THE GREEK ORIGINALS AND DATES OF THE PLAYS IN THE FOURTH VOLUME

In the Prologue¹ of the Poenulus we are told that the Greek name of the comedy was Καρκεθδόνιος, but who its author was—perhaps Menander—or who the author of the play which was combined with the Καρκεθδόνιος to make the Poenulus is quite uncertain. The time of the presentation of the Poenulus at Rome is also uncertain: Huefner² believes that the capture of Sparta³ was a purely Plautine reference to the war with Nabis in 195 B.C. and that the Poenulus appeared in 194 or 193 B.C.

The date, however, of the Roman presentation of the Pseudolus is definitely established by the didascalia as 191 B.C. Geographical and military allusions in the play make the year 309 B.C. or 308 B.C.⁴ a probable time for the production of its Greek original. But whether the Greek play was written by Menander, Philemon, or someone else is doubtful.

THE GREEK ORIGINALS

The Rudens was adapted from a play of unknown title by Diphilus. Warfare in Sicily made it unlikely that Labrax would have been tempted to try business there either before the island came under the control of Agathocles, or after the death of Agathocles. Gripus' ambition, also, to found a regnum magnum, like the successors of Alexander the Great, seems to Huefner additional evidence that the original of the Rudens was presented between 303 and 290 B.C. The Rudens itself appears to have been first staged between 200 and 190 B.C.

ARGUMENT OF THE PLAY

A seven-year-old boy was kidnapped from Carthage. An old woman-hater purchased this boy, adopted him, and made him his heir. Later two of the boy's relatives, girls, were stolen, and their nurse with them. Lycus buys them and torments the young lover. But the lover's bailiff with a bag of gold is fubbed off upon the pimp, so implicating him in theft. Hanno the Carthaginian arrives, finds the lover to be his nephew, and recognizes his long-lost daughters.

PROLOGUE

I have a mind to imitate Aristarchus’ Achilles. Aye, I shall take my exordium from that tragedy. (grandiloquently) “Silence! Hush ye, and turn hither your attention! Hearken! ’Tis the command of the general”—(chuckling) manager of this troupe who wants you to sit in your seats with good cheer, both those who have come here famished and those who have come here full. You that ate showed much more sense; you that ate not, eat your fill of show. For a man with a meal before him, because of us, to stalk in and sit here empty, is more than foolish.

(loudly) Crier! Rise and bid this crowd give ear! I have long been waiting to see if you knew your duty. Exercise that voice that lets you live and flourish. For unless you bellow, you’ll silently starve away. (after the Crier has vainly tried to quiet the house) There now, sit down, if you want your pay doubled!

(to audience ironically) So good of you to observe my edicts! (with high authoritativeness) Let no well-ripened wanton take seat upon the stage, nor lictor murmur, or his rods, nor usher ramble around in front, or show a seat, while an actor is on the boards. Those who have stayed too long at home in idle sleep should now stand in patience, or else sleep in moderation. Let no slaves crowd in, but leave room here for free men, or else pay cash for manumission; in case they cannot, let them go home and shun a twofold catastrophe—rod welts here and whip welts there, if their masters come back home to find their work undone. And nurses, let nurses attend to their tiny brats at home, let not one bring them to this play, for the nurses may get dry and the children starve to death, or go maamaaing here for food like so many young goats. Matrons are to view this play in silence, laugh in silence, temper here their tuneful chirping, take their prittle-prattle home, and not be a nuisance to their husbands here as well as there.

Now for what concerns the Directors of the games—let no artist gain the palm unfairly, let none be crowded out through partiality, so allowing worse men to supplant their betters. Yes, and another matter, which I had almost forgotten—lackeys, while the show is on, storm the bakeshop! Now while you have the chance, now while the tarts are hot, charge!

These be the general orders issued for the general-management, and 'twill be well, by heaven, that each man remember them for himself.

Now I wish to revert again to the Argument of this play, that you may be as well informed as I am. Its bounds, limits, and confines I shall now determine: I have been selected as its surveyor. But if you do not object, I wish to give you the name of this comedy; of course, if you do object, I shall tell you anyway—that being duly authorized by those in charge. It is called Carchedonius, Plautus giving it the Latin title of Uncle Papeater.\(^1\) There you have its name. Now let me make the accipite; nam argumentum hoc hic censebitur: locus argumentost suom sibi proscaenium, vos iuratores estis. quaeso, operam date.

Carthaginienses fratres patruelles duo fuere, summo genere et summis ditiis; eorum alter vivit, alter est emortuos, propterea apud vos dico confidentius, quia mihi pollietor dixit qui eum pollinserat. sed illi seni qui mortuost, ei filius, unicus qui fuerat, ab divitiis a patre puer septuennis surripitur Carthagine, sexennio prius quidem quam moritur pater.

Quoniam periiisse sibi videt gnatum unicum, conicitur ipse in morbum ex aegritudine: facit illum heredem fratem patruelem suom, ipse abit ad Acheruntem sine viatico. ille qui surripuit puerum Calydonem avheit, vendit eum domino hic diviti quiodam seni, cupienti liberorum, osori mulierum. emit hospitalem is filium imprudens senex puerum illum eumque adoptat sibi pro filio eumque heredem fecit, quom ipse obiit diem. is illic adulescens habitat in illisce aedibus.

Revertor rursus denuo Carthaginem: si quid mandare voltis aut curiarier, argentum nisi qui dederit, nugas egerit; 1 qui dederit, magis maiores nugas egerit.

Sed illi patruo huius, qui vivit senex, Carthaginiensi duae fuere filiae, altera quinquennis, altera quadrimula: cum nutrice una periere a Magaribus.

rest of my report, for this Argument is to be examined here like an Income Tax Return: the office at which to submit a Return on Argument is its own stage, and you are the Commissioners. Your attention, please.

There were two Carthaginian cousins, of distinguished family and fortune; one of them is living, the other is deceased. I make this statement to you with the more assurance, because it was made to me by the undertaker who did his undertaking. But the son, the one and only son, of that old gentleman who died was stolen away from his affluent home in Carthage and from his father when he was a seven-year-old boy, this occurring six years before his father's death.

Seeing that his only son was lost to him, the father fell sick from grief; he made that cousin his heir and departed unto Acheron, without funds for the trip. The man who stole the boy carried him to Calydon, and sold him as a slave to a certain rich old man here who longed for children but hated women. This old man bought the lad without knowing that he was the son of a family friend of his, adopted him, and made him his heir on his own demise. And that house there (pointing) is the residence of this young man.

I now intend to take another trip to Carthage: anyone of you, with commissions or affairs for me to attend to, must supply me with cash, or it will do him no good; if he does supply it, it will do him a great deal less good.

Well, our lad's Carthaginian uncle,¹ still alive but old, had two daughters, one five years of age, the other four: along with their nurse they disappeared completely from Magara.² The person who stole them took them to Anactorium, and all three of them, both nurse and girls, he sold, cash down, to a man—if a pimp be a man—who is the most consummate scoundrel that the earth sustains. Now guess for yourselves what sort of man he is in general, when his very name is Lycus.¹ This Lycus left Anactorium, where he had been living, and immigrated here to Calydon not long ago to ply his trade. That is his house there. (pointing)

One of these girls our young gentleman dotes on to distraction—unaware that she is a relative of his—without either knowing who she is, or ever having touched her, the pimp so keeps him on the rack:² perceiving how he loves her, he wants to make a haul. As for the younger sister, a certain soldier is infatuated with her and wants to buy her as his mistress.

But their Carthaginian father ever since they disappeared has kept searching for them everywhere by sea and land. On reaching any city, he at once hunts up all the harlots at their homes; he pays his money, hires one for the night, and then inquires where she is from, what country, whether she was captured in war or kidnapped, who her family and parents were. In this shrewd and ingenious way he seeks his daughters. He knows all languages, too, but, knowing, dissembles his knowledge. A Carthaginian complete! Why say more?

This last evening he sailed into harbour here, the father of these girls (pointing to the house of Lycus); and likewise the uncle of our young gentleman (indicating the house of Agorastocles) here. Have you got it? If you have got it, pull; but

To-day this uncle will arrive here and here discover his daughters and this nephew, so I have learned.

Fare ye well and show us favour, that so Salvation may keep you safe.

Afr. (pleadingly) Oh, Milphio, many's the affair I've entrusted to you time and again when all looked dark and forlorn and counselless, and you, with your wisdom and cleverness and sagacity and shrewdness, have turned them into triumphs for me. And for all these kindnesses I own that I owe you your liberty, yes, and endless thanksgiving and thanks.

Mil. (coldly) When an old phrase fits the occasion it's well used. Why, all this blarney you're giving me is nothing but pure piffle, as they say, rien que belles balivernes. Now you blarneybait me: yesterday you wore out three ox-hides on my back and it didn't bother you a bit.

Ag. (on the verge of tears) I'm in love, Milphio, and if my love makes me do anything, you ought to overlook it.

Mil. (with asperity) Yes, of course! See here! Now I'm in love myself, dying of it. Just let me beat you the same as you did me, all for nothing at all: and afterwards, I being in love, you overlook it.

Ag. (humbly) If you find any joy or pleasure in it, I do let you. Hang me up, bind me, beat me; I authorize you, I let you.

Mil. But if you evade authority later on when you're loose, I'd be the one hung up.

Mil. (neerily) Lord, Lord! I heard that from you long ago.

Ag. (sobbing) I’m in torment, I want her so! But that pimp Lycus she belongs to, oh dear, he’s dirty as dirt!

Mil. Want to give him something now he’ll hate?

Ag. (hopeful) I long to!

Mil. All right! (grinning) Give him me.

Ag. Oh, go to the deuce!

Mil. Tell me in sober earnest: do you want to give him something he’ll regret?

Ag. (hopeful again) I long to!

Mil. All right! Give him this same me. He’ll have something he’ll hate and regret both, I promise you.

Ag. You joker! (weeps)

Mil. (surveying him thoughtfully) Want to make that girl your freedwoman to-day without its costing you a thing?

Ag. What are you going to do with it?
Mil. Hush! This day you shall get the pimp entire with his entire household as a gift from me.
Ag. How will you do it?
Mil. You'll soon know. Your bailiff Collybiscus is in the city now; this pimp's unacquainted with him. Understand, do you?
Ag. (somewhat dazed) I understand, yes, yes—but I don't know what you're aiming at.
Mil. (contemptuous) You don't, eh?
Ag. Really, I don't.
Mil. Well, I'll soon let you know. He'll be given the money, so as to carry it to the pimp's, saying he's a stranger, from another town. He'll say he wants a girl and a good time; wants a nice quiet place provided where he can enjoy himself privately without being observed. The pimp'll be keen for the money and hurry him into his house.
(triumphantly) He'll be concealing man and money!
Ag. (half-heartedly) Very good scheme.
Mil. Then you ask him if your slave is at his house. He'll suppose it's me you're after: so he'll promptly say no. Can you doubt he will forthwith be liable to you for twice the value of the money and the slave he stole? And he hasn't the wherewithal to settle. When he comes to court the praetor will adjudge his entire establishment to you. So there's pimp Lycus lured into our pitfall.
Ag. (restless) Very good scheme.
Mil. Ah, but you wait till I have it polished up, and then you'll say so all the more; it's crude as yet.
Ag. I'm going to the temple of Venus, if there's nothing you want, Milphio. This is Aphrodisia^1 day.

them out sufficiently to suffice, it can't be done. In saying so I speak from late experience of my own. Why, from the very peep of dawn until this moment we've both of us incessantly kept at it, being bathed or rubbed or dried or bedecked, prinked and pranked, made up and done up. Yes, and we each had two maids that helped with the bathing and scouring, and we tired out two men with water-carrying. Don't talk to me! The trouble one woman makes! But two! I really do believe a whole community, big as you please, can be kept more than busy by two women with their nightly, daily, lifelong, and eternal need of being bedecked, bathed, dried, and prinked. The golden mean, in short, means not a thing to women. Our bathing and rubbing—we don't know enough to end it, ever!

(int. complacently adding final touches to her toilet)
Really, sister, I'm surprised at such nonsense from a shrewd, sensible, clever girl like you. Why, for all our care to be well gotten up, even so, it's hard enough to find any loverlings.

(id.) That's so. But just the same, do consider this one fact: moderation in all things is the best policy, my dear. "All excess breeds trouble in excess."

(int. still prinking) Now, now, sister, just you consider this: we girls are judged like pickled fish that's pronounced too salty: without lots and lots of water and long soaking, they're so rank and salt that you don't want to touch them. That's the way

1 V. 218: Ever since daybreak we have never ceased.

2 V. 232: Why, if a woman isn't smartly dressed, too, being immaculate is no better than being dirty, that's what I think.

g. (intent on Adelphasium) Why bother me?

d. Now, now, sister, that's enough. It's sufficient to have other people tell us such things without our talking against ourselves too.

nt. (still prinking) I'll stop.

d. That's nice of you, dear. But answer me this now: is everything here (pointing to the offerings) that we need in order to gain the favour of the gods?

nt. I've seen to everything.

g. (aside, beatified) Oh beautiful day, festal and lovely, ah, day worthy of that Queen of Love whose Aphrodisia it is!

[il. (aside to Agorastocles) Don't I get a little something for calling you out here? A cask of old wine would be a proper present now, eh? Say so. (Agorastocles gazes, unhearing) No answer? He has lost his tongue, I do believe. (hissing in Agorastocles' ear) What the devil makes you stand here stupefied?

g. (still rapt) Leave me to my love and don't distract me! Hush!

[il. (drawling) Hushed.

g. (dreamily) If you had hushed, that very "hushed" would have been unborn.

nt. Come, sister mine, let's be going. (moves on)

d. (stopping her) But, my dear girl! Why hurry there now?

nt. You ask me that? Because master's awaiting us at the temple of Venus.

POENULUS

Ad. Well, let him wait. (as Anterastilis rebels) Wait! The altar’s crowded now. You surely don’t want to mingle there with those common prostitutes, mistresses of millers, spelt-mill leavings, wretched, slatternly, slaveling courtiers, plastered with poor perfumery, that smell of pothouse and profession, things of stool and chair, creatures that no free man ever touched or took home, tuppenny sluts of scummy slavelings?

Mil. (aside, ireful) You go to hell! You dare to scorn slaves, you, you outrage? You’d think she was a beauty, you’d think she had kings taking her out, to hear her pour forth that big talk, the little scarecrow! I wouldn’t give a cupful of fog for seven nights with her!

Ag. (aside) Oh, ye immortal gods omnipotent! What have ye more beauteous than she? What have ye that should make me deem you more immortal than myself whose eyes enjoy these wondrous blessings? Ah, ’tis not Venus who is Venus! This, this, is the Venus I shall venerate, that she may then look on me with love and favour! Milphio! Ho! Where are you?

Mil. (sour) Here I am, by you.

Ag. (fatuous) Buy you? But I’d rather sell you.

Mil. Well, well, here you are, sir, cracking jokes!

Ag. It’s from you I learned it all.

Mil. So? Learned to love this girl you’ve never touched?

Ag. What of that? I love and revere the gods, too, by Jove, and still keep hands off them.

Ant. Heigh-ho! Dear me, when I look at the things we two have got on, our get-up makes me sick.

POENULUS

1d. It shouldn’t, it’s quite all right. Why, we’re got up well enough for master’s income and our own. Of course I know no income’s possible without attendant outlay, but there’ll be no income showing, sister, if outlay outstrips income. So having enough is enough and to spare; more than enough is less than enough.

1g. (aside to Milphio) Lord love me, Milphio, I’d rather have her love than that of the Lord himself! Why, that girl can force love out of flint.

Mil. Gad! And that’s no lie, for no flint’s as foolish as you, that love her.

1g. (too engrossed to notice the remark) But just bear this in mind—never yet have I bemired her loveliness.

Mil. Then I’ll be off to a fish pond or pool somewhere and look for mire.

1g. (again intent on Adelphasium) What for?

Mil. For this—to bemire the pair of you.

1g. Oh, go to hell!

Mil. (coming closer) That’s where I am, sir.

1g. Pest!

Mil. I’m dumb.

1g. Eternally, I hope.

Mil. Well, well, here you are, sir, challenging me at my own game and cracking jokes.

1nt. Your things seem nice enough to you now, sister, I daresay; but when you make comparisons with the other girls, then you’ll feel bad, if you happen to notice anyone with better.
Invidia in me numquam innatast neque malitia, mea soror.
bono me esse ingenio ornatam quam auro multo mavolo:
aurum, id fortuna invenitur, natura ingenium bonum.
meretrice pudorem gerere magis decet quam purpuram:
pulchrum ornatum turpes mores peius caeno conlinunt, lepidi mores turpem ornatum facile factis comprobant.

Eho tu, vin tu facinus facere lepidum et festivom?
Volo.
Potesne mi auscultare?
Possum.
Abi domum ac suspende te.

Quam ob rem?
Quia iam numquam audibis verba tot tam suavia.
quid tibi opust vixisse? ausculta mihi modo ac suspende te.

Siquidem tu es mecum futurus pro uva passa pensilis.

At ego amo hanc.
At ego esse et bibere.
Eho tu, quid ais?
Quid rogas?

Viden tu? pleni oculi sorderum qui erant, iam splendet mihi?

Immo etiam in medio oculo paullum sordest.

Cedo sis dexteram.

Vt quidem tu huius oculos inlutis manibus tractes aut teras?

   bonam ego quam beatam me esse nimio dici mavolo.
2 Leo brackets following v., 305:
   magisque meretrice pudorem quam aurum gerere condecet.
(quietly) Envy was never one of my innate infirmities, sister dear, or ill-will. I had much rather be adorned by beauty of character than by jewels. Jewels are the gift of fortune, character comes from within. Modesty's more becoming to a courtesan than purple: ugly ways so ill pretty frock worse than mud, while nice ways easily embellish an ugly frock.

(aside to Milphio, ravished) Ah-h, Milphio! Would'st do something sweet and sportive?

I would.

Canst heed my counsel?

I can.

Go home and hang thyself.

Eh? Why so?

Because never again wilt thou hear so many words so charming. What hast thou now to live for? Ah, heed thou me and hang thyself.

All right, if you'll hang beside me and be a bunch of raisins, too.

Ah, but I—I love this girl!

Ah, but I—I love to eat and drink!

Oh, I say, dear!

What is it?

Look, will you? My eyes were full of specks. Are they clear now?

(inspecting) No, there's still a little speck in the middle of this eye.

(to the maid) Lend me a hand, please.

(aside, as the maid obeys) You? You feel or finger eyes of hers with those dirty hands?

1 V. 303: I much prefer to be known for my goodness than for my good luck.

2 V. 305: Modesty befits a courtesan better than jewels.
Nimia nos socordia Hodie tenuit.

Qua de re, obsecro?

Quia non iam dudum ante lucem ad aedem Veneris venimus, primae ut inferremus ignem in aram.

Aha, non factost opus:
quae habent nocturna ora, noctu sacrificatum ire occupant.
prius quam Venus expurgiscatur, prius deproperant sedulo sacrificare; nam vigilante Venere si veniant eae, it sunt turpes, credo ecastor Venerem ipsam e fano fugent.

Edepol Milphionem miserum.
quid nunc vis tibi?

Opsecro hercle, ut mulsa loquitur.

Nil nisi laterculos, sesumam papaveremque, triticum et frictas nuces.

Ecquid amare videor?

Damnum, quod Mercurius minime amat.

Namque edepol lucrum amare nullum amatorem addeceit.

Eamus, mea germana.

Age sis, ut lubet.

Sequere hac.

Sequor.

Eunt hae.

Quid si adeamus?

Adeas.

Primum prima salva sis, et secunda tu secundo salve in pretio; tertia salve extra pretium.

Tum pol ego et oleum et operam perdidi.
We've been terribly lazy to-day.

How so, pray?

In not going long ago before dawn to Venus' temple so as to bring the first fire to her altar.

Oh dear, no, that's not necessary. It's girls with nightmare faces that go by night to be the first to sacrifice. Off they scurry, eager to make their offerings, long before Venus wakes up. Why, if she were awake when they arrived, they're so ugly that I vow I do believe they'd drive our very Venus from her shrine.

(aside) Milphio!

(drearily) Oh, Lord! Miserable Milphio! What d'ye want now?

Oh, man, man, what honeyed words!

Yes, yes, regular flapjacks—sesame and poppy seeds, wheaten flour and roasted nuts!

How looks my love to you now?

Like a financial loss—which Mercury doesn't love in the least.

Well, heavens, man! Love of gain befits no lover.

Let's go, sister mine.

Very well then, as you please.

Come along.

I am coming. (follows with the maid)

(aside to Agorastocles) They're going.

What if we go up to them?

(yawning) Go up. (Agorastocles approaches them, Milphio following at his leisure)

(with attempted sprightliness) First (to Adelphasium) to you first greetings, and (to Anterastilis) to you, second, greetings, of second value; (to maid) third, greetings, of no value.

Goodness! Then I've thrown away my time and trouble.

Ag. (to Adelphasium) Whither away?
Ad. I? To the temple of Venus.
Ag. Why there?
Ad. To propitiate Venus.
Ag. Oho! Can she be angry? Good heavens, she is propitious! Why, I'll vouch for her myself. (holding her as she seems about to go) But I say! (hesitates)
Ad. (trying half-heartedly to pull away) Pray what makes you annoy me?
Ag. Dear, dear! What a crosspatch!
Ad. Do let go, there's a nice boy!
Ag. (releasing her) But why hurry? The place is crowded now.
Ad. I know it. There are other girls there I want to look at, and I want to be looked at too. (lingers)
Ag. How is it that you like to look at frights and give them a beauty to look at?
Ad. Because there's a courtesan sale at Venus' shrine to-day: merchants are meeting there, (sadly) and I want to show myself. (still lingers)
Ag. Stuff that's unsellable you must go out and bring a buyer for: choice stuff finds a ready buyer, even if it's kept concealed. But I say! When are you coming to my house there to let me love you?
Ad. (disappointed) Oh, the day that Pluto lets the dead leave Acheron.
Ag. (tentatively) I have any number of gold pieces at home that are quite beyond control.
Ad. Bring them to me; I'll soon put them in their place. (pauses expectantly)
Mil. (sardonically) Sweet little thing! My word!

Mil. (muttering as he surveys her) The more I inspect her, the more bebandoned a bit of trash she seems.

Ad. (to Agorastocles) Let's close the conversation. It bores me.

