; you'll do business with the leading citizens, have 'em currying favour with you. They'll be coming to your house for their revels!
- or. (with affected rigour) But I shall forbid their admission.

THE PERSIAN

Why, but they'll serenade your portals by night, burn down your doors! Forestall 'em: order your house to be shut up with doors of iron; change it to a house of iron; put in iron thresholds, an iron bar, an iron ring. Please, please don't spare the iron—order some for (grinning) yourself, a good solid set of shackles, rivetted on.

(genially) Please, please, go to hell!

(vigorously) You go, do—(mildly, with a wave toward the girl) and listen to me.

I only wish I knew what he asks for her.

Want me to call him over here?

I'll step over there. (they advance)

(to Sagaristio) What of you, sir stranger?

(brusquely) I am here, and bringing this girl to you as I recently said I would. My ship, as you know, arrived in port last night. I want this girl sold if possible; if not, I want to be gone as soon as possible.

Good day to you, sir.

Yes, good, if I sell her at her real value.

But if you can't sell her on fine terms to (winking surreptitiously at Dordalus) this buyer, sir, I swear you can't to anyone.

(interested) Are you a friend of his?

As true as all the gods in heaven.

(aside to him) Then you are a confirmed enemy of mine. For never was there any god obliging enough to give us pimps a helping hand.

To business! You have occasion to buy this girl?

(cautious) If you have occasion to sell her, why, yes, I have occasion to buy her; if it's no emergency with you, it's no more so with me.

Put a price on her; make a bid.

She's your goods; you're the one to put a price on her.

THE PERSIAN

- Tox.* (to Sagaristio, confidentially) That's a fair request of his.
- Sag.* D'ye want to buy her at a good figure?
- Dor.* And you—want to sell her at a fine figure?
- Tox.* Gad! You both want that, I know.
- Dor.* Come on, put a price on her, like a man.
- Sag.* I tell you this first: nobody will give you a warrant with her. You understand now?
- Dor.* (eagerly) I understand. State the lowest figure you'll let her go for.
- Tox.* (pulling Dordalus aside) Hush, man, hush! Good Lord, what a childish simpleton you are, really!
- Dor.* Eh? How's that?
- Tox.* Why, because I want you to put some pertinent questions to the girl first.
- Dor.* And not a bad suggestion, either, by Jove! Will you just look at this—here am I, that wily pimp, almost falling into a pit, if you hadn't been here! Ah, it's a great thing to have a friend by, when you have business.
- Tox.* I want you to question her about her family, or country, or parents, so that you won't be saying you bought her rashly at my urgency and instigation.
- Dor.* Yes, indeed! I call that good advice.
- Tox.* (stepping up to Sagaristio) If it will not trouble you, sir, he wishes to question this lady a bit.
- Sag.* By all means, at his own discretion.
- Tox.* (disgustedly, on rejoining Dordalus) What are you standing there for? Kindly step up and ask him yourself, as well, for permission to question her as you like. He told me he'd permit it, to be sure; but I prefer you to approach yourself, though, so that he won't take you for a nonentity. (rejoins Sagaristio, beckoning Dordalus to follow)

THE PERSIAN

- Dor. That's rather sound advice. (going part way, then calling to Sagaristio, importantly) Stranger, I want to question this girl.
- Sag. Anything you like, from earth to heaven.
- Dor. Just bid her step over here to me.
- Sag. (to girl) Go, by all means, and humour him. (to Dordalus) Question her, make any inquiries you see fit.
- Tox. (aside to her) At him now, at him! See you enter the fray under happy auspices!
- Daugh. (aside to him) The auspices are bright, hush! I'll look out that you return to camp well laden with loot.
- Tox. (aside to Dordalus) Step back there, (pointing) I'll bring her to you.
- Dor. (aside to Toxilus) Go on, do as you think best for us. (steps back)
- Tox. Hey, there, young lady, come here, will you! (aside to her) Do please mind what you are about now!
- Daugh. (aside to him) Keep still, I'll see to it as you wish.
- Tox. (aloud) Follow me. (they go to Dordalus) Here she is, if you wish to ask her any questions. (withdraws)
- Dor. (calling) But I want you with me.
- Tox. I must observe the wishes of our guest here, as master ordered. What if he objects to my being with you? (looks questioningly at Sagaristio)
- Sag. Oh no, join him, by all means.
- Tox. (returning to Dordalus) I am at your service.
- Dor. (gratefully) And you do yourself a service, as well, in assisting a friend.
- Tox. Make your inquiries. (to girl, with a sly wink) I say, you, look alive!

- Daugh.* Indeed I hope not, if my . . . (choking) parents do their duty.
- Dor.* Don't be surprised if we question you about your country or your parents.
- Daugh.* Ah, why should I be, my dear sir? My . . . servitude has forbidden my . . . being surprised at any . . . misfortune that befalls me.
- Dor.* (patting her shoulder) Don't cry!
- Tor.* (aside, elated) Oh, but she's a sly, shrewd piece, blast her! She's keen-witted all right, she knows how to say the proper thing!
- Dor.* What is your name?
- Tor.* (aside) Now I'm afraid she'll make a slip.
- Daugh.* In my own . . . country my name was . . . Lucris.
- Tor.* There now! That's a name and omen worth any price! Why don't you buy her? (aside) I was awfully scared she'd make a slip! She got out of it.
- Dor.* If I buy you, I count on your being Lucris for me, too.
- Tor.* If you do buy her, by Jove, I warrant she'll never stay your slave for one revolving moon.
- Dor.* Gad! Precisely what I want!
- Tor.* "The work that we do makes our wishes come true." (aside) No slip yet, not one!

THE PERSIAN

- Sag.* (graciously) I'll do as I see you desire, and let you buy her. She's yours for four hundred pounds.
- Dor.* (decidedly) Too much.
- Sag.* Three hundred and twenty.
- Dor.* Too much.
- Sag.* (firmly) Not one penny can be abated from the price I shall now set. (pauses)
- Dor.* (eagerly) What is it, then? Out with it, quick! State it!
- Sag.* You may have her, at your own risk, for two hundred and forty pounds.
- Dor.* (aside to Toxilus) Toxilus, what do you say?
- Tox.* (indignantly) I say all the powers above are after you in ire, you criminal, for not pushing this purchase through!
- Dor.* (to Sagaristio, hastily) Done!
- Tox.* (aside to Dordalus) Glorious! A perfect prize! Lord, man, she's cheap at twelve hundred pounds. This is a lucrative day for you!
- Sag.* I say, you! It'll be forty pounds for her clothes, in addition.
- Dor.* (wrathfully) In subtraction, you mean, not in addition!
- Tox.* (aside to Dordalus, motioning Sagaristio not to press the point) Oh, do shut up! Don't you see he's looking for a handle to undo what's done? Go along won't you, and get the money? . . . and (aside) goes to blazes as he deserves.
- Dor.* (to Toxilus excitedly) I say, keep watch of him, you!
- Tox.* And you—why don't you go in?
- Dor.* Yes, I'll be off and bring the money.

THE PERSIAN

Scene 5.

Tox. (in high feather) By the Lord, young lady, you've done a praiseworthy job, a fine, sound, serious-minded job!

Daugh. Any good turn you do good people is generally valued and appreciated.

Tox. (to Sagaristio) Persian! Are you listening? Once you have the money from him, pretend to go straight to your ship.

Sag. (blithely) No instructions needed.

Tox. Come back again to my house by the alley, and enter through the garden there.

Sag. You're foretelling the future.

Tox. But don't take the money and forthwith foot it home, I warn you!

Sag. (vehemently) D'ye take me for a man who'd do what's worthy of yourself?

Tox. (watching Dordalus's house) Hush! Spare your lungs! Out comes our loot!

Scene 6.

RE-ENTER Dordalus.

Dor. (showing a purse) Here's good honest coin, two hundred and forty pounds—less four shillings.

Sag. Less four shillings? How's that?

Dor. To pay for this purse, or ensure its coming home again.

Sag. (contemptuously) Must prove yourself a full-blown pimp, eh? Afraid you'll lose that beggarly purse, are you, you poor, dirty, rapacious rascal?