Ag. Come, do lift up this mantle. (helping)

Ad. I am purified! Please keep your hands off me, Agorastocles, please! (pulls away)

Ag. (hopelessly) What shall I do now?

Ad. (significantly) With any sense, you can end this trouble in no time.

Ag. (apparently missing the point) What? I not trouble about you? (helplessly) I say, Milphio!

Mil. (aside) Here he is, at me again! (aloud) What d'ye want?

Ag. Why is she angry with me?

Mil. Why is she angry at you? Why should I trouble about that? Is that my job or yours, to trouble about her?

Ag. (wildly) Now, by heaven, you're a dead man, unless you make her tranquil for me as the sea, at times when there the halcyon doth hatch her young!

Mil. What shall I do?

Ag. Entreat, coax, cajole!

Mil. I'll do my best. But please see you don't end by exercising your fists on your envoy.

Ag. No, no!

Ad. (to Agorastocles) You aren't fair to me, but delay and do me harm. You pile up fine promises sky-high: down they all drop to nothing. You have sworn, not once, but a hundred times, to set me free: I've waited and waited for you, without making any other provision for myself, and without any action on your part—so here I am, as much a slave as ever. (turning away) Go on, sister. (to Agorastocles) And you, sir, leave me!

(aside, incensed) Shall I allow such things to be said in my presence? Death and damnation, if I don't have him dragged to the hangman fast as a four-in-hand can travel!

Don't be provoked at my master, don't, for my sake, there's a dear! If you're not angry, I'll see he gives a naggot for you and makes you a free Athenian citizen. Why don't you let him come near you? Why don't you be friendly to your friends? Supposing he did lie a bit before, from now on you'll find him reliable. Let me prevail upon you, let me take you by the ear-laps, let me give you a nice long kiss!

(angrily) Get away, will you! Like master, like man—cheats!

But just look here—I must get you pacified or, good Lord! I'll soon be getting him weepified, and if I don't pacify you, I'm scared to death he'll thrashify me. I know how mean moroseness makes him. So do let me prevail upon you, there's a dear! Do, my joy!

(furious) I'm not a farthingsworth of a man if I don't expunge that scoundrel's eyes and teeth! (laying into him) There's your joy! There's honey! There's heart's desire! There's lips of your love! There's salvation! There's a soul kiss!

ENTER LyCUS, SAVAGE.

Lyc. May all the powers above confound the pimp who after this day ever sacrifices a single victim to Venus or offers her a single grain of incense. Why, here’s my confounded self to-day, with my gods in an awful rage—six lambs I sacrificed, six, yet not a sign of a favour could I get from Venus. Seeing I was unable to get good omens, off I went at once, in a rage myself, without letting ’em cut off the sacrificial meat. That’s the tidy way I tripped her up, that greedy Venus. Seeing she wouldn’t call enough enough, I called a halt. That’s the sort I am, that’s the style for me. I guarantee that after this the other gods and goddesses will be more readily contented and less grasping when they learn how the pimp tripped up Venus. And that priest, the farthingsworth of a fellow, was worthy of his job in saying all the organs boded ill and loss and heaven’s wrath for me. How can you credit such a man in

Lyc. You mean to say that anywhere there are flying men?

Anta. (firmly) There were. But I destroyed them.

Lyc. How could you?

Anta. Thus. My legions I equipped with birdlime and with slings; within they laid leaves of coltsfoot.

Lyc. Why that?

Anta. To prevent the birdlime from adhering to the slings.

Lyc. Go on. (half aside) Gad, you're a grand liar! (aloud) What next?

Anta. They loaded their slings with good-sized balls of birdlime, and at my command did open fire upon those flyers. Why prolong the tale? Struck by the birdlime, they fell to the ground thick as pears. As each one fell, I straightway ran him through the brain with one of his own feathers and killed him like a turtle-dove.

Lyc. Gad! If that ever took place, may Jupiter take me and make me sacrifice eternally with never one good omen.

But it's no use my having chosen these drag-footed beaus, the slowest ever. (shouting down the street) Come, get going, if you intend to get here to-day, or else get to the devil out of here! Is this the way for friends to go to give aid to a lover? Why, that gait of yours must have been sifted through a flour sieve—if it's not a shuffle step you learned in a chain gang.

ENTER Counsellors, UNHURRIED.

Couns. See here, you, we may seem to be only poor plebeians, but if you get abusive, noble plutocrat or not, you'll find us ready and willing to make a plutocrat feel most unfortunate. Your love, or hate, means not a thing to us: when we bought our liberty it was our own money bought it, not yours; we are free men and ought to be. We don't give a hang for you, so don't mistake us for bond-slaves of your passion. A sober pace in the city streets is the suitable thing for free men; it has a servile look to bustle about on the run. Especially when peace prevails and enemies are dead, flurry is unseemly. But if you were in such haste, you should have taken us here as counsellors the day before. No one of us—and don't you expect it—will go running through the streets this day and have people thinking us madmen and chasing us with stones.

Yes, but if I had said I was taking you to the temple to lunch, you'd have outstripped a stag or outstridden a stilt-walker. As it is, since I said I was taking you to be my counsellors and witnesses, you have the gout and have out-lagged a snail.

Couns. Well, and haven't you good reason to show some speed when you're headed for where you can drink, ubi bibas, edas de alieno quantum velis usque ad fatim, quod tu invitus numquam reddas domino, de quoio ederis?
sed tamen cum eo cum quiqui, quamquam sumus pauperculi, est domi quod edimus, ne nos tam contemptim conteras.
quidquid est pauxillulum illuc, nostrum id omne, non tuomst, nequenos quemquam flagitamus neque nos quisquam flagitat.

Ag. Nimis iracundi estis: equidem haec vobis dixi per iocum.
Adv. Per iocum itidem dictum habeto quae nos tibi respondimus.¹
Ag. Scitis rem, narravi vobis quod vestra opera mi opus siet, de lenone hoc, qui me amantem ludificatur tam diu, ei paratae ut sint insidiae de auro et de servo meo.
Adv. Omnia istace scimus iam nos, si hi spectatores sciant; 550 horunc hic nunc causa haec agitur spectatorum fabula: hos te satius est docere, ut, quando agas, quid agas sciant.
nos tu ne curassis: scimus rem omnem, quippe omnes simul

Ag. Obseoro hercle, operam celocem hanc mihi, ne corbitam date; attrepidate saltem, nam vos adproperare haud postulo.
Adv. Si quid tu placide otioseque agere vis, operam damus; si properas, cursores melius te advocatos ducere.
and eat as much as you can want and hold, at another man’s expense, and never be obliged to pay back the host that fed you? But in any case, however, even though we are poor folks, we do have food of our own, so you needn’t treat us as trash to trample on. The little we have, however little, is all ours, not yours; we dun nobody and nobody duns us. No one of us intends to burst the blood-vessels of his lungs because of you.

1g. (placatingly) Oh, you’re too touchy: my remarks to you were only made in fun.

Jouns. (unappeased) Consider our reply to you made in fun likewise.¹

1g. You know the situation; I explained how I need your help with this pimp who has made game of me and my love so long, and how we plan to trap him with the money and my slave.

Jouns. We know all that already—if only these spectators know. It’s for their benefit we’re doing this play here now; they’re the ones for you to instruct, so that they’ll know what you’re doing when you do it. Don’t bother about us: we know the whole business, seeing we all learned our lines along with you, so as to be able to talk back to you.

1g. Very true. But come then, so that I’ll know you know, quick, tell me the things I told you a while

1g. For the love of heaven, do me the service of a speed-boat, not a barge. Hobbleahoy along, anyhow—I’m not expecting any headlong haste from you.

Jouns. If you want to do anything in a quiet, leisurely way, we are at your service; if you’re in a hurry, you’d better bring runners as counsellors.

POENULUS

ouns. So? Testing our knowledge, eh? D've suppose we don't remember how you gave bailiff Collybiscus three hundred pounds for him to take to your enemy here, the pimp, pretending he's a stranger from some other town somewhere? And when he has taken it, you'll arrive in search of your slave with your money.

g. Memorable memories! You've saved me.

ouns. He'll deny it, think it's your Milphio you're seeking; this will double the whole theft. The pimp will be adjudged to you. You wish us to be your witnesses to all this.

g. You grasp it.

ouns. Gad, barely, with our finger-tips, it's such a small affair!¹

(as his door opens) Splendid! Out come Milphio and bailiff just when they're wanted. (surveying Collybiscus) That's a royal get-up he's parading in! Suits our scheme exactly.

g. We must work rapidly and push this through. Hurry your fastest now.

ouns. A very good day to you, then. You had better bring speedy counsellors; we are slow.

g. You're excellent walkers, but, oh Lord, such rotten talkers! Ugh! I'd love to see your thighs slip to your ankles!

ouns. Yes, and we, by gad, to see your tongue slip to your loins and your eyes to the soles of your feet!

g. There, there! You ought not to get angry at what I said in joke.

ouns. No, nor you to say in joke things that insult your friends.

lg. Enough of this. You know what I want of you.

ouns. We're thoroughly grounded—to ruin the perjured pimp, that's your aim.

Scene 2. ENTER Milphio, AND Collybiscus IN FOREIGN REGIMENTS.

Mil. (to Collybiscus, anxiously) You have your instructions in mind now?
Coll. (with aplomb) Entirely.
Mil. Do see that you’re well-grounded.
Coll. Enough, enough! I’ll guarantee I’m better grounded than a ground hog.
Mil. Only make certain your part in this scheme is letter perfect.
Coll. Yes, Lord, yes! I’m more letter perfect than any actor, tragic or comic.
Mil. (half aside) A capital man!
Ag. (to Counsellors) Let’s get nearer. (approaches)
Mil. (seeing him, and assuming a masterful air) Witnesses here?
Ag. (with a wave) Yes, so many.
Mil. (looking them over contemptuously) You couldn’t have secured more suitable men for this affair. Why, there isn’t a legal holiday amongst ’em; they’re court room fixtures; there’s where they live, you can see ’em there oftener than the judge himself. The very framers of lawsuits are no more learned in matters of maw than these chaps. If they have no litigation on hand, they buy some.

Couns. You be damned!
Mil. (vehemently) Yes, by gad, and you—(pleasantly) are in any case, however, acting kindly and considerately in helping master in his love affair. (to Agorastocles) But do those fellows already understand the situation?
Ag. From end to end.

Couns. Then we ought to inspect that money, Agorastocles, so as to give intelligent testimony later on.

Coll. (opening his wallet) All right, inspect.

Couns. (looking, then to audience) This is certainly money, spectators, stage money: foreigners soak this money¹ and use it to fatten oxen. But for present purposes it’s coin of the realm—so we’ll pretend.

Coll. But so pretend that I’m a foreigner myself.

Couns. Of course, yes, and that on your arrival to-day you begged us to show you a place where you could feel free to enjoy yourself, have a girl and a bottle and a general good time.

Coll. Wonderful! My word, such sly ones!

Ag. (complacently) Well, I tutored them.

Mil. (sourly) Yes, and who you?

Coll. (nodding to Milphio and giving Agorastocles a shove) You two get busy and get inside, Agorastocles. We don’t want the pimp spying you here with me and have our scheme come a cropper.

Couns. This fellow shows sound sense. Do as he orders.

Ag. (to Milphio) Let’s be off. (to Counsellors) But you—

Couns. Enough said! Be off!

Ag. I’m off. (hesitates)

Couns. (shoving him) Then for the love of heaven, why aren’t you off?

Ag. (reluctantly) I am off.

POENULUS

Couns. What is it?
Coll. This door (indicating Lycus’ house) just did something perfectly dreadful.
Couns. Dreadful? What?
Coll. It let out a loud rumble.
Couns. You be damned! (as Lycus’ door opens) Get in the rear!
Coll. (doing so) All right.
Couns. We’ll go ahead.
Coll. (to audience) City rakes at their old game—men in the rear.
Couns. (as Lycus appears in his doorway) That man stepping out is the pimp.
Coll. Must be a good one, with that evil look. Then it’s that man stepping out whose blood I’ll now proceed to suck without getting near him.

Scene 3.

ENTER Lycus.

Lyc. (to Antamonides within) I’ll soon be there again, warrior: I want to find some pleasant fellows to join our party. Meanwhile the sacrificial meat should arrive, and the girls too, no doubt, will soon be back from worship and on hand at home. (sees the group down the street) But why is that gang marching up here? Bringing something, are they? And who on earth’s that chap in the military cloak following away behind?
Couns. (ironically) We citizens of Aetolia bid you good-morning, Lycus, although the good-morning we give you is not what we wish you.
Lyc. (in the same tone) And may all of you be fortunate, as I know for sure you will not be, or be allowed by Fortune to be.
Couns. A fool’s funds being in his tongue, he makes his investments by abusing his betters.
Lyc. Viam qui nescit, qua deveniat ad mare, eum oportet amnem quaerere comitem sibi ego male loquendi vobis nescivi viam: nunc vos mihi amnes estis; vos certum est sequi: si bene dicetis, vostra ripa vos sequar, si male dicetis, vostro gradiar limite.
Adv. Malo bene facere tantundem periculum quantum bono male facere. Qui vero?
Lyc. Scies.
Adv. malo si quid bene facias, beneficium interit; bono si quid male facias, aetatem expetit.
Lyc. Facete dictum. sed quid istue ad me attinet?
Adv. Quia nos honoris tui causa ad te venimus, quamquam bene volumus leniter lenonibus.
Lyc. Si quid boni adportatis, habeo gratiam.
Adv. Boni de nostro tibi nce ferimus nce damus neque pollicemur, neque adeo volumus datum.
Lyc. Credo hercle vobis: ita vestra est benignitas. sed quid nunc voltis?
Adv. Hune chlamydatum quem vides, ei Mars iratust.
Coll. Capiti vestro istue quidem.
Adv. Nunc hunc, Lyce, ad te diripiundum adducimus.
Coll. Cum praeda hic hodie incendet venator domum: canes compellunt in plagas lepide lupum.
Lyc. Quis hic est?
Adv. Nescimus nos quidem istum qui siet; nisi dudum mane ut ad portum processimus,

1 Leo brackets following id.

1 Aetatem expetit seemingly of double meaning: “lasts for life” and “molests a man.”
A man who does not know the way to the sea ought to seek a river to accompany him. I did not know the way to abuse of you: now you are rivers for me—I intend to follow you. If you are affable, I shall follow your bank; if you are abusive, I shall keep to your course.

Couns. (reflectively) Doing a bad man a good turn is quite as dangerous as doing a good man a bad turn.

Lyc. Really? And how so?

Couns. You shall learn. A good turn done to a bad man is a good turn dead and gone; a bad turn done to a good man is a bad turn alive and after you.¹

Lyc. (sarcastically) Very clever! But how does that pertain to me?

Couns. Because we came out of interest in you, although we have but lukewarm love for pimps.

Lyc. (warily) Much obliged, if you bring me something good.

Couns. Nothing good of our own do we bring you, or give you, or promise you, or, for that matter, wish you to get.

Lyc. By gad, I believe you: such is your benevolence.
But what do you want now?

Couns. This chap you see in the military cloak—he’s under the curse of Mars.

Coll. (aside to Counsellors) Just you keep it for yourselves!

Couns. (with a grim smile) Now we are marching him up for you to be mangled, Lycus.

Coll. (aside, chuckling) This hunter here will wend his way home to-day with some game: the dogs are driving the wolf nicely into the nets.

Lyc. (to Counsellors) Who is he?

Couns. We really can’t tell you; all we know is that when we hied us to the harbour earlier this morning we

Adv. Immo ut ipse nobis dixit, quo accures magis, trecentos nummos Philippes portat praesidi. 670 saw him disembarking from a merchantman. He made for us the moment he disembarked; he greeted us and we him.

Coll. (aside) Wily ones! The way they enter into this swindle shows training.

Lyc. What next?

Couns. Then he engaged in conversation with us. Said he was a foreigner, unacquainted with this town; wanted to be furnished a place where he could feel free to disport himself. We marched him off to you. And you—if the gods are with you, here is your chance to do yourself good.

Lyc. (still a bit doubtful) So?

Couns. He’s eager for it, has money.

Lyc. (aside, warming up) Here’s a sucker for me!

Couns. Wants to drink and wench.

Lyc. (eagerly) I have a perfect place for him.

Couns. But he wants privacy, to lie low here without anyone knowing or spying. You see he was a mercenary in Sparta—so he himself told us—serving with king Attalus; the town being captured, he fled and came here.

Coll. (aside) Mercenary! Pretty point, that! And Sparta—that’s choice!

Lyc. (jubilant) Heaven give you everything that’s fine, for giving me this fine suggestion and this fine sucker!

Couns. Sucker? Why, as he himself told us—this to make you the more solicitous—he’s succoured himself by three hundred pounds he carries.

Lyc. I’m a king, if I can only lure the chap into my house to-day.

Couns. Oh, he is yours all right.

Lyc. For heaven’s sake, do persuade him to put up with me and enjoy my excellent hospitality.
Neque nos hortari neque dehortari decet

POENULUS

Couns. It does not become us to persuade or dissuade a stranger: you will see to your own welfare, if you are wise. We have drawn the dove to the very fowling-floor for you: now you had better take care of his catching yourself, if a catch is what you want. (they move away)

Coll. (calling to them) Going so soon? How about that affair of mine, friends?

Couns. (pointing to Lycus) Better talk over your case with him, sir: he is an excellent man, for the things you are after.

Coll. (aside to Counsellors) I say, you should be here to see when I give him the money.

Couns. (aside to Collybiscus) We'll be watching it all from away over there.

Coll. (aloud to Counsellors as he approaches Lycus) You have been most kind.

Lyc. (in a low tone) My loot's coming to me!

Coll. (aside) Yes, coming the same way as the kick of an ass.

Lyc. (aside) Now for a smooth salutation! (aloud, cordially) Welcome from host to guest, sir! I am glad to see you arriving well!

Coll. (condescendingly) And may the gods be very good to you, sir, since you wish me well.

Lyc. They say you are looking for lodgings.

Coll. I am.

Lyc. And lodgings, so said those gentlemen who just now left me, free from (winking) flies.

Coll. (with an austere smile) Not in the least.

Lyc. (surprised) How so?

Coll. Because if I were looking for lodgings free from flies, I should go straight to the gaol on my arrival. (Lycus is much amused) The lodgings I look for are the sort where I'll be treated more tenderly than the very eyes of King Antiochus.
TITUS MACCIUS PLAUTUS

POENULUS

Lyc. Gad, sir, and it’s just that jolly sort of lodgings I can give you, that is, if you can endure being in a nice nook on a nicely cushioned couch with a nice little lady to love.

Coll. You are on the right road, pimp.

Lyc. Where you can bedew your soul with wine—Leucadian, Lesbian, Thasian, Chian—toothless with time. And perfumes—I’ll simply shower you with them! In short, I’ll have the bathman making a perfumery shop of your bathroom. But all these words of mine are (smirking) in the army.

Coll. How is that?

Lyc. Because they clamour for the pay-roll.

Coll. (reaching for his wallet) Oh, as for that, you are no readier to receive than I to give.

Couns. (aside) How about calling Agorastoctes out, so that he can be his own star witness? (going to his door) Hey, you thief-catcher, quick, out with you, so as to watch the pimp get the money yourself!

Scene 4. ENTER Agorastoctes INTO HIS DOORWAY, ANXIOUSLY.

Ag. (aside to Counsellors) What is it? What do you want, witnesses?

Couns. Cast your eyes to the right. Your slave will be giving the money to the pimp in person.

Coll. Come, kindly take this. (hands Lycus the wallet) Here are three hundred pounds in cash—Philipes d’or, they are called. Look after me out of this; I want it spent speedily.

Lyc. (delightedly) Man, man, you’ve got yourself a bountiful butler! Come, let’s go in. (steps towards his house)

Coll. (lingering and glancing at the others) I am following you.

POENULUS

Lyc.  (seizing his arm) Come, come, sir, step along! We'll talk over remaining details in there.
Coll.  I shall inform you of Spartian affairs, as well.
Lyc.  Yes, yes, follow me, then!
Coll.  Lead me in. (good-humouredly, with a covert wink at the others) In me you have a slave.

[EXEUNT.

Ag.  (to Counsellors) What do you recommend now?
Couns.  (coldly) That you act properly.
Ag.  What if my inward state does not permit?
Couns.  Act as it does permit.
Ag.  (assuming a court-room tone) You saw the pimp taking the money?
Couns.  We did.
Ag.  You knowing the man to be my slave?
Couns.  Yes.
Ag.  And that it was against laws repeatedly framed by the people?
Couns.  Yes.
Ag.  There! Now then, I want you to remember all that when it's needed later before the judge.
Couns.  Remembered.
Ag.  What if I batter the door (glancing at Lycus' house) while the offence is fresh?
Couns.  I approve.
Ag.  And if he pays no attention to the batter?¹
Couns.  (much bored) Then his cake is dough.¹
Ag.  If the pimp appears, what then? Should I inquire of the fellow if my slave came to his house?
Couns.  Why not?²
Couns.  Why not?
Ag.  Then the pimp will be thrown off the track at once.
Couns.  Why?
Ag.  Why? Because that sum will be a hundred pounds less.
Couns.  A happy thought.
Ag.  He'll suppose another man is in question.
Couns.  To be sure.

Couns. Yes, on oath.
Ag. He'll involve himself in theft.
Couns. Yes, no doubt.
Ag. Theft of all that was brought him.
Couns. Why not?
Ag. (angered at their contempitiousness) Be damned to you!
Couns. To you—why not?
Ag. I'll go and batter his door directly.
Couns. Why not?
Ag. (listening and looking at Lycus' house) Time to keep still! His door creaked! I see pimp Lycus coming out. Now do stand by me!
Couns. Why not? You may wish to cover our heads, so that the pimp won't know us for the men who lured him into such a mess.

Scene 5. ENTER Lycus WITH THE WALLET, NOT SEEING THEM.

Lyc. (jubilantly) The priests can all go hang this instant for any credence I give their statements from now on—with their telling me the sacrifice a while ago showed I was in for some terrible trouble and loss. And the next thing I go and make no end of money.
Ag. (stepping up) Good-day, pimp.
Lyc. (genially) God bless you, Agorastocles.
Ag. That's a kindlier greeting than you've given me heretofore.
Lyc. There's a calm now, just as for a ship at sea; sails are shifted to suit the wind.
Ag. (politely) I hope your household enjoys good health—those I wish it for; as I do not for you.
Lyc. (in the same tone) They do enjoy good health, thanks, but not for you.

POENULUS

Ag. Be so good as to send me your Adelphasium to-day, this being the festal day, worshipful and glorious, of the Aphrodisia.

Lyc. (with an air of concern) Was your luncheon at lunch to-day hot? Tell me.

Ag. Why do you ask?

Lyc. Because by this request you appear to be cooling your chops.

Ag. (sternly) Pimp, your attention, please. I have heard that my slave is at your house.

Lyc. (indignantly) At my house? You'll never find that's so.

Ag. You lie. For he came to you and brought you money. I have this information from men I fully trust. (nodding toward the Counsellors)

Lyc. (not recognizing them in his anger) You villain! Coming here to catch me with witnesses! There's not a slave of yours or anything of yours at my house.

Ag. (significantly to Counsellors, who come closer) Remember that, Counsellors.

Couns. Remembered.

Lyc. (looking at them, then aside) Ha! ha! ha! Now I've got it, I've just seen through it! These are the fellows who recommended me to that foreigner from Sparta a while ago, and now it makes them hot to think I'm going to clean up this three hundred pounds. Now knowing this chap's (glancing at Agorastocles) an enemy of mine, they've instigated him to say his slave's at my house with money. It's a plot hatched up to do me out of this and divide it amongst themselves. (chuckling) They expect to tear a lamb from a wolf! Rubbish!

Ly. I do deny it, deny it till I'm hoarsified, if that helps.

Couns. (closing in on him) Pimp, you are done for. That fellow we told you was a Spartan, that brought you three hundred pounds just now, happens to be this gentleman's bailiff. And there is the very money (pointing) in that wallet.

Ly. (aghast) Oh-h, damnation to you!

Couns. Precisely what is in readiness for you.

Ag. (seizing Lycus) Come, you criminal, drop that wallet this instant! (takes it) You're a thief, caught in the act! (to Counsellors) Now, sirs, give me your attention, I beg you, and witness my taking my slave away from him. [EXIT INTO HOUSE OF Lycus.

Ly. (aside) Oh, Lord! Now I am done for, no doubting it, no mistaking it! This was all prearranged to trap me! But why don't I hurry up and escape from here and go—(wryly) hang, before I'm dragged from here to the judge with my neck in a noose? Oh dear! When I had soothsayers, seers! Why, if they promise you something good, it comes at a sub-crawl, but anything bad they promise, you get that on the spot. Well, I'll go and consult my friends as to the most approved method of strangling myself. [EXIT, THE COUNSELLORS WORRYING HIM.

IV. 2.

Syn. Satis spectatum est, deos atque homines eius neglegere gratiam, quoi homini erus est consimilis velut ego habeo hunc huius modi. neque perior neque peior alter usquam est gentium, quam erus meus est, neque tam luteus neque tam caeno conlitus. ita me di ament, vel in lautumiis vel in pistrino mavelim agere aetatem praepeditus latere forti ferreo, quam apud lenonem hunc servitutem colere. quid illue est genus, quae illie loominum corruptelae siunt. di vostram fidem, quodvis genus ibi hominum videas, quasi Acheruntem veneris, equitem peditem, libertinum, furem an fugitivom velis, verberatum, vinctum, addictum: qui habet quod det, ut ut homo est, omnia genera recipiuntur; itaque in totis aedibus tenebrae latebrae, bibitur estur quasi in popina, hau secus. ibi tu videas litteratas fictiles epistulas, pice signatas, nomina insunt eubitum longis litteris: ita vinariorum habemus nostrae dilectum domi.

Mil. Omnia edepol mira sunt, nisi erus huncheredem facit, nam id quidem, illi, uti meditatur, verba faciet mortuo. 840 et adire lubet hominem et autem nimis eum ausculto lubens.

girl. (looking down the street) Aha! I see the pimp's slave, Syncerastus, hying him home from the shrine. (steps back) I'll overhear what he has to say.

Scene 2. ENTER Syncerastus, laden with sacrificial utensils.

Syn. (gloomily laying down his load) It's evident enough that gods and men have no regard for a chap with a master that's the sort of man my master is. A worse liar or worse rascal than that master of mine can't be found on earth, or one so foul and caked with filth. So help me heaven, I'd prefer to pass my days in a stone quarry or mill, fastened to a big iron brick, than keep on slaving it at this pimp's. What a breed they are! How men are debauched in those resorts! Lord preserve us! Any kind of person can be seen there the same as if you went to Hades! Citizens of every class, freedmen, slaves, slaves of all kinds—robbers or runaways, beaten, bound, or debtor slaves! Anyone that has the price, no matter who, all sorts are welcome. Dark little nooks, then, all over the place, eating, drinking, the same as a pothouse, no different! There you can see epistles, epistles inscribed on earthenware, sealed with pitch, names on 'em in eighteen-inch letters: why, it's a wine merchant's muster-roll we have at our house.

Mil. (aside) Gad! All very strange, unless he's made his master's heir, for really this speech he's practising sounds like the pimp's funeral oration. I'd like to hail him, and yet I very much like to listen to him, too.
TITUS MACCIUS PLAUTUS

Syn. Haec quam hic video fieri, crucior: pretiis emptos maxumis apud nos expeculiatos servos fieri suis eris.
sed ad postremum nihil apparat: male partum male disperit.

Mil. Proinde habet orationem, quasi ipse sit frugi bonae, qui ipsus hercle ignaviorem potis est facere Ignaviam.

Syn. Nunc domum haec ab aede Veneris refero vasa, ubi hostiis erus nequivit propitiare Venerem suo festo die.

Mil. Lepidam Venerem.

Syn. Nam meretrices nostrae primis hostiis Venerem placavere extemplo.

Mil. O lepidam Venerem denuo. 850

Syn. Nunc domum ibo.

Mil. Heus, Synceraste.

Syn. Syncerastum qui vocat?

Mil. Tuos amicus.

Syn. Haud amice facis, qui cum onere offers moram.

Mil. At ob hanc moram tibi reddam operam ubi voles, ubi iusseris.
habe rem paetam.

Syn. Si futurumst, do tibi operam hanc.

Mil. Quo modo?

Syn. Vt enim ubi mihi vapulandum sit, tu corium sufferas.
apage, nescio quid viri sis.

Mil. Malus sum.

Syn. Tibi sis.

Mil. Te volo.

Syn. At onus urget.

Mil. At tu appone et respice ad me.

Syn. Fecero quamquam haud otiumst.

84
It tortures me to see what goes on here—high-priced slaves going back to their masters, all denestegged at our house! But there's nothing to show for it in the end: ill gotten, ill spent.

Holding forth as if he was good for something himself—my Lord! when he's a man that can teach torpor to Torpidity!

Here I am bringing back these utensils from Venus temple, where master, for all his victims, couldn't propitiate Venus on her own festal day.

(aside) Charming Venus!

Why, our courtesans won her favour at once, with their very first victims.

(aside) Again I say, oh, charming Venus!

Now for home. (picks up his load)

Hey, Syncerastus!

Who calls Syncerastus?

A friend of yours.

It's no friendly act delaying a man that's loaded down.

But in return for delaying you I'll do you a service when you wish, when you command. Call it a bargain.

In that case, you can have this service.

How do you mean?

I mean when I have a thrashing in store you can supply the hide. Get out! I don't know what sort of man you are.

A bad one.

Be so for yourself.

I want you.

But this load's heavy.

But put it down and give me a look.

All right, though I haven't time.
TITUS MACCIUS PLAUTUS

Mil. Salvos sis, Synceraste.
Syn. O Milphio,

Mil. di omnes deaeque ament—
Syn. Quemnam hominem?

Mil. Nee te nee me, Milphio:
Syn. neque erum meum adeo.

Mil. Quem ament igitur?
Syn. Aliquam, dignus qui sit. 860

Mil. nam nostrorum nemo dignust.
Syn. Lepide loquere.

Mil. Me decet.

Mil. Quid agis?
Syn. Facio quod manufesti moechi hau ferme solent.

Mil. Quid id est?
Syn. Refero vasa salva.

Mil. Di te et tuom erum perduint.
Syn. Me non perdent; illum ut perdant facere possum, si velim,

Mil. meum erum ut perdant, ni mihi metuam, Milphio.
Syn. Quid id est? cedo.

Mil. Malus es?
Syn. Malus sum.

Mil. Male mihi est.
Syn. Memora, num esse aliter decet?

Mil. quid est, quod male sit tibi, quoi domi sit quod edis quod ames adfatim,
Syn. neque triobolum ullum amicae das et ductas gratis?

Mil. Diespiter me sic amabit,
Syn. Vt quidem edepol dignus es.

Mil. Vt ego hane familiam interire cupio.
Syn. Adde operam, si cupis. 870

Syn. Sine pennis volare hau facil est: meae alae pennas non habent.

86
POENULUS

Mil. Greetings, Syncerastus.
Syn. Oh, Milphio! May all the gods and goddesses bless—

Mil. (after waiting a moment) Well, whom?
Syn. Not you, or me, Milphio—no, nor my master either.
Mil. Whom are they to bless, then?
Syn. Anyone that’s deserving. For no one of us is.
Mil. You do say such smart things.
Syn. So I should.
Mil. What are you doing?
Syn. Something seldom accomplished by adulterers, once they’re caught.
Mil. What is that?
Syn. Taking my utensils home intact.
Mil. May the gods blast you and your master!
Syn. They won’t blast me. (mysteriously) But I can make ’em blast him, if I liked, yes, blast that master of mine, if it weren’t for my fears for myself, Milphio.

Mil. (interested) What’s all that? Let’s hear.
Syn. Are you a bad one?
Mil. A bad one I am.
Syn. (confidentially) I’m in a bad way.
Mil. (innocently) Explain—it wouldn’t be suitable otherwise? But how is it you’re in a bad way, you, having your fill of eating and loving right in the house and never giving a girl a single sixpence, but getting her gratis?
Syn. (malevolently) So help me God—
Mil. (pleasantly) As you deserve, yes indeed!
Syn. (continuing) As I long for the ruination of this household!
Mil. Add effort to your longing.
Syn. Flying without feathers is not easy: my wings (lifting his arms) have no feathers.
TITUS MACCIUS PLAUTUS

Mil. Nolito edepol devellisse: iam his duobus mensibus volucrest tibi erunt hirquinae.

Syn. I in malam rem.

Mil. I tu atque erus.

Syn. Verum. enim qui homo eum norit, norit. cito homo pervorti potest.

Mil. Quid iam?

Syn. Quasi tu tacitum habere quicquam potis sis.

Mil. Tacitas tibi res sistam quam quod dictum est mutae mulieri.

Syn. Animum inducam facile ut tibi istue credam, ni te noverim.

Mil. Crede audacter meo periculo.

Syn. Male credam, et credam tamen.

Mil. Scin tu erum tuom meo ero esse inimicum capitalem?

Syn. Scio.

Mil. Propter amorem—

Syn. Omnim operam perdis.

Mil. Quid iam?

Syn. Quia doctum doces. 880

Mil. Quid ergo dubitas quin lubenter tuo ero meus quid possiet facere faciat male, eius merito? tum autem si quid tu adivas, eo facilius facere poterit.

Syn. At ego hoc metuo, Milphio.

Mil. Quid est quod metuas?

Syn. Dum ero insidias paritem, ne me perduim, si erus meus me esse elocutum quiquam mortali sciat, continuo is me ex Syncerasto Crurifragium fecerit.

Mil. Numquam edepol mortalis quisquam fiet e me certior, nisi ero meo uni indicasso, atque ei quoque ut ne enuntiet

POENULUS

Mil. Gad! Stop plucking 'em, (pointing to Syncerastus' armpits) and in the next two months you can fly; your wings will be strong as a goat.

yn. Oh, go hang!

Mil. You go, and your master.

yn. (again mysteriously) Just so. Ah, a man that knows him knows. He can be sent to smash in no time.

Mil. How's that?

yn. As if you could keep anything silent!

Mil. I'll bury your secret in safer silence than what's told to a tongueless woman.

yn. I could easily make up my mind to trust it to you, if I didn't know you.

Mil. Be trustful, never fear, you'll run no risk.

yn. It's bad trusting, but trusting I'll be. (hesitates)

Mil. (casually) You know your master's my master's deadly enemy?

yn. (debating) Yes, yes.

Mil. On account of his love—

yn. That's all labour lost.

Mil. How so?

yn. You're informing the informed.

Mil. Then why doubt my master's hankering to do yours any harm he could, and serve him right? So you see if you help out, he can do it all the easier.

yn. But this is what scares me, Milphio. (pauses)

Mil. What is it you're scared of?

yn. Of setting traps for master and having it settle me. Why, if master knows I've blabbed to any living soul, the next second he'd change me from Syncerastus to Splintershanks.

Mil. Never, by gad, will any living soul be the wiser for me, with the one exception of my master, yes, and I'll inform him, too, only on condition that id esse facinus ex ted ortum.

Mil. sed hoc tu tecum tacitum habeto.

loquere—locus occasioque est—libere: hic soli sumus.

POENULUS

he doesn't let out that it's something you're responsible for.

Syn. (weakening) It's bad trusting, but trusting I'll be. Only do keep this a secret all to yourself.

Mil. You can't trust Faith herself more safely. Speak freely—this is the place and the time—we're all alone here.

Syn. If your master wants to show the right stuff, he'll be the ruin of my master.

Mil. How can he?

Syn. Easily.

Mil. Then explain this "easily" to me, so that I can explain it to him.

Syn. (looking about warily, then portentously) Well, that Adelphasium your master's crazy about is a free-born girl.

Mil. (amazed) Eh, how's that?

Syn. The same way as the other one is, her sister Anterastilis.

Mil. (excitedly) Produce some proof of that!

Syn. Well, master bought 'em as tiny things in Anactorium from a Sicilian pirate.

Mil. How much?

Syn. Seventy-two pounds, the pair of 'em, and their nurse Giddenis for a third. And the man that sold them admitted he was selling stolen children: said they were freeborn, from Carthage.

Mil. God be praised! What perfectly gorgeous news! Why, my master Agorastocles was born there too, and kidnapped when he was about six, and afterwards the man that kidnapped him brought him here and sold him to my master. He adopted him and left him all his money when his time came.

Syn. All this makes it so much the easier: let him claim them as freeborn girls, his own fellow-citizens.

POENULUS

Mil. (thinking) Not a word, not a word!

Syn. (after a pause) He'll surely checkmate the pimp if he captures those girls.

Mil. (exultantly) Just you watch! I'll be ending his game before he makes a single move. It's all arranged.

Syn. Heaven keep us, and get me out of slaving it for this pimp!

Mil. By Jove, it's my fellow-freedman I'll be making you, heaven willing!

Syn. (still nervous) Heaven help us! (picking up his load) You've nothing more to keep me for, Milphio?

Mil. Only to wish you farewell and good luck.

Syn. Oh Lord! That rests with you and your master. Good-bye, and do, do keep it dark, what I said.

Mil. (reassuringly) You said nothing. Good-bye!

Syn. But there is nothing in it, you know, unless you strike while the iron is hot.

Mil. (ironically) You're marvellous as an adviser. And that's how we shall strike.

Syn. You've been given fine material if you only get a fine workman.

Mil. (impatiently) Can't you stop talking?

Syn. I am stopping, and going.

[exit.

Mil. (calling after him) You're a treasure of timeliness! Well, he's gone. (gleefully) The immortal gods do want my master rescued and this pimp destroyed! What a massacre he has awaiting him! To think of another shot awaiting him before the first one's fired. (to audience) I'll go inside to report this to my master. It would be silly, you see, to summon him out front here, and here repeat all over again the things you have just now heard.

I'm informed that his son, Agorastocles, is here, however: and it's to him this token of our family friendship goes. POENULUS

Ian. Muphursa.
lg. What does he say?
Ian. Miuulec hianna.
lg. Why has he come?
Ilil. (valiantly) Don’t you hear? Mice from Africa—states he wants to give ‘em to the aediles for the circus parade.
Ian. Lech lachanna nilimniichto.
lg. What does he say now?
Ilil. Latchets, channels and nuts—that’s what he says he has brought: now he asks your aid in selling them.
lg. A merchant, apparently.
Ian. Assam.
Ilil. Yes, fat.
Ian. Palu mirga detha.
lg. What’s he saying now, Milphio?
Ilil. Paraphernalia for digging, given him for sale, he says—probably for harvesting, unless you have something else in mind.¹
lg. What is that to me?
Ilil. He wants you informed, so that you won’t fancy he has filched anything on the sly.
Ian. (angrily) Mufonnim siccoratim!
Ilil. (to Agorastocles) Oho! Just you mind you don’t do what he’s seeking.
lg. What does he say, or what is he seeking? Explain.
Ilil. For you to crate him, stone him and kill him.
Ian. Gunebbal samem lyryla!
lg. Translate, what’s that? What does he say?
Ilil. Gad! I really don’t understand it at all now.
Ian. Well, so that you may understand it, I shall now speak Latin for the future. A good-for-nothing rascal of a slave you must be, by gad, to make fun of a gentleman and a stranger here.

(to Milphio, sternly) None of your insults! Control that tongue of yours! You’ll refrain from insulting this gentleman if you are wise. I won’t hear you abusing men of my own blood. (approaching Hanno) I am a native of Carthage myself, sir, I may inform you.

(taking his outstretched hand) Well, well, compatriot! Greetings!

Gad, sir, and to you, whoever you are! And if you have need of anything, I beg you speak, command me, in the name of our common country.

I thank you, sir.² But do you know a young man here named Agorastocles?

Why, sir, if it’s the adopted son of Antidama you look for, I am your man myself.

Eh? What’s that you say?

That I am the son of Antidama.

In that case, if you wish to compare the tokens of our family friendship, look, here is mine. (produces it) (eagerly) Come, sir, come, show it to me. (examining it) Yes, it exactly matches the one I have at home. (seizes Hanno’s hand)

Well, well, my friend! Hearty greetings! Why, your father Antidamas, you know, was an old family friend of mine. I shared this token of that friendship with him.

Then as my friend you’re to be my guest here. The entertainment of a friend and the Carthage that gave me birth are things I don’t disclaim.

I am looking for the son of Antidama—direct me, if you know him—Agorastocles.

POENULUS

Han. God grant your every wish! But I say! How could you have been born in Carthage? And you with an Aetolian father.

Ag. I was kidnapped from there. Your friend Antidama brought me here, and then made me his son by adoption.

Han. (half to himself) He was an adopted child, too, of Demarchus. (earnestly scanning Agorastocles) But no more of him—to return to yourself. Tell me, do you remember your parents’ names, your father’s and mother’s?

Ag. Yes, indeed.

Han. Then tell me them. Maybe I know them, or it may be they’re related to me.

Ag. Ampsigura was my mother, my father was Iahon.

Han. (much stirred) A father and mother I only wish were alive for you this day!

Ag. Are they dead?

Han. Yes, and a hard blow it was to me. Your mother Ampsigura was my cousin; and your father, he was the son of my father’s brother, and passing away as he did, leaving me his heir, his death has been a blow I suffered from. (pausing) But if it’s true that you are Iahon’s son, there should be a mark on your left hand where a monkey bit you when you were playing with it as a boy. Hold it out, let me look!

Ag. (extending his arm) Here you are.

Han. Open it up! (examining the hand, excitedly) Listen, and listen closely!

Ag. (embracing him tempestuously) My dear uncle! God bless you!

Han. And you, Agorastocles! I feel as if I were born again, now I’ve found you.

POENULUS

luck.  (to Hanno)  But you don't mind my making a suggestion, sir?

Han.  On the contrary.

Mil.  The son ought to have back the paternal estate, sir.  It's only fair for master to get the property his father owned.

Han.  I have no other views.  It shall all be restored to him.  I'll put him in possession of his patrimony complete, once he arrives there.

Mil.  But let him have it, please, even though he lives here, sir.

Han.  Yes, and he shall have mine too, if anything happens to me.

Mil.  (with a start) A happy thought just came into my head.

Han.  What is it?

Mil.  Your help's needed, sir.

Han.  Tell me what you'd like.  You certainly can have any help you want from me.  What's the idea?

Mil.  Can you be wily, sir?

Han.  With an enemy, yes; with a friend it's foolish.

Mil.  He's an enemy of master's all right.

Han.  I should enjoy damaging him.

Mil.  Master's in love with a pimp's girl.

Han.  Sensible of him, I judge.

POENULUS

Mil. Now here’s what I have in mind, here’s the game I want to work—deputing you to state that they’re your daughters, and stolen in childhood from Carthage, and claim ’em both as freeborn, as being your own daughters. Understand now, sir?

Ian. (with feeling) Indeed I do understand. For my very own two girls, along with their nurse, were stolen like that in childhood.

Mil. (highly pleased) Gad, sir, it’s lovely the way you pretend. You pick up the part to perfection.

Ian. (breaking down) Ah, more so than I could wish!

Mil. (to Agorastoscles) Grand! My word, he’s a sly one! Such a hardened rascal, so unstolid and subtle! Look at him weeping, so as to take his rôle more realistically! Here he is, better at flimflam than myself even, the chief architect.

Ian. But the girl’s nurse—describe her appearance!

Mil. She’s not very tall, swarthy.

Ian. It’s the very one!

Mil. An attractive person, a real black-eyed brunette.

Ian. By Jove, you’ve pictured her to the life!

Mil. Want to see her?

Ian. My daughters, rather! But go and call her out. If those girls are my daughters, if she is their nurse, she’ll know me instantly.

Mil. (knocking at Lycus’ door) Hey! Anyone here? Tell Giddenis to come out! There’s someone wants to meet her.

Scene 3. ENTER Giddenis INTO DOORWAY.

Ian. Yes, yes! But where are my daughters? That's my first concern!

iudd. At the temple of Venus, sir.

Ian. Doing what there? Tell me!

iudd. This is the festival day of Venus, sir, the Aphrodisia. They've gone to pray the goddess to be propitious to them.

Mil. (convinced of Hanno's sincerity) They've been successful, that's sure enough, now he's here!

Ag. (to Giddenis) I say! Are those girls his daughters?

iudd. Indeed they are! (to Hanno) Oh, sir, your affection has been our salvation, clear as can be, arriving as you do to-day in the very nick of time! For this very day those girls were to have their names changed and disgrace their family by prostitution.

Mil. (waving Hanno's slaves and Giddenis inside) Lachanna, you people! (in an undertone) I'll soon be hustling you off to the mill, and direct from there to the dungeon and a big, stout block. I'll promise it's mild praise our hospitality gets from you.