Tox. Oh well, let it pass. Seeing he is a pimp, it's nothing extraordinary.

Dor. This was to be a lucrative day for me, according to the auspices; no sum looks so small to me but that I'm loth to lose it. Come on, kindly take this cash.

- or. (obeying) All right. There you are.
- g. (turning to go) Nothing else you want of me?
- or. What's your hurry, sir?
- g. Business. I wish to deliver some letters entrusted to me. Then again, I have heard that my twin brother is a slave here, and I want to find him and set him free.
- or. (cogitating) Now by Jove, sir, that's not a bad hint you gave me. I seem to have seen someone here that looks very like you, just about the same height.
- g. My brother, most likely!
- or. What is your name, sir?
- or. What does it matter to you?

Tox. (rapturously) Now that he's gone, we can say what we like. I tell you what, this was a lueriferous day that dawned for you! Why, she's no purchase—she's plain lucre!

Dor. (grimly looking down the street after Sagaristio) That fellow certainly knows his business all right—sold me a stolen girl at my own risk, collared the cash, cleared out! Now how do I know whether she won't soon be claimed as free? Where shall I follow him? To Persia! Bosh!

Tox. (wounded) I trusted you would be grateful for my kindness.

Dor. (repentant) Yes, yes, of course I'm grateful, Toxilus. Oh yes, I observed your earnest endeavours to help me.

Tox. (forgetting himself) I help you? (hastily) Yes, yes, earnest indeed!

Dor. (with a start) There now! I forgot to give some necessary orders inside a moment ago. Keep an eye on her! [EXIT INTO HIS HOUSE.

Tox. She's safe, all right.

Daugh. (anxiously) Father's loitering now.

Tox. What if I remind him?

Daugh. It's time.

Tox. (calling at his door) Hey, Saturio! Come out here! Now's the chance to take vengeance on your enemy.

ENTER Saturio, WIPING HIS MOUTH.

Daugh. Here I am! I'm not delaying you, am I?

Tox. All right now, get over there (pointing) at some distance out of sight, and keep quiet. When you see me conversing with the pimp, then raise a riot.

A word to the wise is sufficient.

Then when I've left——

Hold your tongue, can't you? I know what you want. (withdraws) ne 8.

RE-ENTER Dordalus.

(virtuously) I gave 'em all a good sound belarruping when I got in there; my furniture and house are perfectly filthy.

Back finally, are you?

Back I am.

I certainly have brought you a big harvest this day.

I acknowledge it, gratefully.

Nothing else at all you want of me?

Only that you enjoy yourself.

(turning to go) By Jove, that's an omen I'll now take advantage of at home, this instant, for I'll now proceed to stretch out alongside your freedwoman. [EXIT.]

ne 9.

ENTER Saturio WITH A ROAR.

Damn my soul, if I don't destroy that man! (seeing Dordalus) Aha! Splendid! There he is in front of the house!

ugh. (rushing up to him) Oh, God bless you, father dear! (embracing her) And you, my daughter!

(aside) Oh-h-h! That Persian has sent me to perdition!

ugh. (to Dordalus) Here is my father.

(affecting surprise) Eh? What? Your father?

(aside) Oh, this is dreadful, dreadful! (aloud, trying to placate the raging Saturio) I'd better lose no time, then, wretch that I am, in (smiling dolefully) mourning my two hundred and forty pounds.

Oh dear, oh dear!

Come, step along to court, pimp!

(innocently) What are you summoning me to court for?

I'll tell you there, before the praetor. But I am summoning you to court. (yauks him along)

You'll call a witness, won't you?

Shall I go rubbing the ear<sup>1</sup> of any living freeman for your sake, you gallowsbird, who trade here in freeborn citizens? (shakes him violently)

Not I.

Listen!

I am deaf. Step along! Come this way, you criminal, you maiden-mouser. Come this way, daughter dear, come right to the praetor with me.

ugh. I am coming.

ACT V

ENTER Toxilus, VERY BUMPTIOUS.