D. Well! it was worth the while of anyone with a feeling for beauty to feast his eyes to-day by going to see the decorations at the temple. Gracious, I simply adored those offerings of the courtesans, they were so perfectly charming, worthy of Love’s lovely goddess whose power I couldn’t underestimate this day. Such quantities of lovely things as were there, and all arranged so fittingly and prettily! And the altars loaded with frankincense, myrrh, and every sweet scent! Oh, Venus, thy festival and fane seemed nothing mean! And such crowds of girls as had come there to worship our Venus of Calydon!

NT. Well, I know one thing, sister—that, for our part, we two gained a glorious victory and gained the goddess’s good-will, and the young men there didn’t make fun of us either, as they certainly did of all the rest!

POENULUS

Ian. (falling in with Agorastocles' mood) A trait from her father, that.

Ig. Eh? What? Lord, man, she used up the sagacity she got from you long ago. Her present sagacity, her present sense, she gets from me, every bit of it, from me and my love!

Id. Slaves though we are, sister, we come of no such stock as to make it fitting for us to do anything that anyone can sneer at. Women have many weaknesses, but the worst of them all is when they're too much pleased with themselves and take too little pains to please the men.

Int. Oh, it was just too lovely, sister, the omens from our sacrifice, and what the soothsayer said about us both!

Ig. (aside) If he only said something about me!

Int. That in a few days, despite our master, we'd be free! Yet I don't know how to hope for it, unless the gods do something, or our own parents.

Ig. (aside to Hanno) He relied on me, that soothsayer; yes, sir, I know he did, uncle, in promising them their freedom. He knows I love her.

Id. (moving toward Lycus' house) Come along, sister—

Int. I'm coming.

Ian. (calling to them) I should like to see you both before you leave. Stop a moment, if you don't mind.

Id. Who's calling us back?

Ig. (approaching them) A man who wants to help you.

Id. Now is the time for help. But who is he?

Ig. A friend to you girls.

Id. If only he doesn't prove unfriendly.

Ig. (to Adelphasium) He's a good one, sweetheart.

Ag. (aside to Hanno) So help me heaven, uncle dear, if I were Jupiter, I swear I’d take her for my wife at once and send Juno packing! She talks in such a seemly, thoughtful, fitting way; has such modesty of speech!
Han. (aside to Agorastocles) My child, beyond a doubt. Rather adroit, though, the way I approached them.
Ag. Gad, yes, very neat and fitting.
Han. (chuckling) Shall I go on and test them?
Ag. Be brief! (glancing at the spectators) The audience is athirst.
Han. (vehemently) Well now! Why don’t we get about our business? (advancing angrily upon the girls) I summon you to court!
Ag. That’s the right spirit now, uncle! Hold ’em! Want me to seize this one? (clasps Adelphasium)

Anta. (blustering) If that four pounds I gave the pimp isn’t avenged in fine shape, the city wits have my full permission to use me for joke-fodder! The idea of the infernal sluggard’s taking me to his house for lunch, then going out himself, leaving me there like a head butler, with neither pimp nor girls returning and not a scrap given me to eat! I took security (examining some plunder) for the larger part of that lunch, and left. That’s my way! I’ll see our sweet pimp’s touched for his army tax! He lighted on the man to swindle out of four pounds! But I only wish that girl of mine would cross my path now, angry as I am! By the Lord, I’ll up and baste her with my fists till she’s all blackbirdy! I’ll dye her dark, dye her a lot darker than Aethiopian bucket carriers at the Circus games!

POENULUS

Scene 7.

Ag. What are you at, warrior? Why so fond of this rough language to my uncle? You needn’t wonder at the women’s hanging about him: he has just discovered both these girls to be his daughters.

ENTER Lycus.

Lyc. (aside) Whew! What’s that caught my ear? Now I’m lost!

Anta. Where were they lost from?

Ag. They are Carthaginians.

Lyc. (aside) But I’m the one that’s a dead loss! I was always afraid of that, of someone’s recognizing them, and now it’s happened! (aloud) Oh dear me! The seventy-two pounds I paid for them are lost, I suppose.

Ag. And you’re lost yourself, Lycus.

Han. Who is he?

Ag. Whichever you want, a pimp or a Lycus. He kept your daughters in slavery and he robbed me of my money.

Han. A charming acquaintance you have.

Anta. Pimp, I always took you for a rapacious rascal, but those better informed add preaceous.

Lyc. (aside, eyeing Agorastoscles) I’ll up to him. (falling at his feet) By your knees, sir, I implore you and this gentleman whom I understand to be your relative—good men as you are, act as good men ought to act and show your suppliant mercy. As a matter of fact, I long ago knew they were free girls and was expecting to have someone claim them. No, they’re not mine at all. Then as for the money of yours I have at home, I’ll give it back, and I’ll take oath, Agorastoscles, that I did nothing with evil intent.

Ag. I shall consider the proper course for me to take. Let go of my knees.

Lyc. (doing so) Yes, sir, if that is your mind.

Anta. (belligerently) Hey you, pimp!

Lyc. (coolly) What do you want of a pimp who is very busy?

Anta. The return of my four pounds before you are marched off to gaol.
TITUS MACCIUS PLAUTUS

Lyc. Di meliora faxint.
Anta. Sic est: Hodie cenabis foris. aurum argentum collum, leno, tris res nunc debes simul.

Han. Quid me in hac re facere deceat, egomet mecum cogito.
si volo hunc ulcisci, litis sequar in alieno oppido, quantum audivi ingenium et mores eius quo pacto sient.

Ad. Mi pater, ne quid tibi cum istoc rei sit pessumo, obseco.

Ant. Auscultta sorori. abi, diiunge inimicitias cum improbo.

Han. Hoc age sis, leno. quamquam ego te meruisse ut pereas scio, non experiar tecum.

Ag. Neque ego; si aurum mihi reddes meum, leno, quando ex nervo emissu's—compingare in carcerem.

Lyc. Iamne autem ut soles?
Anta. Ego, Poene, tibi me purgatum volo. si quid dixi iratus adversum animi tui sententiam, id uti ignoscas quae so; et quam istas invenisti filias, ita me di ament ut mihi volup est.

Han. Ignosco et credo tibi.
Anta. Leno, tu autem amicam mihi des facito aut mihi reddas minam.

Lyc. Vin tibicinam meam habere?
Anta. Nil moror tibicinam; nescias, utrum ei maiores buccaene an mammae sient.

Lyc. Dabo quae placeat.
Anta. Cura.
Lyc. Aurum eras ad te referam tuom.
POENULUS

Lyc. God forbid!
Anta. I mean it: to-day you dine out. You now owe us three things all at once, pimp—his money, my money, and your neck.

Han. (half to himself) I wonder what I had better do in this matter. If I want vengeance on him, I’ll be going to law in a strange town, with all I’ve heard about the spirit and customs of the place.

Ad. Father dear, don’t have any trouble with the vile wretch, I beg you.

Ant. Do listen to sister. Go away, drop the quarrel with the wicked creature.

Han. Pimp, your attention, please. Although I know that you have earned a hanging, I shall not fight it out with you.

Ag. Nor I. If you return my money, pimp, once you’re out of (glancing at Antamonides) gaol, you have my permission to—be put in prison.

Lyc. (dryly) So you’re acting as usual, eh?

Anta. (to Hanno) You, sir, from Carthage—I wish to apologise to you. If in my anger I said anything that was not to your liking, pray pardon it. And so help me heaven, I am really delighted that you have found your daughters there.

Han. I do pardon you, sir, and believe you.

Anta. Pimp, as for you, go on and give me a girl or give me back my four pounds.

Lyc. Want my flute-girl?
Anta. No flute-girl for me! You can hardly tell which are bigger, her jowls or breasts.

Lyc. You shall have one that suits you.
Anta. See I do.

Lyc. (to Agorastocles) I’ll give you your money to-morrow.

ACTED AT THE MEGALESIAN GAMES
IN THE CITY-PRAETORSHIP OF MARCUS
JUNIUS, SON OF MARCUS.
ARGVMENTVM I

Praesentis numerat quindecim miles minas, Simul consignat symbolum, ut Phoeniciwm Ei det leno, qui eum cum relico adferat. Venientem caculam intervortit symbolo, Dicens Syrum se Ballionis, Pseudolus Opemque erili ita tuit; nam Simmiae Leno mulierem, quem is supposuit, tradidit. Venit Harpax verus: res palam cognoscitur, Senexque argentum, quod erat pactus, reddidit.

ARGVMENTVM II

Calidorus iuvenis meretricem Phoeniciwm ecflictim deperibat, nummorum indigus; eandem miles, qui viginti mulierem minis mercatus abiit, solvit quindecim. scortum reliquit ad lenonem ac symbolum, ut qui attulisset signum simile cetero cum pretio, secum aveheret emptam mulierem. mox missus ut prehendat scortum a milite venit calator militaris. hunc dolo adgreditur adulescentis servus Pseudolus tamquam lenonis atriensis: symbolum aufert, minasque quinke acceptas mutuas dat subditicio caculae cum symbolo; lenonem fallit sycophanta\(^1\) cacula. scorto Calidorus potitur, vino Pseudolus.

\(^1\) sycophanta Ritschl: secophantacie corrupt (Leo).
ARGUMENT OF THE PLAY (I)

A soldier leaves sixty pounds, paid down in cash, and also his seal as a token, with a pimp who is to give Phoenicium to the person who brings him such a token and the balance of the money. When the soldier's henchman comes, Pseudolus, saying he is Ballio's Syrus, diddles him out of the token, so assisting his young master. For the pimp hands over the girl to Simmia, who is palmed off as the henchman. The real Harpax arrives: everything comes to light, and the old man pays the sum he had agreed to pay.

ARGUMENT OF THE PLAY (II)

Young Calidorus, desperately infatuated with a courtesan, Phoenicium, lacked the wherewithal. A soldier purchased this girl for eighty pounds, and paying sixty down went away. He left the wench with the pimp, also a token, so that the man who brought a similar seal and the rest of the money might take away the girl he had bought. Soon an army orderly arrives, sent by the soldier to take his wench in tow. This orderly is craftily approached by Pseudolus, the young man's slave, who pretends to be the pimp's major-domo. He makes off with the token, and, borrowing twenty pounds, gives it, together with the token, to a counterfeit henchman of the soldier. The pimp is fooled by the sham henchman. Calidorus obtains his wench, Pseudolus some wine.

PSEUDOLUS

Scene:—Athens. A street in which stand the houses of Calliphio, Simo, and Ballio: between the houses are narrow lanes.

PROLOGUE

You had better stand and stretch your loins: a play by Plautus, a long one, is now to be enacted.

ACT I

ENTER Calidorus, dazed and dreary, followed by Pseudolus.

Ps. (ironically solicitous) If your silence, master mine, were only able to inform me what sort of misery's making you so damned miserable, I should have been glad to save two men trouble—me in asking you and you in answering me. Silence seeming to be inadequate, I am necessarily compelled to ask you. (more earnestly) Answer me: why is it you've been going around half alive all these days, carrying those tablets, washing them with tears, and never taking a soul into your confidence? Out with it, sir, and let me know along with yourself what I don't know.

Cal. Oh, I'm miserable, Pseudolus, so miserable!

Ps. Jupiter forbid!

Cal. (with a wan smile) This case is not within the jurisdiction of Jupiter. 'Twas Venus sentenced me to suffer, not Jupiter.

Ps. But can't I know about it all, sir? Why, you used to make me your associate-councillor-in-chief.

Cal. (after a pause) And I intend to now.

Ps. Do inform me what's ailing you, sir. I'll help—with (grinning) cash, service, or good advice.
Cal. Cape has tabellas, tute hinc narrato tibi quae me miseria et cura contabefacit.

Ps. Mos tibi geretur. sed quid hoc, quaeso?

Cal. Quid est?

Ps. Vt opinor, quaerunt litterae hae sibi liberos: alia aliam scandit.

Cal. Ludis iam ludo tuo?

Ps. Has quidem pol credo nisi Sibulla legerit, interpretari alium posse neminem.

Cal. Cur inclementer dicis lepidis litteris lepidis tabellis lepida conscriptis manu?

Ps. An, opsecro hercle, habent quas gallinae manus? nam has quidem gallina scripsit.

Cal. lege vel tabellas redde.

Ps. Immo enim pellegam. advoltito animum.

Cal. Non adest.

Ps. At tu cita.

Cal. Immo ego tacebo, tu istine ex cera cita; nam istic meus animus nunc est, non in pectore.

Ps. Tuam amicam video, Calidore.

Cal. Vbi ea est, opsecro?

Ps. Eccam in tabellis porrectam: in cera cubat.

Cal. At te di deaeque quantumst——

Ps. Servassint quidem.

Cal. Quasi solstitialis herba paulisper fui: repente exortus sum, repentino occidi.

Ps. Tace, dum tabellas pellemo.

Cal. Ergo quin legis?
PSEUDOLUS

Cal. (still hesitant, then tragically) Take these tablets, (handing them to him) and from them tell yourself what misery and solicitude subwhelm me!

Ps. Anything to oblige. (examining the writing) But what's this, for heaven's sake?

Cal. What do you mean?

Ps. (chuckling) I judge these characters are after children, the way they climb on top of each other.

Cal. (wounded) Joking now, you jester?

Ps. Gad, sir! The Sibyl may be able to read this, but I don't believe anyone else can make it out.

Cal. (rapturously) Ah, why do you disparage the dainty writing in dainty tablets indited by a dainty hand?

Ps. Lord save us! Have hens got any hands? For it surely was a hen wrote this.

Cal. You annoy me! Read the letter, or give it back.

Ps. No, no. I'll plough through it. (preparing to read aloud) Give me your sole attention.

Cal. (sighing heavily) My soul is not here.

Ps. Well, summon it.

Cal. No, not a word from me! Summon it yourself from the wax there. (indicating the tablets) For it is there my soul is now, and not within me.

Ps. (with a start) Oh, I see your girl friend, sir!

Cal. (excitedly) Where? For heaven's sake where?

Ps. (pointing to her name and guffawing) Look! At full length on the tablets, lying in wax.

Cal. (feebly indignant) Ugh! May all the powers above——

Ps. (interrupting cheerfully) Preserve me, of course, sir.

Cal. (tragic again) Like the summer grass I flourished but for a moment: quickly I sprang up and, ah, quickly did I wither!

Ps. Hush, sir, till I read these tablets through.

Cal. Then why not read?
Ps. 'Phoenicium Calidorō amatori suo per ceram et lignum litterasque interpretes salutem mittit et salutem abs te expetit, lacrumans titubanti animo, corde et pectore.'
Cal. Perii, salutem nusquam invenio, Pseudole, quam illi remittam.
Ps. Quam salutem?... Argenteam.
Ps. Pro ligneam salute vis argenteam remittere illi? vide sis quam tu rem geras.
Cal. Recita modo: ex tabellis iam faxo scies quam subito argento mi usus invento siet.
Ps. 'Leno me peregre militi Macedonio et prius quam hinc abiit, quindecim miles minas dederat; nunc unae quinque remorantur minae.

ea causa miles hic reliquit symbolum,

Ced. Prope adest exitium mihi, nisi quid mihi in te est auxili.
Ps. Sine pellegam.

PSEUDOLUS

Ps. (with due sentimental stress) "Phoenicium to her lover Calidorus, through this medium of wax and wood and letters, sends her dearest wishes, and longs to have her own dearest wish from you, longs for it with tears in her eyes, with mind and heart and soul all tremulous."

Cal. Oh, 'tis dreadful, Pseudolus! Nowhere can I find her dearest wish to send back to her.

Ps. (dryly) Her dearest wish being what?

Cal. (lugubriously) Something in silver.

Ps. You want to return her dearest wishes in silver, when you get 'em in (holding up the tablets)wood? Man, man, try to be business-like.

Cal. Ah, but just read on. I warrant you will soon learn from the letter how rapidly I need to have that silver found.

Ps. "The pimp has sold me for eighty pounds to a Macedonian soldier, to be taken to some strange land, my sweetheart. And before the soldier went away he paid down sixty pounds; so all that delays things now is twenty pounds. Because of this he left a token with the pimp—his own likeness stamped on wax with his ring—and I was to be sent along with the man who brought him a similar token. The day fixed upon for all this is the next Dionysia." Hm! That's to-morrow.

Cal. (gasping) My doom is close at hand, unless I find some help in you!

Ps. Let me read it through.

Cal. Yes, yes, for it makes me feel that I am talking with her. Read! Ah, the mixture of sweet and bitter you serve me now!

Ps. "Now all our days and ways of love and dear familiarity,¹ all the cuddling of beloved bodies close,

I have informed you fully of all this that I have learned. Now I shall test the truth, or falsehood, of your love. Farewell.”

Cal. (quite dissolved) She writes so . . . (choking) woefully, Pseudolus!

Ps. (with a disgusted glance at the handwriting) Oh, so damned woefully!

Cal. Why are you not . . . weeping?

Ps. My eyes are made of pumice-stone. Can’t entice ’em to emit one solitary tear.

Cal. How is . . . that?

Ps. Our breed always was a lot of dry-eyes, sir.

Cal. Are you not willing to . . . help me at all?

Ps. What am I to do for you?

Cal. Ah me!

Ps. “Ah me”? Gad, spare no “Ah me’s”: I’ll supply ’em.

Cal. Oh dear, oh dear! Nowhere can I find a friend to . . . borrow of!

Ps. (dolefully) Ah me!

Cal. And not a sixpence have I!

Ps. Ah me!

Cal. And to-morrow that man will . . . take away my girl!

Ps. Ah me!

Cal. Is that the way you . . . help me?

Ps. I give you what I’ve got, sir; and I’ve piled up enough “Ah me’s” in our house to last for ever.

Cal. (changing his tone to one of grim desperation) This is the end of me! But can you lend me just a single drachumam dare unam mihi, quam eras reddam tibi?

Ps. Vix herele, opinor, si me opponam pignori.
     sed quid ea drachuma facere vis?

Cal. Restim volo mihi emere.

Ps. Quam ob rem?

Cal. Qui me faciam pensilem.
     certum est mihi ante tenebras tenebras persequi.

Ps. Quis mi igitur drachumam reddet, si dedero tibi?
     an tu te ea causa vis sciens suspendere ut me defraudes, drachumam si dederim tibi?

Ps. Gad! I hardly think I could, even if I offered my carcase for security. But what d’ye want to do with the shilling?
Cal. I wish to buy myself a rope.
Ps. What for?
Cal. To make myself a swinging shape! I am resolved ere darkness falls to plunge me into darkness!
Ps. (with assumed indignation) Then who’ll give me back my shilling, if I’ve given it to you? Is this why you want to be so smart and hang yourself, so as to swindle me, once you get my shilling?
Cal. (turning again to tears) It is plain that life is ... perfectly impossible, if she be torn away from me and ... taken off!
Ps. (with contemptuous reassurance) Why weep, you cuckoo? You shall live.
Cal. And why should I not ... weep, without a sixpence to my name, or any hope of a ... penny from anywhere on earth?
Ps. To judge from the talk in this letter, the case calls for your weeping out some silver tears. Trying to ingratiate yourself with tears like those does no more good than pouring a shower into a sieve.
(clapping him on the shoulder) But never fear! I won’t desert my loving master. Somewhere today, thanks to honest effort, or to this article, (with a wave of his left hand) I have hopes of finding means to serve you—in silver. Where in the world it’s coming from, however, I can’t yet say; I only know it’s coming. The twitching of my eyebrow tells me that.

PSEUDOLUS

Ps. Gad, you know yourself how things do happen, what fine young rumpuses I raise, once I've waved my sacred wand.

Cal. All hopes for my . . . existence now rest in you.

Ps. (seemingly confident) Enough, is it, if I get this girl for you to-day, for your very own, or if I give you eighty pounds?

Cal. (still hopeless) Enough, yes, if it . . . happens.

Ps. (seeming to be supremely confident) Make formal demand of me for eighty pounds, so as to know I'll fulfil my promise. (as Calidorus still remains uncheered) For God's sake, make your demand! I'm aching to promise.

Cal. (formally, now impressed) Will you give me eighty pounds to-day?

Ps. (formally) I will. (masterfully) Now don't bother me any more. Yes, and so that you mayn't deny being told, I tell you this beforehand—if no other victim's to be found, I'll touch your father for it.

Cal. (quite revived and hugging Pseudolus ecstatically) God for ever keep you for me! (suddenly grave) But filial duty leads me to suggest that if possible you—(gleefully) even try my mother too.

Ps. As to that, you can rest easy and sleep on either —eye.

Cal. Eye, do you mean, or ear?

Ps. Ah, but my phrase is less platitudinous. (gaily imitating a public crier) Now, that none may say he was not notified, to all men, to adults here present in assembly, to all the populace, I do give notice, and to all my friends and acquaintances I do announce that they this day are to beware of me and trust me not!

Scene 2. ENTER Ballio, CRACKING A WHIP, AND FOLLOWED BY A TROOP OF SLAVES.

Bal. (ferociously) Out with you, come on, out with you, good-for-nothings I'm a fool to keep and was a fool to buy, with never any one of 'em having any notion of doing anything right, with no possibility of getting anything out of 'em, unless I try this treatment! (beats them laboriously) Men more like asses I never did see—ribs cudgelled callous! When you beat them, it's yourself you hurt most. Yes, here's the sort these whip-wasters are, this is the word with them—when you get your chance, rob, filch, grab, loot, guzzle, stuff, run. This is the way they work it, and the result is you'd rather leave wolves in charge of sheep than these chaps in charge at home. (surveying them) Yet when you look 'em over they don't seem bad. It's the work that fails! (swishing his whip) Now then! Unless all you fellows pay attention to this pronunciamento, unless you dig the sleep and sloth out of your chests and eyes, I'll flog your flanks till they're perfectly polychrome, make 'em more colourful than Campanian draperies or clipped Alexandrian rugs with their embeastified embroidery! Ugh! I had already issued orders and assigned all of you your provinces yesterday, but you rascals are blessed with brains so callous that you positively require a thrashing to remind you of your duties. (after another exhausting round) That's Hedytium, I’ll begin with you, the darling of the grain dealers, who all have great big mountains of grain in store—you kindly see that I get grain brought here, enough for this year, for me and my whole household, grain galore, till I’m so flooded with it that the city will change my name, and instead of Ballio the Pimp, proclaim me Jason the King.

I want to see (innocently emphatic) you.
(taking offence) But I want to see you both! (starting off in the opposite direction) Turn round, boy, this way!
(seizing him) Isn’t a word with you allowable?
But not agreeable.
If it’s something to your advantage?
(trying to release himself) Is it allowable or unallowable to go my way, damn it?
(clinging hard) There, there! Don’t leave!
Let go!
Ballio, listen!
I’m deaf—that is, to a gabblespender.
(hurt) I gave while I could.
I’m not after what you gave.
And I’ll give when I can.
Then take (with a wave toward his house) when you get.
Dear, dear! The awful way I wasted all I brought you, all I gave you.
(eyes still averted) Your assets being dead, you now make speeches. Poor fool, you’re whipping a dead horse.

At least look and see who this gentleman is.
I’ve long known who he has been: who he is now he can know for himself. (escapes from Pseudolus’ grip and joins the boy) Step along, you!
Can’t you give us just one friendly look, Ballio, (very ingratiatingly) to your own profit?
(half aside, stopping) I can, at that price. Why, if I was sacrificing to Jove supreme, ay, with the organs in my hands to put on the altar, and a chance for profits suddenly appeared, my offering would be all off. Profit’s a kind of piety you can’t resist, be everything else as it may.

Ps. And you be God-blessed to the full extent that he (indicating Calidorus) or I desire—or in case you deserve something different, God bless and help you not one bit.
Bal. How goes it, Calidorus?
Cal. (with a propitiating smile) I'm in agony, in love, and insolvent.
Bal. (coldly) Very pitiful—if I could keep my household running on pity.
Ps. There, there! We jolly well know what you are: no announcement's needed. But do you know what we want?
Bal. (indifferently) Yes indeed, just about—to see me in a mess.
Ps. That, and also the thing we called you back for. Now please do pay attention.

Ps. He (indicating Calidorus) feels ashamed that he hasn't yet paid you the eighty pounds for his girl that he promised you and on the day he promised it.
Bal. (dryly) It's a great deal easier to stand feeling ashamed than feeling annoyed. He feels ashamed at not having paid: I feel annoyed at not being paid.
Ps. But he will pay, he'll raise it: wait for just these next few days. You see, he's afraid you'll sell her, out of animosity.

Bal. (scornfully) Really in love, you’d have found a friendly loan, made off to a moneylender, added the itemette of interest, rooked your father.

Ps. (much shocked) He rook his father, you wicked, wicked man? No danger of your giving any good counsel!

Bal. No pimp does.

Cal. Could I rook my father of anything, when he’s such a canny old soul? And besides, even if I could, filial affection forbids.

Bal. I understand. Then at night just hug that filial affection, instead of Phoenicium. But seeing as I do that your love comes second to your filial affection, may I inquire if everyone is your father? Is there no one you can ask for a friendly loan?

Cal. Why, nowadays the very phrase “friendly loan” is obsolete.

Ps. (to Ballio) Lord, man! After those banker chaps got all full up and left their places—the ones that called in their own money and let no living soul have his—after that, by gad, everyone’s more cautious about trusting anyone.

Cal. Oh, it’s terrible, terrible! Not a penny can I turn up anywhere. Such a terrible state, to be dying of two things—love and lack of funds!

Bal. Well, buy oil on credit and sell it for cash. Why, you can clear up a cool eight hundred pounds in no time, ready money.

Cal. But, oh dear me, I’m done for by that law regarding minors! Everyone’s afraid of giving credit.

Bal. The same law binds me: I am afraid of giving credit.

Ps. Credit? Indeed? My word, aren’t you satisfied with all the use you’ve made of him?

vel sex menses opperibor.

Euge, homo lepidissume.
No lover's useful, except the kind that's a perpetual endowment. He should give, and keep on giving: when everything's gone, he should give up loving.

Have you no mercy?

There's nothing in you; words don't chink. And yet I wish you were alive and well.

Whatever he is, I certainly pronounce him dead, talking like that: life's over for a lover, once he comes to a pimp with appeals. (to Calidorus with a frosty smile) Always trot up to me with any complaint that's silver-plated. As for your present wail that you have no money, you're complaining to a stepmother.

I say! Were you ever his father's wife?

God forbid!

(urgently) Do what we ask you, Ballio. If you're timorous about trusting him, rely on me. Within the next three days, from land or sea or somewhere, I'll educe this money for you.

I trust you?

Why not?

Lord! Because I'd as soon trust you as tie up a runaway dog with a string of lambs' intestines.

(very woeful) You mean to return me evil for good this way?

(reflecting, then genially) What do you want now?

(eagerly) For you to wait just the next six days or so, and not sell her and be the death of me that love her.

(patting his shoulder) Cheer up! I'll wait six months, even. (Pseudolus is momentarily surprised) (ecstatically hugging Ballio) Oh, glorious! You dear, delightful man!

Immo vin etiam te faciam ex laeto laetantem magis?

PSEUDOLUS

Bal.  (warming up surprisingly) That's nothing. Want me to make your joy more joyous still?

Cal.  (all agog) How can that be?

Bal.  Well, because I haven’t got Phoenicium for sale now.  (Pseudolus glowers)

Cal.  You haven’t?

Bal.  I haven’t, by gad, really.

Cal.  (wild with joy) Go, Pseudolus! Fetch offerings, victims, and them that slay them, that I may do sacrifice to this Jove Supreme! Ah, yes, a much mightier Jove to me is he now than Jove himself!

Bal.  (modestly) No victims, pray. Some lambs’ inwards will suffice for propitiating me.

Cal.  (to Pseudolus) Speed! Why stand you still? Go, fetch lambs! Hear you not the words of Jove?

Ps.  I’ll be back soon; but I’ve got to go out beyond the city gate on the run, first.

Cal.  Why there?

Ps.  (glaring at Ballio) It’s from there I’ll fetch “them that slay,”¹ two of ’em, clanking along, and at the same time I’ll drive up two flocks of elm rods, so that there’ll be plenty coming to this Jove to-day to make his sacrifice successful.

Bal.  You be hanged!

Ps.  Precisely the fate of your pimpship Jove²!

Bal.  It’ll do you harm to have me dead.

Ps.  Pray how?

Bal.  This is how—once I was dead, there’d be no one in Athens more utterly useless than you.

Cal.  (bewildered) For God’s sake, answer me this question—but in sober earnest! You haven’t got my girl Phoenicium for sale?

Ps.  Pray how?

Bal.  I’ll tell you: because so long as I’m alive and live, by gad, you’ll never amount to anything.

PSEUDOLUS

Bal. (with his old disdain) Lord, no! I certainly have not, inasmuch as I sold her long ago.

Cal. (dazed) Eh? How?

Bal. Without a wardrobe, but intestinally complete.

Cal. (exchanging glances with Pseudolus, then tragically) You have sold my girl?

Bal. Exactly. For eighty pounds.

Cal. For eighty pounds?

Bal. Or for four times twenty pounds—take your pick—to a Macedonian soldier, and sixty pounds are already paid me.

Cal. What do I hear you say?

Bal. That your girl has been turned into silver.

Cal. What made you dare do that?

Bal. My fancy. She was mine.

Cal. (wildly) Ha! Go, Pseudolus! Bring a sword!

's. A sword? Why that?

Bal. That I may end his days, and mine!

's. Why not just end your own? For his will soon be ended by starvation.

Bal. (to Ballio) Answer me, most perjured soul that e’er set foot on earth! Did you not swear to sell her to none but me?

Bal. (carelessly) Admitted.

Cal. Aye, and in formal fitting terms?

Bal. Yes, and ones that showed trim tailoring.

Cal. You have perjured yourself, scoundrel!

Bal. But I have stored up cash at home. I, the scoundrel pimp, can now draw cash from my own coffers: you, the filial paragon, for all your family, haven’t got a penny.

Bal. Pseudolus, stand on the other side of him and load him up with ugly names.

's. (closing in on Ballio with alacrity) Right you are. I’d never hurry so, hurrying to the praetor to be set free.

Yes, killed 'em too, rather than keep feeding 'em. You don't feel I was at fault?

(to Calidorus, disgustedly) We're pouring words into a broken pot: our effort's wasted.

(politely) No additional remarks you two wish to make?

Are you ashamed of nothing?

Or you of being shown up as a gallant that has got nothing, an empty nut? But even though you two have treated me to all this abuse, unless the soldier brings me the twenty pounds he owes to-day—this day being the time limit set for payment—if he doesn't bring it, I fancy I am able to do my duty.

What is that?

Bring me the money yourself, and I shall break my agreement with him: this is my duty. (turning to go) If I had time, I should prolong this interview. But without money you are absurd to be looking to me for pity. These are my sentiments, so you can proceed to shape your course accordingly.

You're going already?

I have much on my hands at present.

Well, he's gone, so here you stand alone, Pseudolus. Now what'll you do, after having regaled the young master so royally with your talk?  Where is that regalement?  Here you are without a drop of definite counsel,^ or any notion where first to begin setting up your web, or exactly where to end your weaving.  But the same as a poet, once his tablets are in hand, hunts for what is nowhere on this earth, yet finds it, and makes a lie look like the truth, I'll turn poet myself now. give the young master. I'll just drop back here now and pick up their conversation. (withdraws into the alley)

Scene 5.        ENTER Simo and Callipho.

Si. (choleric) If they combed the ranks of the spendthrifts and the rakes for a dictator now in Attic Athens, I do believe no candidate would come before my son! Why, it's the one thing the whole city's talking about—how he wants to set his mistress free and is trying to find the money for it. I got this report from others; and yet it's something I long ago surmised myself and got scent of, without letting on, though.

Ps. (aside) H'm! Son smells rank to him already.
That's a death-blow to this plan, this scheme's stuck. Here I wanted to go foraging for cash, and now find the road to the place cut off completely.
With his premonitions, there's nothing for pillagers to pillage.

Call. (vigorously) If I could have my way, tale-bearers and their hearers would all be strung up, the bearers by their tongues, the hearers by their ears.
Now those reports you get, about your son having an affair and wanting to waylay you for money—very likely they're a pack of lies. But suppose they're true, has he done anything surprising, especially when moral standards are what they are to-day? If a lad's in love and sets his lady free, is that a new thing?

Ps. (aside) Delightful old gentleman!
Si. (doggedly) I object to his doing an old thing.
Call. Ah, but your objections don't count; or else you shouldn't have done the same thing in your own

Ps. (in an undertone) Mon dieu! How few ye be, ye men with the proper spirit! There! That's the sort of father a father should be to a son. (steps out)

Si. (looking about) Who's that speaking? (aside to Callipho) Oh, yes, it's that slave Pseudolus of mine! He's the one that corrupts my son for me, the sink of iniquity! He's the leader, he's the lad's tutor in it, he's the one I long to rack!

Call. (aside to Simo, soothingly) That's nonsensical now, to make a display of anger. How much better to approach him pleasantly and inquire into the truth or falsehood of those reports. "Ill well met is half-ill only."

Si. I'll take your advice.

Ps. (aside, as they come toward him) They're charging you, Pseudolus. Get your speech ready for the old boy. (aloud, flippantly) Greetings to my master first, as is proper; then, if there are any left, I let the neighbours (with a sweeping bow to Callipho) have some.

Si. (trying to be gracious) Ah, Pseudolus! And what are you doing?

Ps. (very dignified and commanding, hand on hip) Standing here in the attitude you note.

Ps. It befits a guileless and guiltless slave, if so he be, to have a proud air, in his master's presence especially.

Call. There are some matters about which we wish to question you, matters we know of and heard of ourselves in a cloudy sort of way.

Si. (to Callipho, peevishly) He'll soon talk you into thinking you're having a dialogue with Socrates instead of Pseudolus.

Ps. (virtuously) Just so. You've long had a poor opinion of me, I'm well aware. I know you hold me as a man of little honesty. You want me, want me, to be worthless: but I will be good for something.

Si. (ironically) Kindly empty your auricular apartments, Pseudolus, and let my own words find suitable quarters.

Ps. Go ahead, say what you like, even though I am incensed at you.

Si. You, a slave, incensed at me, your master?

Ps. You find that quite amazing, eh?

Si. Gad! From what you say, I must beware of you in your wrath. Ah, yes, you're planning to give me a different sort of beating than I'm in the habit of giving you. (to Callipho) What do you think?

Call. (with a covert wink at Simo) By Jove, it's my opinion that wrath is justified when you hold him as a man of little honesty.

Si. All right, all right. Let him keep his wrath: I'll take good care not to suffer from it. (to Pseudolus) But see here, what of this matter I'm asking about? (pauses)

Ps. If you want anything, ask. Consider my reply your response from Delphi. (poses as a priestess)

Si. And you didn’t know I had the mill waiting for you when you left things dark?
Ps. I did know.

PSEUDOLUS

Si. (somewhat mollified) What’ll you two do now? For no money’s to be got out of me, that’s sure, with my eyes wide open, especially. I’ll serve general notice now not to lend a penny.

Ps. (after a moment’s cogitation) I’ll never go begging to anyone, by gad, at least with you alive. By Jove, you’ll give me the money yourself; you’re the very man I’ll have it from.

Si. (indignant, but interested) You’ll have it from me?

Ps. Work hard!

Si. You can knock my eye out, by Jove, if I do give it.

Ps. You will. I warn you now to look out for me.

Si. (his interest rising) Gad, if you do get it, I’ll certainly credit you with an exploit marvellous and mighty.

Ps. I will.

Si. And if you fail?

Ps. Lay on the lash. But what if I succeed?

Si. Then Jove be your witness, you shall keep what you get for life, scot free.

Ps. See you remember that.

Si. Am I a man unable to look out, when I’ve been forewarned?

Ps. (mysteriously) I do forewarn you—look out. I warn you to look out, I tell you. Look out! Look! (Simo almost jumps) With those very hands you’ll give me the money to-day.

Call. (to Simo) Gad! He’s a masterpiece if he keeps his word.

Ps. (to Callipho) You can take me for your slave if I don’t.

Si. (sarcastically) A nice, friendly offer! You are not mine now, it seems.

Ps. Want me to add something that’ll surprise you two still more?

Ps. Before that fight is fought, I’m first putting up another fight that’ll go echoing down the ages.

Si. What fight?

Ps. You watch! Your neighbour here, the pimp, shall fall before my stratagems and artful arts, and that music-girl your son is dying for, I’ll relieve friend pimp of her in stunning style.

Si. What’s all this?

Ps. And both these fights shall be recorded victories by dusk to-day.

Si. Well, well, if you accomplish those feats as you announce, you’ll be a mightier man than King Agathocles. But if you fail, you have no objection to being stowed in the mill at once?

Ps. And not for one day, by gad, but for all the days there are! But in case I succeed, will you at once give me the money to give the pimp, of your own free will?

Call. \textit{(to Simo)} A good, fair proposition of Pseudolus. Say “I will.”

Si. Ah, but do you know what occurs to me? \textit{(eyeing Pseudolus hard)} What if these rascals have got together, or have some patchwork of tricks all pre-arranged to juggle the money out of me?

Ah, the folly of entrusting a weighty venture to a weakling heart! Ah, all things are what you make them, have the weight you give them. Ah, and I, the way I have my troops already marshalled in my mind, in double, triple, line of wile and guile, let me meet the enemy where’er I may, I—animated, I may say, by the noble spirit of my sires and by the energy and artful dodges of my own self—shall easily master, easily despoil, my foemen with my flimflam. Now for this common enemy of all of us, mine and yours, this Ballio—I’ll ballistify him in fine shape. Such is the stock from which I spring—for me ’tis seemly to succeed in weighty ventures which will leave me a lustrous name in far days to come. (looking down the street) But who is this I see? Who is this unknown thus thrown athwart my line of vision? (getting out of sight hastily, and dropping his bombast) I’d like to find out what he and his sword are doing here; I’ll ambuscade him from over here and see what he’s up to.

(counting the houses) Yes, this is the place, this is the neighbourhood he described to me, if my eyes are any judge of what that martial master of mine said—it was the seventh house from the city gate where that pimp lived who was to get the token and this money from me. But I’d certainly like to be shown whereabouts here pimp Ballio actually does live.1

PS. (aside) It’s a new plan I need now, with this new possibility suddenly turning up. I’ll begin by trying this one first. It’s all off with those other schemes I had under way. Now, by gad, it’s this armiferous envoy just arriving that I’ll spear in grand style.

What’s he saying all to himself?

Look here, young fellow.

What is it?

Are you from that Macedonian soldier man, the slave of the chap that bought a girl of us here, that paid my master, the pimp, sixty pounds, and owes him twenty?

I am. But where on earth did you ever know or see or exchange a word with me? For the fact is, I never came to Athens before, and not till to-day did I ever set eyes on you.

PSEUDOLUS

this is surely how things go—a hundred smart men’s schemes are all inferior to one lone goddess, Luck. Yes, this is the truth: it’s the way a man uses luck that brings him eminence and makes us all pronounce him wise. When we know that someone’s project came off well, we declare him to be a shrewd fellow, while the man’s a fool whose project comes to grief. We are fools not to know what folly we show in eagerly seeking for some boon or other, as if we could tell what was beneficial. Certainties we forsake, uncertainties to take. And it all comes to this, that while we are scurrying and worrying, up creeps death upon us. But enough of this philosophizing now. I’m talking too long and too much. (surveying the letter again) Ye immortal gods! It was worth its weight in gold, that lie of mine I hit upon impromptu now, when I said I belonged to the pimp. I’ll trap three people with this letter now—master, the pimp, and the man that gave it to me. (looking down the street) Grand! If here isn’t just such another thing as I hankered for happening! Yes, sir, there comes Calidorus, bringing someone or other along with him. (withdraws into the alley)

Scene 4.

ENTER Calidorus AND Charinus.

Cal. Now I have told you everything, sweet and bitter both. You know of my affection, my affliction, my need.

Char. I have everything well in mind: all I want to know is what you want me to do.¹

Cal. I told you of these other matters, but you hardly know about the token.

Char. Everything, I say, I only want to know what you want me to do.

PSEUDOLUS

Cal. Pseudolus ordered me to bring some energetic sort of person who wished me well.

Char. You follow orders excellently; for it's a friend and well-wisher you are bringing. But that Pseudolus is a new one to me.

Cal. (warmly) Oh, he's a perfect marvel, he's my homme de ressource. And he told me he'd put through the things I told you of.

Ps. (aloud) I'll address him in the grand manner.

Cal. Whose resounding voice is that?

Ps. (struts toward them; to Calidorus, in mock-tragic style) Io! Io! Thee, thee, Sire, do I seek, thee, thee, who dost give orders unto Pseudolus, that I may give thee joys thrice, threefold and triple, three joys in three ways, three delights by three arts won, from three men fraudulently gained by guile and stratagem. All this have I brought thee in this sealed document so tiny. (holds it up)

Cal. That's the man.

Char. How he tragedizes, the rapscallion!

Ps. Match thy step with mine and meet me face to face, boldly stretch forth thine arm to (waving the letter) wish welcome.

Cal. Tell me, Pseudolus—am I to wish you welcome as Wish Welcome or Wish Come True?

Ps. Ah, well, as both.

Char. Greetings, Both! But what have you done?

Ps. What fear you? (looks Charinus over)

Cal. (to Pseudolus, with a nod toward Charinus) He's the man I caught.

Ps. What? Caught?

Cal. Brought, I should say.

Ps. Who is he?

Cal. Charinus.

Ps. Bravo! Now pas de charité de Charin.

PSEUDOLUS

Char. Come, command me freely, if anything's needed.
Ps. (shaking his head) Thanks just as much. Good luck to you, Charinus. But we must not bother you.
Char. Bother me? You? Such an attitude of mind does bother me.
Ps. Well then, wait. (surveying the letter with much complacency)
Cal. What's that?
Ps. This letter and token I just intercepted.
Cal. Token? What token?
Ps. The one just brought from the soldier. His slave who was bringing this with twenty pounds in cash and was coming to carry off your girl—him have I just bamboozled.
Cal. Just how?
Ps. (severely) This play is being acted for the benefit of these spectators: they know how, having been here. You two I shall inform later.
Cal. What are we to do now?
Ps. You are to hug your girl who this day gets her freedom.
Cal. (elated) I?
Ps. Yes, you your very self there, if so be this head of mine survives—if only you two will find me a man in a hurry.
Char. Of what description?
Ps. Sly, canny, clever, the kind that, once he gets a good grip on fundamentals, can keep hold and carry on as he ought of his own ability. Yes, and one not often observed here.
Char. (after a moment's thought) If he's a slave, that doesn't matter?
Ps. (firmly) No, I much prefer a slave to a free man.
Char. I do believe I can furnish you your sly, clever chap from home, one that came from my father in

PSEUDOLUS

Carystus and hasn’t yet gone anywhere outside the house or ever come to Athens before yesterday.

Ps. You are a great help. But I need to find twenty pounds as a friendly loan which I shall pay back to-day—his father (indicating Calidorus) being indebted to me.

Char. I’ll give it to you, don’t look elsewhere.

Ps. Ah, what a timely man for me! I also need a military cloak and a sword and a broad-brimmed hat.

Char. I can supply you myself.

Ps. Ye immortal gods! I see this is not Chariness, but Profusion. But that slave who is here from Carystus—has he any sense?

Char. A strong one of goat in the armpits.

Ps. A long-sleeved tunic would be becoming to that chap. But sharpness—has he any of that on tap?

Char. Yes, and it’s like concentrated acid.

Ps. Ah, and what if there was need of his drawing something sweet from the same cellar—has he any?

Char. Sweet, eh? Myrrh syrup, raisin wine, grape-juice, honey water, honey in every form—why, once he tried setting up a Bon Marché inside himself.

Ps. Marvellous! How delightfully you do de-skin me at my own game, Charinus! But by what name does that slave go?

Char. Simia.

Ps. When affairs take a bad turn can he make a quick turn?

Char. Faster than a top.

PSEUDOLUS

Char. He's an eel, slips away.
Ps. Astute, is he?
Char. Astute as a statute.
Ps. An admirable chap, to listen to your account.
Char. Man, man! If you only knew him! The moment he sets eyes on you, he'll go ahead and state what you want him for. But what's your plan?
Ps. This. When I have him all got up, I want him to pass himself off as the soldier's slave. He is to bring this token and the twenty pounds to the pimp, and from the pimp he is to take away the girl. There! There you have the whole plot. As for the rest, how he is to handle details, I shall instruct him personally.