Now that our foes are vanquished and our citizens safe, our state tranquil, peace assured, and the war brought to a triumphant termination, with our army and garrisons intact, I do thank thee, Jupiter, for thy kindly aid, and to all the other denizens of heaven do I offer thanks for that I have wreaked such glorious vengeance on mine enemy. Yes, and I'll promptly poke your eye out with this ladle!

(to Toxilus) See here, you gallowstree, you whip-eradicator! How about the way you juggled me to-day, and got me into hot water, how about the way you worked that Persian game on me?

- Sag.* Nequeo, leno, quin tibi saltem staticulum, olim quem Hegea faciebat. vide vero, si tibi satis placet.
- Tox.* Me quoque volo
reddere, Diodorus quem olim faciebat in Ionia.
- Dor.* Malum ego vobis dabo, ni abitis.
- Sag.* Etiam muttis, impudens?
iam ego tibi, si me inritassis, Persam adducam denuo.
- Dor.* <sup>1</sup> Atque tu Persa es, qui me usque admutlavisti ad cutem.
- Tox.* Tace, stulte: hic eius geminus frater.
- Dor.* Hic inest?
- Tox.* Ac geminissimus. 83
- Dor.* Di deaque et te et geminum fratrem exerucient.
- Sag.* Qui te perdidit:
nam ego nil merui.
- Dor.* At enim quod ille meruit, tibi id obsit volo.
- Tox.* Agite sultis, hunc ludificemus.

THE PERSIAN

g. But that'll be your own end, at the hands of Him who dwells above us and hates you and will show his hate. It's not these folks that say so; it's I, I. (contrives to give Dordalus a kick)

r. (to Paegnium) Come, pass around the wine and honey, keep us supplied with . . . drink, full tankards. It's a . . . long time since we drank. We've been . . . dry an awful long while.

r. (glaring at them as they imbibe) I wish to heaven that what you drink would never pass through you!

g. (rising unsteadily) Pimp, I can't refrain from . . . dancing for you that . . . lovely little dance that Hegea used to render. (prances about Dordalus, making occasional passes at him) Do see now, if it isn't rather . . . winsome.

r. (rising) Yes, and I want to show you the dance Diodorus used to . . . render in Ionia (joins Sagaristio)

r. (backing away with upraised cane) I'll brain both of you, unless you get out!

g. Still grumbling, brassface? If you . . . irritate me, I'll soon be bringing on that . . . Persian again.

r. (scanning him sharply) Aha! You're that Persian who shore me right down to the quick!

r. Shut up . . . idiot! He's his . . . twin brother. He is, eh?

x. And such a . . . twinny twin!

r. May all the powers above consume and rot you and your twin brother, both!

g. Rot the man that . . . ruined you. I haven't done anything, of . . . course.

r. Well, but I want you paid out for what he did!

r. (drawing the guests and slaves aside) Come along, please do let's have some . . . fun with him.

TITUS MACCIUS PLAUTUS

emn. Nisi si dignust, non opust. et me haud par est.

'or. Credo eo, quia non inconciliavit, cum te emo.

emn. At tamen non—tamen—

'or. Cave ergo sis malo, et sequere me. te mihi dicto audientem esse addecet, nam hercle absque me

foret et meo praesidio, hic faceret te prostibilem propediem.

sed ita pars libertinorum est: nisi patrono qui adversatust,

nec satis liber sibi videtur nec satis frugi nec sat
honestus,

ni id effecit, ni ei male dixit, ni grato ingratus reperust.

emn. Pol bene facta tua me hortantur, tuo ut imperio paream.

'or. Ego sum tibi patronus plane, qui huic pro te argentum dedi.

<sup>1</sup> graphice hunc volo ludificari.

emn. Meo ego in loco sedulo curabo.

'or. Certo illi homines mihi nescio quid mali consulunt, quod faciant.

Heus vos.

Quid ais?

Hicin Dordalus est leno, qui hic liberas virgines mercatur?

hicinest, qui fuit quondam fortis?

'or. Quae haec res est? ci, colapho me icit.
malum vobis dabo.

'or. At tibi nos dedimus dabimusque etiam.

<sup>1</sup> Leo notes lacuna here: nunc (vel age) graphice
Mueller.