Cal. (restively to Charinus, who wants more information) Then why are we standing here now?
Ps. This man, get-up and got-up all complete, is to be brought to me directly at banker Aeschinus'. (waving them off) But hurry!

Cal. (pulling along Charinus) We'll be there before you. [EXEUNT.

Ps. (calling after them) Then show some speed in starting. (elated) Now any uncertainty or doubt I had before is clarified, now my mind is settled; now it's a broad highway. On I'll lead my legions all, in line beneath their standards, a bird on my left, my auspices clear and quite to my liking. I'm confident that I can finish off my foemen. Now I'll go to the forum and load up Simia with instructions for his job, so that he'll make no slip but carry off this trick like a man of training. Under my command we'll full soon take by storm this town of Pimpville. [EXIT.

III. 2.

Bal. Forum coquinum qui vocant, stulte vocant, nam non coquinum est, verum furinum est forum.
ENTER AN UNKEMPT BOY SLAVE FROM Ballio’s HOUSE.

Boy (ruefully) When the gods give a boy the job of slaving it for a pimp, and on top of that make him an ugly boy, then so far as I can size up the situation, they certainly do give him a lot of terrible trials and tribulations. Take my case and the slavery I’m let in for here, where miseries of every sort, small and big, are my mainstay. And I can’t find a single lover to love me, so that I’d finally be kept spruced up a bit. And now to-day’s the birthday of this pimp. My word, how he did threaten us all, from first to last, that whoever didn’t send him a present to-day would perish in awful agony to-morrow! Oh, Lord, I don’t know what to do now in a fix like mine! I can’t do the thing that’s generally done by those that can. So now, unless I send the pimp a present to-day, to-morrow I’ll have to swallow the stuff that fullers use. Oh, dear, how tiny I am for that even now! Lord, Lord! And yet I’m so fearfully, frightfully afraid of master now, if someone put something in my hand that made it heavier—no matter if they do say doing it makes you groan awfully—it does seem as if I could control my teeth somehow. (looking down the street) But it’s my voice and tongue I must control. There’s master coming back home and bringing a cook.

Scene 2. ENTER Ballio AND HIS BOY SLAVE, FOLLOWED BY A COOK AND HIS HELPERS WITH UTENSILS AND PROVISIONS.

Bal. (peevishly) Cooks’ Square! A fool name to name that place! Why, it’s Crooks’ Square, not Cooks’.
nam ego si iuratus peiorem hominem quaererem coquom, non potui, quam hunc quem duco, ducere, multiloquom gloriosum insulsum inutilem. quin ob eam rem Orcus recipere ad se hunc noluit, ut esset hic qui mortuis cenam coquat; nam hic solus illis coquere quod placeat potest.

Coc. Si me arbitrabare isto pacto, ut praedicaras, cur conducebas?

Bal. Inopia: alius non erat. sed cur sedebas in foro, si eras coquos, tu solus praeter alios?

Coc. Ego dicam tibi:

hominum vitio ego sum factus improbior coquos, non meopite ingenio.

Bal. Qua istuc ratione?

Coc. Eloquar.

quia enim, cum extemplo veniunt conductum coquom, nemo illum quaerit qui optimus et carissimust: illum conducunt potius qui vilissimust. hoc ego fui hodie solus obsessor fori. illi drachmissent miser: me nemo potest minoris quisquam nummo ut surgam subigere. non ego item cenam condio ut alii coqui, qui mihi condita prata in patinis proferunt, boves qui convivas faciunt herbasque oggerunt, eas herbas herbis aliis porro condiant: indunt coriandrum, feniculum, alium, atrum holus, apponunt rumicem, brassicam, betam, blitum, eo laserpici libram pondo diluont, teritur sinapis scelera, quae illis qui terunt prius quam triverunt oculi ut extillent facit. ei homines cenas ubi coquont, cum condiant, non condimentis condiant, sed strigibus, vivis convivis intestina quae exedint,
PSEUDOLUS

Why, even if I had sworn to hunt one up, a worse specimen than this cook I'm bringing is unbringable—blathering, boastful, witless, useless! The only reason Pluto hasn't wanted him in hell is so that there'd be someone left on earth to cook oblations for the dead. Why, he's the one man can cook things to their taste.

Cook (stiffly) If you thought me the sort you say, why did you hire me?

Bal. Dearth. No one else to be had. But why were you sitting in the Square, if you were a cook, you alone, you only?

Cook This is why: a defect of human nature, no fault of mine, makes me a less desirable cook.

Bal. How d'ye figure that out?

Cook You shall hear. This is the point—once folks come to hire a cook, not a soul looks for the best and most expensive: instead, they hire the cheapest. That explains my besetting the Square alone to-day. Those poor boobies are one-bobbers: no man alive can have me off my haunches for less than two bob. I am a man who seasons a dinner differently than other cooks, who season me whole plantations and put 'em on the platters and make oxen out of guests, pile on the fodder, and then proceed to season that fodder with more fodder. They serve them sorrel, cabbage, beets, spinach, flavoured with coriander, fennel, garlic, parsley, pour in a pound of assafœtida, grate in murderous mustard that makes the graters' eyes ooze out before they have it grated. When these chaps season the dinners that they come and cook, they use for seasoning no seasonings, but screech-owls, to eat the entrails out of living guests. This, this, explains why people here have such short lives—filling their bellies full of fodder of this sort, ghastly to mention, not merely to eat. Fodder that cattle will not eat, men do eat.

Bal. (contemptuously) And yourself? Use celestial seasonings, do you, that let you prolong men’s lives, you that are so censorious of these seasonings?

Cook (gravely) You may say that with confidence. Why, those that fare on food that I have seasoned are enabled to live as much as two hundred years. Why, when I have put a dash of cinnatopsis in the pans, or clovitopsis, or sageolio, or allspiceria, they heat up automatically and instantaneously. These are my seasonings for Neptune’s cattle: terrestrial cattle I season with cassitopsis, pepitilis or capsicoria.

Bal. Ugh! May all the powers above annihilate you and your seasonings, and all those lies of yours together!

Cook Kindly allow me to continue.

Bal. Continue, and be hanged!

Cook When all the pans are hot, I open them all up: the odour from ’em flies to heaven with outstretched arms.

Bal. An odour with outstretched arms, eh?

Cook Ah, I made a careless slip.

Bal. How so?

Cook I meant to say, with outstretched feet. And this odour Jupiter has each day for dinner.

Bal. In case you don’t go out to cook, how does Jupiter contrive to dine?

Cook He goes to bed without dining.

Bal. You go and be hanged! Am I to give you two bob to-day for that?

Cook I of course admit that I am a very expensive cook.

But in any house I go to, I make sure that the cost of hiring me shows in the way I work.

Cook (failing to out-glare Ballio, then amiably) Can it be you expect to find any cook without a kite’s or eagle’s claws?

Bal. Can it be you expect to go a-cooking anywhere unless your claws are clamped while you cook your dinner? (to Boy) Now then, you that belong to me! I hereby give you notice to hustle all our stuff out of range, and then keep your eyes on his eyes: wherever he looks, you look there too; if he roams about, you roam along with him; if his hand goes out, out goes yours beside it; if he picks up anything that’s his, let him have it; if it’s ours, you get a grip on the other side. If he moves, you move; stands, you stand there too; if he stoops, stoop with him. Yes, and each of these understrappers shall have his own private watchman.

too cheap. But are you giving this dinner to-day to your friends or enemies?

3al. I? Gad, to friends, of course!

Cook Why not invite your enemies instead of friends? For the dinner I set before your guests this day will be so savoury, seasoned so lusciously, so lusciously—once a man tastes a dish seasoned by me I shall have him gnawing off the ends of his own fingers.

3al. Then for God's sake, before you serve a single guest, take a taste yourself first and give one to your understrappers, so that you'll all gnaw off the ends of your own light-fingered hands.

Cook Perhaps you do not believe what I tell you now.

3al. (with gruff finality) Don't be a nuisance! You cackle too much. Shut up, will you? There! (pointing) That's my house. Be off inside with you and cook dinner. Move!

3al. (glowering after the Boy) Huh! Just look at that young limb, will you! He's already a rapscallion too, the cook's underlickprater. What to guard against first now, I absolutely don't know. Here I am with thieves in my house and a highwayman (glowering at Simo's house) next door. For my neighbour here, Calidorus' father, gave me most emphatic notice, a little while ago at the forum, to guard against his slave Pseudolus and put no trust in him. Said he was on the hunt all this day trying to see if he couldn't do me out of my girl; had vowed up and down to him he would diddle Phoenicium away from me. Now I'll go in and give notice to my household that not a soul is to put the slightest trust in Pseudolus. [Exit.

Ps. Lam hoc volo quod occeptumst agi.

PSEUDOLUS

ACT IV

ENTER Pseudolus.

Ps. (over his shoulder, ingratiatingly) If the everlasting gods ever wished any man to be assisted by aid divine, they certainly wish me and Calidorus saved and the pimp extinguished, with their producing such a clever, wily chap as you for my assistant. (pauses, then turns around) But where is the fellow? Am I getting feeble-minded, to converse with myself this way all alone? (worried) By Jove! He has come one over me, I do believe! Both of us so sharp, and I so dull a watchman! Good Lord! If that chap has slipped me, then I'm a goner and can't put through this job I wanted done to-day. (looking down the street) Ah, but there he comes, the statue of cowhide! See the step of him, the lordly strut! (calling, as pleasantly as possible) Well, my word! Gad, man, I was looking all about for you. I was most awfully afraid you had given me the slip.

ENTER Simia, swaggering along in military costume.

Sim. A function quite fitting for me, I confess.
Ps. Where was it you stopped?
Sim. (readjusting his cloak) Where I chose.
Ps. I'm well enough aware of that.
Sim. Then why ask me what you are aware of?
Ps. But I want to give you some advice.
Sim. None for me from a man that needs it so.
Ps. Really, you're treating me with positive contempt.
Sim. Contempt for you? Why not, I being a celebrated army man?
Ps. But I want this job we've begun done at once.
Sim. Numquid agere aliud me vides?
Ps. Ambula ergo cito.
Sim. Immo otiose volo.
Ps. Haec ea occasiost: dum ille dormit, volo tu prior ut occupes adire.
Sim. Quid properas? placide, ne time.
ita ille faxit Iuppiter,
ut ille palam ibidem adsiet,
quisquis illest, qui adest a milite.
numquam edepol erit ille potior Harpax quam ego. habe animum bonum:
pulchre ego hanc explicatam tibi rem dabo.
sic ego illum dolis atque mendaciis in timorem dabo militarem advenam, ipsus sese ut neget esse eum qui siet meque ut esse autemet qui ipsus est.
Ps. Qui potest?
Sim. Occidis me, cum istuc rogitas.
Ps. O hominem lepidum.
Sim. Te quoque etiam dolis atque mendaciis, qui magister mihi es, antidibo, ut scias.
Ps. Iuppiter te mihi servet.
Sim. Immo mihi.
sed vide, ornatus hic me satin condeceet?
Ps. Optume habet.
Sim. Esto.
Ps. Tantum tibi boni di immortales duint quantum tu tibi optes;
nam si exoptem, quantum dignu’s tantum dent,
minus nihilo sit.
neque ego hoc homine quemquam vidi magis malum et maleficum.
Sim. Tun id mihi?
PSEUDOLUS

Sim. (busy with his accoutrements) D'ye see me doing anything else?
Ps. Then step along quickly.
Sim. Oh, no, a leisurely pace for me.
Ps. (urgently) This is our chance: while that chap's asleep I want you to steal a march on him and present yourself first.
Sim. Why rush? Take it calmly, keep cool. I hope to heaven that chap shows up and presents himself there too, that chap, whoever he is, from the soldier's. Gad! Never will that chap beat me at being Harpax. Rest easy. I am the man to fix this up in fine shape for you. What with my tricks and lies, I shall give that chap, our military stranger, such a scare that he will deny his own identity and declare me to be himself.
Ps. How can you?
Sim. (irritably) You will be the death of me with such questions.
Ps. (soothingly) Oh, you wonderful man!
Sim. Yes, and you yourself, my teacher, in tricks and lies I shall get ahead of you, too, just to show you.
Ps. God preserve you for me!
Sim. No, for myself. (parading) But look—does this uniform become me as it should?
Ps. Marvellously.
Sim. 'Tis well.
Ps. (enthusiastically) May the immortal gods grant you every good thing you can desire for yourself; for if I should desire 'em to give you every good thing you deserve, (trying to conceal his venom with a grin) that would be less than nothing. As a bad man, bad in every act, I have yet to see this fellow's better.
Sim. (in mocking appreciation) This to me from you?
TITUS MACCIUS PLAUTUS

Ps. Taceo.
   sed ego quae tibi bona dabo et faciam, si hane sobrie rem accurassis.

Sim. Potin ut taceas? memorem immemorem facit qui monet quod memor meminit.

   teneo, omnia in pectore condita sunt, meditati sunt mihi doli docte.

Ps. Probus est hic homo.

Sim. Neque hic est neque ego.

Ps. At vide ne titubes.

Sim. Potin ut taceas?

Ps. Ita me di ament—

Sim. Ita non facient: mera iam mendacia fundes.

Ps. Vt ego ob tuam, Simia, persidiam te amo et metuo et magni facio.

Sim. Ego istuc aliis dare condidici: mi optrudere non potes palpum.

Ps. Vt ego accipiam. te hodie lepide, ubi effeceris hoc opus,

Sim. Ha ha hae.

Ps. Lepido victu, vino, unguentis et inter pocula pulpamentis;
   ibidem una aderit mulier lepida, tibi savia super savia quae det.

Sim. Lepide accipis me.

Ps. Immo si efficies, tum faxo magis id dicas.

Sim. Nisi effecerio, crueiabiliter carnifex me accipito.
   sed propera mihi monstrare, ubi sit os lenonis aedium.

Ps. Tertium hoc est.

Sim. St, tace, aedes hiscunt.

PSEUDOLUS

Ps. (dryly) I'm shut up. (glowingly) But I—the good things I'll give you and do for you, if you'll only give this matter serious attention.

Sim. (arrogantly) Can you shut up? It makes a mindful man unmindful to be reminded of what he remembers and has in mind. I know it all, everything is stored in my chest, my schemes have been given competent consideration.

Ps. A fine fellow, this!

Sim. This meaning neither him nor me.

Ps. But do see there's no slip-up.

Sim. Can you shut up?

Ps. (earnestly) So help me God—

Sim. (interrupting) Which He will not: now comes a flood of falsehoods unalloyed.

Ps. (continuing) I love you, Simia, and hold you in awe and honour, you're such a liar.

Sim. I am a master at handing out that stuff to others: you can pass off no such pap on me.

Ps. (undaunted) Ah, the wonderful treat I'll give you this day when you've put this job through—

Sim. Haw! Haw! Haw!

Ps. (continuing) Wonderful food, wine, perfumes, and goodies to go with our drinks! Yes, and a wonderful girl will be there too, to kiss you and kiss you, the nicest way.

Sim. (interested) You are giving me a wonderful treat!

Ps. That's nothing. Put this through, and I'll give you more cause to say so.

Sim. (thrilled) If I don't put it through, hangman, treat me to a halter! But hurry, show me the vent of the house of the pimp!

Ps. (pointing) The third one here.

Sim. (as the door opens) Sh-h! Shut up The house is gaping.
Ps. Credo, animo malest aedibus.
Sim. Quid iam?
Ps. Quia edepol ipsum lenonem evomunt.
Sim. Illicinest?
Ps. Illic est.
Sim. Mala mercist.¹
Ps. Illuc sis vide, ut transversus, non proversus cedit, quasi cancer solet.

IV. 2.
Bal. Minus malum hunc hominem esse opinor quam esse censebam coquom, nam nihil etiam dum harpagavit praeter eyathum et cantharum.
Ps. Heus tu, nunc occasio est et tempus.
Sim. Tecum sentio.
Ps. Ingredere in viam dolose: ego hic in insidiis ero.
Sim. Habui numerum sedulo: hoc est sextum a porta proxumum angiportum, in id angiportum me devorti iusserat; quotumamas aedis dixerit, id ego admodum incerto scio.
Bal. Quis hic homo chlamydatus est aut unde est aut quem quaeeritat? peregrina facies videtur hominis atque ignobilis.
Sim. Sed ecceum qui ex incerto faciet mihi quod quaero certius.

PSEUDOLUS

Ps. (drawing Simia into a recess) It’s a house that’s feeling ill, I fancy.
Sim. How so?
Ps. Because it’s spewing out the pimp himself, by gad!
Sim. So that’s the fellow?
Ps. That is.
Sim. He’s a poor piece of goods.
Ps. (as Ballio sidles slyly about his doorway observing operations within) Just see that, will you, how he travels sideways instead of straightways, as a crab does!

Scene 2. ENTER Ballio FROM DOORWAY.
Bal. (to himself, grimly) I do believe this chap is less dishonest than I supposed a cook could be. Why, not a thing has he cabbaged so far except a ladle and tankard.
Ps. (aside to Simia) Hey, you! Here’s your chance and time.
Sim. I agree with you.
Ps. Get into action now, and make it sly: I’ll be in ambush here.
Sim. (aloud, stepping out and studying the neighbourhood) I’ve been careful about the number: this is the sixth alley from the city gate, and that’s the alley where he told me to turn in. But how many houses he said is something I’m quite uncertain of.
Bal. (aside, seeing him) Who’s this chap in the military cloak? Where’s he from? Who’s he hunting for? Seems to be a foreigner from his looks, and no one I know.
Sim. (turning toward Ballio) Ah, but there’s someone who’ll make this doubtful quest of mine less doubtful.
Bal. Ad me adit recta. unde ego hominem hunc esse dicam gentium?
Sim. Heus tu, qui cum hirquina barba stas, responde quod rogo.
Bal. Eho. an non prius salutas?
Sim. Nulla est mihi salus dataria.
Bal. Nam pol hinc tantumdem accipies.
Ps. Iam inde a principio probe. 970
Sim. Ecquem in angiporto hoe hominem tu novisti? te rogo.
Bal. Egomet me.
Sim. Pauci istuc faciunt homines quod tu praedicas, nam in foro vix decumus quisque est qui ipsus sese noverit.
Ps. Salvos sum, iam philosophatur.
Sim. Hominem ego hic quaero malum, legirupam, impurum, peiurum atque impium.
Bal. Me quaeritis, nam illa mea sunt cognomenta; nomen si memoret modo.
quid est ei homini nomen?
Sim. Leno Ballio.
Bal. Scivin ego?
Sim. ipse ego is sum, adulescens, quem tu quaeris.
Bal. Ego enim vero is sum.
Sim. Tune es Ballio?
Bal. Vt vestitu's, es perfossor parietum. 980
Sim. Credo, in tenebris, conspicatus si sis me, apstineas manum.
Sim. Erus meus tibi me salutem multam voluit dicere.
hanc epistulam accipe a me, hanc me tibi iussit dare.
Bal. Quis is homost qui iussit?
Ps. Perii, nune homo in medio lutost; nomen nescit, haeret haec res.

248
PSEUDOLUS

Bal. (aside) He’s headed straight for me. I wonder where on earth the fellow’s from.

Sim. (to Ballio) I say, you, standing there with the billy-goat beard, answer me this.

Bal. (glaring) Oh, indeed! And no “good-day” first, eh?

Sim. I have no good day spareable.

Bal. Gad! Then you’ll find me equally generous. (turns away and looks in his door)

Ps. (aside) Here’s a fine first round to start with!

Sim. Know anyone in this alley, do you? (Ballio pays no attention) I am asking (very loudly) you.

Bal. (over his shoulder) I know myself.

Sim. You claim knowledge which few persons possess. Why, at the forum you can find hardly one man in ten who knows himself.

Ps. (aside) Saved! Now he’s philosophizing.

Sim. I am looking for a man here, a bad one, a law-breaker, foul, faithless, godless.

Bal. (aside) Hm! It’s me he’s looking for, those being my surnames. Now if he’d only mention my other name. (aloud) What is the other name of this man?

Sim. Pimp Ballio.

Bal. Didn’t I know it? (aloud) I am the person you look for, myself, young fellow.

Sim. (surveying him unappreciatively) So you are Ballio?

Bal. I certainly am.

Sim. Those clothes make you look like a burglar.

Bal. (dryly) Yes, if you spied me in the dark you probably wouldn’t hold me up.

Sim. My master wished me to extend his cordial greetings. Here, take this letter; he ordered me to give it to you. (fumbles about for it)

Bal. Who’s the man that ordered you?

Ps. (aside, observing Simia’s almost imperceptible confusion) Oh, Lord! Now he’s in a hole! He doesn’t know the name! We’re stuck!
Quem hanc misisse ad me autamas?
Nosce imaginem: tute eius nomen memorato mihi, ut sciam te Ballionem esse ipsum.
Cedo mi epistulam.
Accipe et cognosce signum.
Oh, Polymachaeroplagides purus putus est ipsus. novi. heus, Polymachaero-plagides nomen est.

nam necesset hodie Sicyoni me esse aut cras mortem exsequi, it a erus meus est imperiosus.
Novi, notis praedicas.
Propera pellegere epistulam ergo.
Id ago, si taceas modo.

PSEUDOLUS

Bal. (reaching for the letter, slightly suspicious) Who sent me this, according to you?

Sim. (holding it out of Ballio's reach, seal toward him) See if you know the likeness. Tell me his name yourself, so as to prove you are really Ballio.

Bal. Give the letter here.

Sim. Take it and identify the seal.

Bal. (aside, after a glance) Oho, it's Polymachaeroplagnides himself, plain as a pikestaff! I know him.

(Aloud) Hey, you! His name is Polymachaeroplagnides.

Sim. (relieved) Ah, I see I did right in giving you the letter, now that you have come out with the name Polymachaeroplagnides.

Bal. And what is he doing?

Sim. (giving his cloak a hitch) Ha! Deeds that befit a gallant gentleman and noble warrior. But I must ask you to make haste and read this letter through—that is imperative—then take the money at once and turn over the girl. For I must be at Sicyon to-day or submit to murder to-morrow. That is my master's style, peremptory.

Bal. (wryly) I know; I am acquainted with him.

Sim. Then read the letter without wasting time.

Bal. (opening it) So I am, if you'd only shut up. (reading) "Polymachaeroplagnides, warrior, to Ballio, pimp, indites and sends this letter sealed with the likeness before agreed upon between us both." (half aside) The token is on the letter.¹ (reading) "'Tis ¹ Vv. 1002-1008: I see and recognize the seal. But is he in the habit of sending letters that bring no wish for one's well-being?