THE PERSIAN

- mn. (shaking her head) There's no use in it, unless he deserves it. And it's not right for me.
- or. (ironically) The reason being, I suppose, that he didn't stand in the way of my . . . buying you!
- mn. But still it's not—still——
- or. (growing angry) Just you look out for . . . trouble, then, and follow me. The proper thing for you is to listen to what I . . . say, for by gad, if it hadn't been for me and my . . . protection, he'd pretty soon have made a common prostitute of you. (increasingly bitter) But this is the way with a lot of . . . freed folk: if they don't . . . cross their patron, they don't think they're free enough or . . . good enough or respectable enough, unless they've done this, unless they've been . . . impertinent to him, unless they've proved ungrateful to their . . . benefactor!
- mn. (remorseful) Oh dear! Your kindnesses do urge me to do anything you wish.
- or. I'm your . . . patron, myself, that's plain; I'm the man that paid him the money for you. I want some . . . fun with him, some . . . tiptop fun.
- mn. Well, I'll help it along the best I can.
- or. (keeping an eye on them) That gang's clearly planning to do something or other to me.
- g. (as they all advance on Dordalus) I say, you folks. What d'ye say?
- or. What d'ye say?
- g. Is this Dordalus, the . . . pimp, who trades here in . . . freeborn maidens? Is this the chap that used to be so . . . dauntless?
- or. What do you mean by this? (as Sagaristio cuff's him) Oh, ouch! What a wallop! (raising his cane) I'll fix you people!
- or. But we . . . have fixed you, and we'll fix you some . . . more! (they all fall on him zestfully)

TITUS MACCIUS PLAUTUS

- or.* Ei, natis pervellit.
- reg.* Licet : iam diu saepe sunt expunctae.
- or.* Loquere tu etiam, frustum pueri ?
- mn.* Patrone mi, i intro, amabo, ad cenam.
- or.* Mea Ignavia, tu nunc me inrides ? 850
- mn.* Quiane te voco, bene ut tibi sit ?
- or.* Nolo mihi bene esse.
- mn.* Ne sit.
- ox.* Quid igitur ? sescenti nummi quid agunt, quas turbas danunt ?
- or.* Male disperii, sciunt referre probe inimico gratiam.
- or.* Satis sumpsimus supplici iam.
- or.* Fateor, manus vobis do.
- ox.* Et post dabis sub furcis.
- g.* Abi intro—in crucem.
- or.* An me hic parum exercitum hisce habent ?
- or.* Convenisse te Toxilum me <sup>1</sup> spectatores, bene valetc. leno periit. plaudite.

<sup>1</sup> Leo notes lacuna here : mc(mineris) Camerarius.

THE PERSIAN

- Dor. (as Paegnium operates) Oh, ouch! he's pinching at my behind!
- Paeg. That's all right. It was often plucked long before this.
- Dor. (writhing) Still chattering, are you, you fragment of a boy?
- Lemm. (impishly) Patron dear, do go in to dinner, there's a darling.
- Dor. So you're deriding me now, my lazybones?
- Lemm. (plaintively) Just because I invite you to enjoy yourself?
- Dor. (struggling) I don't want to enjoy myself!
- Lemm. (cordially) Then don't.
- Tox. (cuffing him contentedly) Well, what do you think? You see what . . . sixty pounds do, what . . . messes they make?
- Dor. (aside) Oh dear, oh dear! I'm murdered! They do know awfully well how to return an enemy's favours!
- Tox. (with a final cuff) We'll call this . . . plenty of punishment now.
- Dor. (pathetically) I admit it! I hold up my hands! (they let go of him, with parting salutes).
- Tox. And later you'll . . . hold 'em up on a . . . crossbar.
- Sag. (hospitably, with a wink at Lemmiselenis) Do go along in for—(giving him a farewell kick)—crucifixion!
- Dor. (scampering to his door, then turning ruefully to the audience) An adequate drilling these fellows gave me, eh, what? [EXIT.
- Tox. (calling after him) You'll bear in mind the . . . fact that you met . . . me, Toxilus! (advancing to the front of the stage) Spectators, fare ye . . . well. A pimp has . . . perished. Give us your applause. [EXEUNT OMNES.