Sim. 'Tis a way we have in the army, Ballio. 'Tis the sword of a soldier brings well-being to those that wish him well, and the selfsame sword brings ill to those that wish him ill. But go on and finish, test for yourself the contents of that letter.

Bal. Well then, listen.

TITUS MACCIUS PLAUTUS

‘Harpax calator meus est, ad te qui venit—’

Sim. Ego sum, atque ipse ἀπαξ quidem. 1010
Bal. ‘Qui epistulam istam fert; ab eo argentum accipi,

Sim. Quid nunc?
Bal. Argentum des, abducas mulierem.

Sim. Sequor.

IV. 3.

my orderly, Harpax, who comes to you——” (to Simia) So you’re this Harpax?

Sim. I am, yes, Harpyacts in person.

Bal. (reading) “and bears this letter. I wish you to receive the money from him, and with him send along the wench. ’Tis fitting in a letter to send good wishes to persons they befit: I had sent you such, did I think that they befitted you.”

Sim. (hiding a grin) What now?

Bal. (sourly) Give me the money, take the girl.

Sim. Which of us delays things?

Bal. (going toward his door) Come, follow me inside, then.

Sim. I follow. [Exeunt.

Scene 3.

Ps. A worse and wilier rascal than this Simia I never did see anywhere, by gad! Lord! The fellow’s got me scared! I’m frightfully afraid’ he’ll try his rascality on me, too, the same as on him, and now that things are going well, turn his horns in my direction, if he gets a chance to play me some rascally trick. And, gad, I certainly don’t want that, for I wish the man well. (anxiously eyeing Ballio’s door) Oh, the fearful funk I’m in now, a triple funk. First of all, I fear this pal of mine’s deserting me and crossing over to the enemy. Then too, I fear master’s returning from the forum yet and seizing the looters with the loot they’ve seized. And on top of these fears, I fear that other Harpax will get here before this Harpax gets out of here with the girl. Oh, damnation! How slow they are coming out! My heart has its luggage tied, ready to fly my chest for foreign parts, if he doesn’t bring the girl along with him! (as Simia and Phoenicium appear in the doorway) Victory! I have vanquished my wary watchmen!
IV. 4.

Sim. Ne plora, neseis ut res sit, Phoenicium, verum haud multo post faxo scibis accubans, non ego te ad illum duco dentatum virum Macedoniensem, qui te nunc flentem facit: cuiam esse te vis maxime, ad eum ducere: Calidorum haud multo post faxo amplexabere.

Ps. Quid tu intus quaeso desedisti quam diu? mihi cor retunsumst oppugnando pectore.

Sim. Occasionem repperisti, verbero, ubi perconteris me, insidiis hostilibus? quin hinc metimur gradibus militariis?

Ps. Atque edepol, quamquam nequam homo es, recte mones.

ite hac triumphi ad cantharum recta via.

IV. 5.

Bal. Hahae, nunc demum mi animus in tuto est loco, postquam iste hinc abiit atque abduxit mulierem. iube nunc venire Pseudolum, scelerum caput, et abducere a me mulierem fallaciis. conceptis hercle verbis, satis certo scio, ego periurare me mavellem miliens, quam mi illum verba per deridiculum dare. nunc deridebo hercle hominem, si convenero; verum in pistrino credo, ut convenit, fore. nunc ego Simonem mi obviam veniat velim, ut mea laetitia laetus promiscam siet.

IV. 6.

Si. Viso quid rerum meus Vlixes egerit, ianun hebat signum ex arce Ballonia.

1 Who took the Palladium from the citadel of Troy.

254
Scene 4. ENTER Simia, and Phoenicium in tears.

Sim. (in an undertone) Don't cry. You don't understand things, Phoenicium, but I'll see you do a little later on the dining couch. I'm not taking you to that sabre-toothed Macedonian hero that's causing these tears of yours. You're going to the man whose you most want to be: very soon I'll have you hugging Calidorus.

Ps. Lord, man! What made you loll around in there so long? My heart has been banging my chest till it's blunted.

Sim. (severely) You take this occasion, hangdog, to question my conduct, with the enemy all about us? Why don't we step it out of here, double time?

Ps. A good suggestion, too, by gad, even though it comes from a bad specimen. (draws Simia's sword and heads a parade) Forward, march! Straight to the tankard of victory! [Exeunt.

Scene 5. ENTER Ballio from his house.

Bal. (comfortably) Ho, ho, hum! At last I feel secure now that chap's gone and taken the girl away. Now tell Pseudolus, the fount of iniquity, to come and flimflam me out of her! One thing I know for sure—I'd rather take oath in solemn terms, by gad, and perjure myself a thousand times than be that fellow's fool and laughing-stock. Now the laugh will be against him, by gad, once I meet him—I trust he'll be in what they thought his meet place, in the mill. I only wish I could come across Simo now, to let him share the joy that I'm enjoying.

Scene 6. ENTER Simo from the forum.

Si. Now to see what my Ulysses¹ has accomplished, whether he has yet got the image from the Ballionian citadel.

¹ Ulysses: An allusion to Ulysses, the Greek hero known from Homer's Odyssey and the Greek myths. He is often depicted as a cunning and resourceful character, which may explain the term 'Ulysses' here in a humorous context.
Bal. O fortunate, cedo fortunatam manum, Simo.

Si. Quid est?
Bal. Iam—
Si. Quid iam?
Bal. Nihil est quod metuas.
Si. Quid est?

Bal. Non.
Si. Quid est igitur boni?

Si. Velim quidem hercle.
Bal. Roga me viginti minas, sive eam tuo gnato hodie, ut promisit, dabit,¹ omnibus modis tibi esse rem ut salvam scias;

atque etiam habeto mulierem dono tibi.

Si. Nullum periclumst, quod sciam, stipularier,

Bal. Dabuntur.
Si. Hoc quidem actumst hau male.²

PSEUDOLUS

Bal. (rushing up) Oh, lucky man! Out with that lucky hand, Simo! (seizing it)

Si. What’s all this?

Bal. Now——

Si. Now what?

Bal. You have nothing to fear.

Si. What’s all this? Has he come to you?

Bal. No.

Si. What’s the good news, then?

Bal. It’s safe and sound, your eighty pounds that Pseudolus engaged to get from you to-day.

Si. Egad! I only wish it were.

Bal. (supremely confident) Come, make formal demand that I pay you eighty pounds, if he gets hold of that girl this day or gives her to your son this day, as he agreed to do.¹ I want you to feel absolutely assured your money’s safe. Yes, and you can have the girl too as a gift for yourself.

Si. There’s no risk, so far as I see, in taking you up on the terms you’ve set. (formally) You will pay me eighty pounds?

Bal. I will.

Si. (aside) Not such a bad piece of work, this.² (aloud) But what’s all this? Why shouldn’t I fear him? I’m eager to hear.

¹ V. 1073: Demand it, come on, demand it: I yearn to promise it.
² Vv. 1079–1086: But did you meet the fellow?

Bal. Well, both of ’em together.

Si. What did he say? What was his story? Come, come, what did he tell you?

Bal. Oh, stage patter, the regular line of abuse a pimp gets in the comedies, stuff boys know: told me I was vile and villainous and perjured.

Si. Gad, and he told no lie.

Bal. Consequently I took no offence. For what’s the good of calling a man hard n mes when he doesn’t mind ’em and doesn’t deny ’em?

PSEUDOLUS

Bal. Because he never will, and never can, get the girl away now from me. You remember my telling you previously that she was sold to a Macedonian soldier?

Si. I remember.

Bal. Well now, his slave brought me the money and the sealed token—

Si. (interrupting) What then?

Bal. That the soldier and I had agreed on: (triumphantly) and a little while ago he took the girl off with him.

Si. You tell me this in good faith?

Bal. (grinning happily) Where should I get that?

Si. (a bit doubtful) Just be sure our friend hasn't been up to some art-work.

Bal. (easily) Oh, the letter and likeness are absolutely convincing. He just took her away from the city to Sicyon, I tell you.

Si. (assured) Well, well! Now to make Pseudolus sign up at once as an emigrant to Millcolonia. (glancing down the street) But who's this chap in the military cloak?

Bal. (looking) Gad, I don't know. But let's watch where he goes, or what he does. (draws Simo back)

Scene 7. ENTER Harpax.

Har. (smugly) A useless rascal is what he is, the fellow that's a slave and yet makes his master's orders of no account, yes, and he's a no-account fellow himself, that forgets to do his duty unless he's reminded. I tell you what, the ones that think they're free the minute they've got out from under their master's eyes, and go in for high-jinks and harlotry and consuming all they have—it's a long time the name of slave'll stick to them. Not a single good trait have they, except their persistence in evil ways. Con-sorting or talking with such chaps I don’t approve of, and I never made their acquaintance. Personally, I do what I’m told, and think my master’s about even when he’s away. I fear him now when he’s not about, so as not to fear him when he is about. (glancing at his wallet) This job must be attended to. I followed instructions and stayed at the inn all this time expecting that Syrus I gave the token to. Said he’d summon me when the pimp was at home. But now that he neither came nor called me, I’ve come here uncalled to find out what the matter is and not let that fellow make a fool of me. (surveying Ballio’s house) Well, there’s nothing better than to knock at the door and call someone out from inside here. I want the pimp to take this money from me and tell the girl to go along with me.

Bal. (aside to Simo, eagerly) Hey, you!
Si. What d’ye want?
Bal. This man is mine.
Si. Ah? How so?
Bal. Because he’s game for me. He’s after a wench, he has money. Oh, I long to set my teeth in him at once.

Si. Eh? You’ll eat that fellow up at once?
Bal. Yes, you should swallow a spender at once, while he’s fresh, while he’s hot. Good men make me poor, the worthless fat; your brisk fellows have their public use, but it’s the worthless I find useful.

Si. And hard use you’ll get from the gods, scoundrel that you are.

Har. I’m wasting time now, not knocking at this door to find out if Ballio’s home. (steps up to the house)

Bal. (aside to Simo, with a smirk) It’s Venus grants me these blessings, driving up such gainshunners, losslucrífugas, damnícupidos, qui se suamque aetatem bene curant,
edunt, bibunt, scortantur: illi sunt alio ingenio

Bal. Quia tute ipsus ipsum praesens praesentem

Bal. At hic est vir bonus.

Har. (knocking) Hullo! Where are you?
Bal. Hullo, young fellow! What are you after there?
lovers, that see they get a good time out of life, and eat and drink and wench. (balefully) They’re a different sort from you, that won’t give yourself a good time, yet envy those that do. (leaves Simo and steps out)

Har. (knocking) Hullo! Where are you?
Bal. (aside, gloating) Aha! He’s coming straight to me, straight to me! I’ll loot him well before we part; I know it, my omens are good. (advances)

Har. (knocking again) Open up here, someone, will you?
Bal. (aloud) Hullo, you in the cloak! What are you after there?

Har. (turning) I am looking for the master of the house, pimp Ballio.
Bal. Whoever you are, young fellow, save yourself the search.

Har. Why so?
Bal. Because you’re here and he’s here and you see him.

Har. (to Simo, innocently) Are you Ballio?
Si. (affronted) You there in the cloak, just you look out for trouble, (shaking his stick) crooked trouble. He’s the man (indicating Ballio) to point the finger of scorn at: he’s the pimp.

Bal. (sarcastically, with a nod toward Simo) While he’s the good man. But it’s you, good man, that get dunned in the forum loud and often, and can’t find a sou, unless this same pimp comes to your rescue.

Har. (impatient) Why not do your talking with me?
Bal. (leaving Simo, who himself withdraws a bit) I am. What do you want?

Har. (holding out the wallet) Take the money.
Bal. (reaching for it) I had my hand out long ago, waiting for it.
Har. Accipe: hie sunt quinque argenti lectae numeratae minae.
hoc tibi erus me iussit ferre Polymachaeroplagides, 1150 quod deberet, atque ut mecum mitteres Phoenicium.
Bal. Erus tuos—
Har. Ita dico.
Bal. Miles—
Har. Ita loquor.
Bal. Macedonius—
Har. Admodum, inquam.
Bal. Te ad me misit Polymachaeroplagides?
Har. Vera memoras.
Bal. Hoc argentum ut mihi dares?
Har. Si tu quidem es

Bal. Atque ut a me mulierem tu abduceres?
Har. Ita.
Bal. Phoenicium esse dixit?
Har. Recte meministi.
Bal. Mane.

Si. Quidum?
Bal. An neseis quae sit haece res?
Si. Iuxta cum ignarissimis.
Bal. Pseudolus tuos allegavit hunc, quasi a Macedonio milite esset.

Si. Haben argentum ab homine?
PSEUDOLUS

HAR. Take it. Here is twenty pounds counted out in honest coin. I was to bring this to you, the sum he owed, so my master Polymachaeroplagides said, and you were to send Phoenicium away with me.

BAL. (blankly) Your master—

HAR. Exactly.

BAL. The soldier—

HAR. Precisely.

BAL. The Macedonian—

HAR. Certainly, quite so.

BAL. You were sent to me by Polymachaeroplagides?

HAR. Correct.

BAL. To give me this money?

HAR. If you are really Ballio the pimp.

BAL. And you were to get a girl from me?

HAR. Just so.

BAL. Phoenicium, he said it was?

HAR. Your memory serves you.

BAL. (seeing a great light) Wait! (going toward Simo) I'll soon be back.

HAR. But hurry fast, for I am in a hurry: you see how late it is already.

BAL. (over his shoulder) I see. I only want a little advice from him. (indicating Simo) Just you wait there: I'll soon rejoin you. (aside to Simo, elated) What now, Simo? What next? I've caught him in the act, this chap that brought the money.

SI. How's that?

BAL. (superior) So you don't see through all this?

SI. No better than a blind man.

BAL. Your Pseudolus has deputed him to play the Macedonian soldier's man.

SI. (interested) Have you got the fellow's money?
TITUS MACCIUS PLAUTUS

Bal. Rogitas quod vides?
Si. Heus, memento ergo dimidium istinc mihi de praeda dare:
commune istuc esse oportet.

Bal. Quid, malum? id totum tuum est.
Har. Quam mox mi operam das?
Bal. Tibi do equidem. quid nunc mi es auctor, Simo?
Si. Exploratorem hunc faciamus ludos suppositicium, adeo donicum ipsus sese ludos fieri sensorit.

Bal. Sequere. quid ais? nempe tu illius servos es?
Har. Planissume.

Bal. Quanti te emit?
Har. Suarum in pugna virium victoria. 1170 nam ego eram domi imperator summus in patria mea.

Bal. An etiam umquam ille expugnavit carcerem, patriam tuam?
Har. Contumeliam si dices, audies.

Bal. Quotumo die

Har. Altero ad meridie.

Bal. Strenue meherele iisti.

Si. Scilicet.

Bal. Etiamne facere solitus es—sein quid loquar?
Si. Scilicet solitum esse.

Har. Sanine estis?

You have eyes and ask that? (dangling the wallet)
I say, just you remember, then, to let me have half that loot: it should be shared.
What the deuce? It's all yours.
(calling to Ballio impatiently) How soon do I get your attention?
(casually) You're getting it this minute. (aside to Simo) What do you recommend now, Simo?
Let's have some fun with this counterfeit scout, till he sees for himself how funny he is.
Come along. (to Harpax derisively, as they both join him) Well now? So you're the soldier's slave, are you?
Obviously.
What did he pay for you?
(haughtily) The price of his valour and victory in combat. For 'twas I commanded all the forces where I came from.
Eh? What? Did he ever storm the lock-up where you came from?
(sternly) If you speak abusively, you shall hear abuse.
How many days did it take you to come from Sicyon?
One and a half.
My word! You are a brisk traveller.
(to Ballio) Oh, he's a nimble chap, very nimble. A look at his calves would show you he can—wear fine big fetters.
I say! Tell me, when you were a boy did you use to lie in a cradle?
Of course.
And tell me, did you use to—you know what?
Of course he did.
Are you men crazy?

Bal. And answer me this question. At night when the warrior went on guard and you went along with him, was his blade a good fit for your scabbard?

Har. (angrily) You be hanged!

Bal. A likely outcome—for you, that is, and in due time to-day.

Har. Here you, send the girl out to me or else return the money.

Bal. Wait. (fingering Harpax' cloak)

Har. Why should I wait?

Bal. This cloak—come, tell us how much it cost to hire?

Har. (puzzled) What do you mean?

Si. (examining the hilt of Harpax' sword) What's the charge for borrowing this blade?

Har. (half aside) These men need a dose of hellebore.

Bal. Oh, la! (reaching for Harpax' hat)

Har. (drawing back) Let go!

Bal. And how much money does the travelling hat make to-day for its owner?

Har. What? Owner? What are you two dreaming about? All these things I have are mine, mine, paid for out of my personal property.

Bal. Situated above your upper thighs, I take it.

Har. (gathering himself together for action) These old codgers are all oiled and want a good old-fashioned rub-down.

Bal. (getting at a safer distance and dropping his levity) Come now, for heaven's sake, do answer me this question in sober earnest. What do you earn? How little did Pseudolus hire you for?

Har. Pseudolus? Who is he?

Bal. Your tutor that primed you for this trick, to get the girl away from me with your trickery.

Har. What Pseudolus? What trickery are you talking about? There is no such man alive I know.

ul. (threateningly) Get out of here, will you! There are no pickings here to-day for swindlers. So you just report to Pseudolus that another party has taken off the plunder, a Harpax that got here first.

ar. Heavens, man, but I am this Harpax myself!

ul. (mockingly) Heavens, man, you merely want to be. (to Simo) He's a swindler pure and simple.

ar. (firmly) I gave you the money, and in front of this very door a while ago, when I first arrived, I gave your servant the token, a letter sealed with the likeness of my master.

ul. (startled) You gave a letter to my slave? What slave?

ar. Surus.

ul. (to Simo, trying to seem undisturbed) This swindler doesn't rely on nonsense; he has made a bad move.¹ For that letter was brought here to me by the real Harpax in person.

ar. (with indignant vigour) My name is Harpax; the Macedonian soldier is my master. There is neither swindlering nor impropriety in any act of (with special emphasis) mine. And who on earth that Pseudolus is I do not know and have no notion.

ul. (impartially) Well, pimp, it'll be a wonder if you haven't lost your girl for good.

al. (in distress) Oh, Lord! That's just what I'm getting worse and worse afraid of, when I hear him. Oh, Lord! That Surus frigidified my heart, too, a while ago, that Surus who got the token from him. It's a wonder if it isn't Pseudolus. (to Harpax) Hi, pounds!

Well, with my mantle . . . draped about me, I gave 'em some steps like . . . this, (illustrating again) sportive-like. They clapped and yelled "More!" so I'd . . . return. I began all over again . . . (illustrating) this way: wanted something different. I was just going to let my . . . sweetie love me—when spinning round I went . . . flop! That was the death dirge of the show. And so while I'm struggling to get up—s-s-s-boom!—and there's my . . . mantle almost gone to pot! Lord, Lord! the fun I furnished 'em by my . . . accident! They gave me the tankard: I . . . drank it. Changed my mantle in a . . . hurry, took that one off. Then I left for here so as to get over my . . . intoxication. (staggering toward Simo's door) Now I'm coming from master to master . . . senior, to remind him of the . . . treaty. (shouting) Open up, open up! Hi, there! Someone announce to Simo that . . . I am here!

Si. (with assumed ire) It's the voice of a consummate villain brings me out! (observing Pseudolus' state) But what's this? How is this? What do I see?

Ps. (posing) Man with a garland . . . soused, your own slave Pseudolus.

Si. Now overflowing with freedom. (aside) But note that attitude! Not much intimidated by me, is he? (worried) I wonder what line to take with him, rough or smooth. But this thing I have here (fondly weighing the wallet) forbids violent methods now, if there's any hope for me in him.

Ps. It's (again too close to Simo's nose) nice.
Si. Nice, eh? (shoving him away vigorously) You will keep belching in my face, will you?
Ps. I've got a . . . fragrant belch. Don't be . . . bothered by it, Simo.

ARGUMENT OF THE PLAY

A fisherman hauled from the sea in his net a trunk which contained some toys belonging to his master's daughter who had been stolen and had become the slave of a pimp. Shipwrecked and cast ashore, the girl was protected by her own father without knowing who he was. After they recognize one another she is married to her lover, Plesidippus.

DRAMATIS PERSONAE

spoken by Arcturus.

In company with Him who sways all peoples and the seas and lands, a citizen am I of the celestial city. Agleam with shining star, (touching the star on his forehead) in me you see a constellation which for ever rises in its season here and in the skies. Arcturus is my name.\(^1\) 'Tis Jupiter, the lord of gods and men, that doth assign us each our different posts among the peoples, that we may learn of the deeds and ways of men, their reverence and loyalty, and how well each doth fare.

All who bring to court false cases supported by false witness, all who before the magistrate deny on oath their honest debts, them we note and take their names to Jove. Day by day He knows who they be that do seek evil here on earth. When the wicked here expect to win their suits by perjury, or press false claims before the judge, the case adjudged is judged again by Him. And the fine He fines them far exceeds their gains in courts of law.\(^1\)

The good are enrolled by Him on other tablets. Yet scoundrels think to placate Jove by gifts and offerings. Their time and money both are wasted; for he takes not tribute from a guilty hand. The righteous man will find God's grace by prayer more readily than will the knave. This do I therefore urge upon you, who are good men and lead lives of righteousness and honour: hold fast to your course, that so ye may abide in joy.

\(^1\) Vv. 6–8: By night I dwell in splendour in the skies and amongst the gods: by day I walk amongst mankind. Yet other constellations also do descend from heaven to earth.

(more familiarly) Now for our argument, the reason I appear here. First of all, Diphilus wished that this city (pointing) be Cyrene. On the farm yonder in that cottage so close to the sea lives Daemones, an old gentleman who came as an exile here from Athens—no bad sort, Daemones. No, and it is not a case of his being banished for offence; but by helping others he entangled himself, and lost through his kindliness an honestly earned fortune. He lost his daughter, too, a dear little girl: the man who stole her sold her to the worst sort of blackguard, a pimp, who brought the maiden to Cyrene here. Now a certain young Athenian, a compatriot of hers, saw her on her way home from music school and fell in love with her. Off he posts to the pimp, arranges to buy the girl for one hundred and twenty pounds, making part-payment, and binds the pimp to the bargain by an oath.

This pimp, true to type, cared not a straw for his promise or the oath he had given the young fellow. Visiting him was a Sicilian from Agrigentum, an old scoundrel of his own sort, the kind that would sell his city; and this fellow begins telling him how exquisite that maiden is and what a fine lot his other girls are, too. Then he begins pressing the pimp to pack off to Sicily along with him. "People go in for a gay life there," says he. "There's where you can make your fortune." 1

This was too tempting. Secretly chartering a ship, the pimp at night stows all he owned on board

1 V. 56: "There's the place for profits with courtesans."
leno; adulescenti qui puellam ab eo emerat ait sese Veneri velle votum solvere—id hic est Veneris fanum—et eo ad prandium vocavit adulescentem huc. ipse hinc ilico conscendit navem, avehit meretriculas.
adulescenti alii narrant ut res gesta sit,
lenonem abiisse. ad portum adulescens venit:
illorum navis longe in altum absesserat.

Ego quoniam video virginem asportarier, tetuli ei auxilium et lenoni exitium simul:
increpui hibernum et fluctus movi maritimos.
nam Arcturus signum sum omnium acerrimum:
vehemens sum exoriens, cum occido vehementior.

Nunc ambo in saxo, leno atque hospes, simul sedent eieecti: navis confracta est eis.
illa autem virgo atque altera itidem ancillula de navi timidae desuluerunt in scapham.
nunc eas ab saxo fluctus ad terram ferunt ad villam illius, exul ubi habitat senex, cuius deturbavit ventus tectum et tegulas;
et servos illic est eius, qui egreditur foras.
adulescens huc iam adveniet, quem videbitis, qui illam mercatust de lenone virginem.

her. He tells the young fellow who had bought the girl that he wants to pay a vow to Venus—that is her temple there—(pointing) and accordingly invited him here to lunch. Then he himself straightway embarks and proceeds to sail off with his little stock of courtesans. The young fellow is informed by others of these happenings and the pimp’s departure. He goes to the harbour: their ship was far, far out at sea.

Then it was that I, beholding the maiden borne away, came to her rescue, and also came with ruin to the pimp. I raised a blustering gale and waked the waters of the deep. For Arcturus, the fiercest constellation of them all, am I, tempestuous when I rise, and when I set more tempestuous still.

So now side by side upon a rock are seated pimp and guest, a pair of castaways: their ship is wrecked. That maiden, however, and another slave girl likewise, were terrified and jumped from the ship into a boat. And now the waves are driving them from the rock toward shore, at the spot where that old exile dwells in this cottage, the roof and tiles of which were torn off by the storm. (as Sceparnio appears in Daemones’ doorway) Ah, that is his slave who is coming out. Soon you will see arriving the young man who bought the maiden from the pimp. Fare ye well—so well that your foes lose heart.

Scene 2. ENTER Plesidippus WITH THREE FRIENDS WEARING MANTLES AND SWORDS.

Ples. (distressed) And I've taken you away from your own affairs, and failed in what I took you for, and missed catching the pimp at the harbour. But I hated to give up hope just for lack of energy enough. That's why I've detained you all this time, friends. (moving on) Now for a look at the shrine of Venus here where he said he was going to offer sacrifice.

Scep. (reluctantly preparing to dig) If I was wise, I'd get this plaguy clay ready.

Ples. Eh! Someone talking near by! (looks around without seeing Scepanio)

ENTER Daemones FROM HIS COTTAGE.

Daem. (sharply, approaching Scepanio) Hey! Scepanio!

Scep. (digging zealously) Who's calling me?

Daem. The man that paid out money for you.

Scep. That's a good deal like calling me your slave, sir.

Daem. We need lots of clay: dig deep. My whole house has to be roofed over, I see, for now it's perfectly transparent—nothing but one great grating.

Ples. (coming up) Good-day to you, father—to both of you, in fact.

Daem. (brusquely) And to yourself.

Scep. (looking up from his digging with a growl) See here, are you male or female, calling him "father"?

Ples. I'm a man, of course.
Scep. (digging again) Look for your father further, man.
Daem. (with a scowl at Sceparnio) I did have one little daughter, sir. But I lost her, my only one. I never had a son.
Ples. (with hasty encouragement) Oh, well, the gods will give you one.
Scep. Yes, and they'll give you one, by Jove—a blistering big one, whoever you are, bothering us busy men with your babble.
Ples. (to Daemones) Do you live in that house?
Scep. What do you want to know for? Spotting the place, are you, so as to come and loot it later?
Ples. (severely) A slave must have money and merit to be so free of speech in his master's presence and insult a gentleman.
Scep. And your gentleman must have beastly bad manners to come to a stranger's house without being asked and make himself a nuisance where nothing's owed him.
Daem. That will do, Sceparnio. What do you want, young man?
Ples. (eyeing Sceparnio irately) A flogging for that fellow who's so keen to have first say, although his master's present. But I do wish to ask you a few short questions, sir, unless I am a nuisance.
Daem. Very well—even though I am occupied.
Scep. Aw, go on down to the swamp and cut some reeds so that we can roof the cottage while it's clear.
Daem. Silence! (to Plesidippus) And you, sir, if you want anything, speak.

Daem. (bitterly) Plenty of them. Why, worthies of that description have wrecked my life for me.

Ples. Here, I mean—a fellow that brought along two girls to the temple of Venus, and was preparing to offer sacrifice—to-day or yesterday?

Daem. No, I certainly have not seen anyone sacrificing there for several days now, young man, and no one can do so without my knowing it. They’re for ever coming to my house for water, or coals, or dishes, or a knife, or a spit, or a pot to cook tripe in, or something. It would seem, in short, that I got my kitchenware and well for Venus, not myself. But I’ve had a respite now for quite a number of days.

Ples. (grimly) Your words make it evident that everything’s ended for me!

Daem. Heavens, man, you can feel safe enough as far as I go.

Scep. I say, you—hanging around the temple for the sake of your belly—better let ’em get up a lunch for you at home.

Daem. You have been invited here to lunch, perhaps, and your host has failed to appear?

Ples. (brooding) Exactly.

Scep. Oh, go on home without it: we don’t mind. You ought to be chasing up Ceres, instead of Venus. It’s love she’s in charge of; it’s Ceres that’s in charge of food.

Ples. (still brooding) The infamous way that fellow has made a joke of me!

Daem. (glancing toward the sea, then suddenly) Good God! Who are those men by the shore, Sceparnio?

Ples. I say, I say, where are those men?
Daem. (pointing) There at the right, see them—near the shore?

Daem. Well, what?

Scep. Two girls sitting all alone in a boat! How they're tossed about, poor things! Good! Good! Grand! A wave drove the boat away from the rocks toward the beach! No pilot could ever have steered it better! What a surf! I don't believe I ever saw it heavier. They're all right if they only dodge those breakers! Now! Now's the time! One's overboard! Scene 3. ENTER Palaestra DRENCHED, EXHAUSTED AND BEWILDERED.

Pal. Ah, the lot of human beings is ever so much less dreadful in the telling than in the actual experience of those that suffer. Is it really the will of God that I should be cast on a strange shore in this pitiable plight and frightened so? Oh dear, oh dear! Am I to think that I was born for this? Is this my reward for trying my best to do right? Why, I can suffer this and not think it suffering, if I have sinned against a parent or against the gods. But if I have been careful as could be not to do so, then, gods, you are treating me unfittingly, unfairly, unjustly. For how will the guilty be marked out by you now, if this is the way you honour the innocent? Why, if I knew that I or my parents had acted wickedly in your sight, I should not pity myself so much; but it is my master's wickedness afflicts me, his guilt that brings me misfortune.

And now his ship is sunk and all he owned; (surveying herself despairingly) here's everything that's left him; even the girl with me in that boat fell overboard. And now I'm all alone! Oh, if only she were safe, she'd help to make these troubles more bearable! But as it is, what hope or counsel can I find? Oh, to be alone in this lonely place! Nothing but those rocks and that roaring sea, and not a living soul in sight!

These clothes that I have on are absolutely everything I own, and where to go for food and shelter I can't see. What have I left to live for now? I don't know this place, never saw it, never came here. If there was only someone at least to show me a road or a path out of here! As it is now, I can't tell whether to go this way, or that. And there's no land about here anywhere that looks cultivated, either. I'm cold, and lost, and frightened—tormented every way! Ah, my poor dear parents, you know nothing of all this, know nothing of what your poor daughter is undergoing. No matter how freeborn I was, there's no help in that. How am I less a slave now than if I had been born in slavery? Ah, little good I've ever done those that brought me up! (sinks to the ground sobbing) way things are I have no wish to live, now that I've lost the hope that cheered me. I've run around everywhere already, crept into every cranny searching for that other slave girl, and called and looked and listened, trying to track her out. And I can't find her anywhere, and I can't think where to go and hunt for her, and all this time I haven't met a soul to tell me what I want to know, and no desert's more deserted than it is here and all about here. (resolutely taking up her search again) And if she's alive, and I'm alive, I'll never give up until I find her.

Pal. (roused and alarmed) Whose voice is that I hear near by?

Amp. (startled) Dear me! That scared me! Who's that talking near by?

Pal. Kind Hope, oh, please do help me! Oh, do, do end these dreadful fears!

Amp. Surely that was a woman's voice that reached my ears!

Pal. A woman! It was a woman's voice I heard! Ampelisca? Oh, can it be? (rises, still frightened)

Amp. Palaestra? Is it you I hear?

Pal. Why not call out her name so that she can hear me? (in a quavering voice) Ampelisca!

You're taking the words right out of my mouth!

(with a final squeeze) Now we ought to get out of here.

Yes, but where to, pray?

Let's follow along the shore here.

I'll follow where you please. Shall we tramp along as we are with these wet clothes?

One has to take things as they come. (they make for the shore; Palaestra suddenly stops) Good heavens, though! What's this?

What?

Don't you see it, dear—this shrine?

Where?

(pointing) At the right!

The place seems fit for the gods, I see that.

Human beings can't be far away, with a pretty place like that here. (reverently) Whoever this god be, I entreat him to bring some relief to us poor, helpless, wretched women and rescue us from all this wretchedness.

of voices raised in prayer that brought me out here. The goddess they seek is good and kind, no grudging mistress, but a very gracious one.

Pal. (approaching humbly) Good-day to you, mother.

Ptol. And to you, my girls. (surveying them) But heavens! Where can you have come from so sorrowly attired?

Pal. We've just come from close by here, no long distance: but the place we were brought here from is a long way off.

Ptol. Brought by "wooden steed across the azure main,"
I suppose?

Pal. Indeed we were.

Ptol. Then it had been more fitting for you to come dressed in white and bringing offerings. It is not customary to visit this temple in such a state.

Pal. But, oh dear, where would you have us bring offerings from—two girls who have been cast up by the sea? (they sink to the ground before her) We now clasp your knees, and in our utter need, not knowing where we are or what to expect, we entreat you to shelter us and save us and take pity on us in this pitiful state of ours, with no place to go to, no hope, nothing in the world but what you see!

Ptol. (moved) Come, give me your hands and get up off your knees, both of you! (they rise) I'm just as compassionate as any woman can be. But my means are small, it's little I have, girls. I can barely keep body and soul together; it's at my own expense that I serve Venus.

Amp. Oh, this is a shrine of Venus, then?

Ptol. It is. I am known as the priestess of the shrine. Poor as I am, though, I shall do whatever I can to make you welcome. Come this way with me. (moves toward temple)

ENTER A GROUP OF FISHERMEN.

Poor folks have a hard life of it every way, especially if they haven’t any regular business and never learnt a trade. Whatever they have, that has simply got to do for ’em. As for us, you can just about tell what plutocrats we are from one look at our get-up. These hooks and rods here—that’s how we subsist and flourish. Day in and day out, we foot it over from the city to the sea here to do some foraging: that’s our exercise, our physical culture and wrestling. The parties we get a hold on are sea-urchins and limpets and oysters and shell-fish and snails and sea-nettles and mussels and fluted scallops. Then we take to fishing—the hook and rock kind. We haul our food from the sea. If we have no luck, no haul at all, well, we slink back home nicely cleaned and salted, and go to sleep omitting supper. And there’s no chance for us now with a heavy sea like this running: unless we find some shell-fish, we’re certainly a supperless lot. Now let’s go and show good Venus here we’re godly men so that she’ll be gracious and help us out to-day. (they approach the temple) (approaching fishermen, bumptiously) What ho! ye maritime marauders, ye Shell-and-Hookemites, ye of the starveling brood! How is life going with you? How is death coming to you?

Fishermen (looking at him disapprovingly) In the regular way, for fishermen—by hunger and thirst.

Trach. Have you seen a young fellow come along while you've been standing here, a lusty chap with a wide-awake look and a fresh complexion? Had three men with him—wearing cloaks and swords!

Fishermen No one of that description has come this way, that we know of.

Trach. Or have you seen an old Silenus with a bald forehead, a good-sized fellow with a fat belly and beetle brows and a scowl, a detestable swindler that smells to heaven, curse him, chock-full of cursed vice and villainy, that had a couple of rather sweet young things in tow?

Fishermen (moving off) Really, now, a man gifted with a list of virtues and a record like that ought to be on his way to the hangman's instead of the temple of Venus.

Trach. But tell me if you've seen him.

Fishermen No one has come this way, that's sure. Good-day.

Trach. And you, Ampelisca? What of you?

Amp. (snappishly) I’m finding youth’s glad season bad.

Trach. Don’t say a thing like that.

Amp. All sensible people should state and communicate facts. But your master Plesidippus, where is he, my good sir?

Trach. Oh, come now! Just as though he weren’t inside!

(indicating the temple)

Amp. Indeed he is not, and he has not been here at all, either.

Trach. Hasn’t been here?

Amp. And that’s the truth you’re telling.

Trach. Which is not a habit of mine, Ampelisca. But how soon will lunch be ready?

Trach. Surely your master, Labrax, invited my master, Plesidippus, to lunch here.

Amp. Oh, well, there's nothing surprising in that. If he has cheated gods and men, it's all in the day's work for a pimp.

Trach. You're not offering sacrifice here, you or your master?

Amp. You're a clairvoyant.

Trach. Then what are you doing here?

Amp. When we were in awful trouble, and mortal terror and danger of death, absolutely helpless and destitute, the priestess of Venus here saved us and took us in—Palaestra and me.

Trach. Palaestra? Master's girl? You mean to say she's here?

Amp. Certainly.

Trach. You dear thing, what perfectly delightful news! But that danger of yours—I'd very much like to hear about it.

Amp. (impressively) Last night, Trachalio mine, our ship was wrecked.

Trach. Hey? Ship? What's this wild tale?

Amp. Why, mercy on us, haven't you heard how the pimp wanted to get us quietly off to Sicily and loaded a ship with everything he owned? And now it's all lost.

Trach. (elated) Ah, Neptune, you're a beauty, bless you! You're an expert with the dice, none better! Lord, Lord, that was a beautiful throw of yours! You laid a liar low. But where is pimp Labrax at present?

Amp. He died of drink, I fancy. Those were real bumpers Neptune treated him to last night.

Trach. Gad! A case of no heeltaps! (hugging her) Oh, how I love you, Ampelisca dear, how sweet you are,

Trach. Novi, Neptunus ita solet, quamvis fastidiosus aedilis est: si quae improbae sunt merces, iactat omnis.

Amp. Vae capiti atque actati tuae.

Trach. Tuo, mea Ampelisca. scivi lenonem facere hoc, quod fecit, saepe dixi;
capillum promittam optimumst occipiamque harioleri.

Amp. Cavistis ergo tu atque erus ne abiret, cum scibatis?

Trach. Quid faceret?

Amp. Si amabat, rogas, quid faceret? adservaret dies noctesque, in custodia esset semper. verum ecastor
ut multi fecit ita probe curavit Plesidippus.

Trach. Cur tu istue dicis?

Amp. Res palam est.

Trach. Scin tu? etiam qui it lavatum in balineas, cum ibi sedulo sua vestimenta servat, tamen surripiuntur, quippe qui quem illorum observet falsust;
fur facile qui observat videt: custos qui fur sit nescit.
sed duce me ad illam ubi est.
what words of wine and honey! But how were you and Palaestra saved?

Amp. (importantly, releasing herself) It was this way. We were both frightened and jumped into the ship's boat, on seeing the ship driven toward the rocks. I hurried and unhitched the rope in the general fright, and the storm carried us and the boat off to the right, away from them. So the whole livelong night we were tossed about by the wind and waves, and oh, what didn't we go through! The wind finally did bring us ashore this morning more dead than alive.

Trach. (unfeelingly) I see. Just like old Neptune! He's a most conscientious market inspector: all trashy goods go overboard.

Amp. (indignantly) Bad luck to you!

Trach. (grinning) To you, Ampelisca dear! (complacently) I knew the pimp was up to this. Just what I said, time and again. I ought to let my hair grow and set up for a fortune-teller.

Amp. (sarcastic) So you and your master took care that he shouldn't get away, knowing that?

Trach. What could he have done?

Amp. Done, you say? If he loved her? He should have kept watch day and night. He should have been on guard always. The fine care Plesidippus took of her quite matches his affection, yes, indeed.

Trach. What makes you say that?

Amp. The plain facts.

Trach. (protestingly) But don't you see? Why, even a man that goes to the baths to bathe, and keeps a sharp eye on his clothes, has 'em stolen just the same, not being sure which of the crowd to watch. The thief can easily see the man that's watching: the man that's keeping watch can't spot the thief. But take me to where she is.
I sane in Veneris fanum hue intro, sedentem flentemque opprimes.

Vt iam istue mihi molestumst. sed quid flet?

Ego dicam tibi: hoe sese excruciat animi, quia leno ademit cistulam ei, quam habebat ubique habebat qui suos parentis noscere posset: eam veretur ne perierit.

Vbinam ea fuit cistellula?

Ibidem in navi. conclusit ipse in vidulum, ne copia esset eius, qui suos parentes nosceret.

O facinus impudicium. quam liberam esse oporteat servire postulare.

Nunc cam cum navi scilicet abüisse pessum in altum. et aurum et argentum fuit lenonis omne ibidem.

Credo aliquem immersisse atque eum excepisse. Id misera maestast, sibi eorum evenisse inopiam.

Iam istoc magis usus factost, ut eam intro consolerque eam, ne sic se excruciet animi; nam multa praeter spem scio multis bona evenisse.

At ego etiam, qui speraverint spem decepisse multos.

Ergo animus aequos optimum est aerumnae condimentum. ego eo intro, nisi quid vis.

Eas. ego quod mihi imperavit saecerdos, id faciam atque aquam hine de proximo rogabo; nam extemplo, si verbis suis peterem, daturos dixit.

Amp. Just go into the temple of Venus here; you'll find her sitting there crying.

Trach. Dear, dear, now I don't like that! What's she crying about, though?

Amp. Well, she's frightfully upset because the pimp took away a casket she kept, in which she kept some things that would help her to discover her parents. She's afraid that it's lost.

Trach. Ah, and where was this little casket?

Amp. There on the ship. Master put it away in his trunk so that she wouldn't have any means of discovering her parents.

Trach. Oh, what a dirty trick—to claim a girl's his slave when she ought to be free!

Amp. Now it has gone to the bottom of the sea along with the ship, of course. And all the pimp's gold and silver was in it too.

Trach. (encouragingly) I dare say someone has dived down and got it.

Amp. That's what distresses her, poor dear—having those things got away from her.

Trach. Then that's all the more reason for my going in and cheering her up so that she won't be so frightfully upset. For "many a stroke of luck has come to many a hopeless man"—I know that.

Amp. But "many a hopeful man has hope beguiled"—that's something I know.

Trach. Well then, "self-control best sweetens trouble." I'm going in, if there's nothing I can do for you.

Amp. Go on. [EXIT TRACHALIO INTO TEMPLE.

I'll do as the priestess ordered and ask for some water at the house next door here. She told me they'd give it to me at once if I mentioned her name. I think I never did see a dearer old lady, one I think more deserving of all the good things gods and man can give. How sweetly and kindly and graciously and gladly she took us in, poor, wet, frightened castaways that we were, only half alive. She acted just as if we were her own daughters. And then her tucking up her clothes that way and heating water for our bath! (moving on) But I mustn’t delay her, I’ll ask for the water here where she said. (knocks at Daemones’ door) Hello! Is anyone at home? Open the door, won’t you? Won’t somebody come?

Scene 4.

Scep. (gruffly, within) Who’s that making so devilish free with our door?
Amp. (sweetly) It’s me.

ENTER Sceparnio RAPIDLY.

Scep. Oho! What good luck is this? (ogles her appreciatively) Hurray! A woman, a pretty woman, upon my soul!
Amp. (with dignity) Good-morning, sir.
Scep. And a very good one to yourself, my little lady.
Amp. I’ve come to your house——
Scep. And I’ll entertain you like a regular queen if you’ll come a little later, in the evening. Why, in these morning hours I can’t treat you properly. Well, how about it, my gay little beauty? (tries to embrace her)
Amp. (pulling away) The idea, sir! You’re much too familiar with your hands!
Scep. Ye immortal gods! She’s the very image of Venus. Just see that merry twinkle in her eye! My word!

And that complexion! A beauty, a real doughnut—no, no, I mean chestnut—beauty! Will you look at that bust! And those lovely lips! (seizes her)

Amp. (struggling to free herself) I'm no ploughland picnic! Do keep your hands off me, can't you?

Scep. Can't a fellow even give a nice little girl a nice little squeeze—real gentle, like that?

Amp. (pretending to acquiesce) Yes, yes, we'll have a perfectly lovely time together when I'm not busy. But just at present do please say yes or no to what I was sent here for.

Scep. And what do you want just at present?

Amp. (showing the pitcher) A sensible person could see what I want from what I'm carrying.

Scep. Yes, and a sensible person could see what I want from the way I'm carrying on.

Amp. I was told to come to you for some water, told by the priestess of Venus here.

Scep. But I'm the one that's Lord High Everything here. Unless you coax me, you won't get a drop. We dug that well at our own cost with our own tools. Not a drop do you get unless you say all sorts of nice things to me.

Amp. My dear man, why grudge me a little water, when strangers are free enough with that?

Scep. Why grudge me a little favour, when friends are free enough with them?

Amp. Oh, but I don't, sweetheart. I'll do anything for you, anything you please.

Scep. (aside) Fine, fine! I'm getting on! Now she's calling me her sweetheart! (aloud) You shall have your water; I won't let you love me all for nothing. Hand me the pitcher.

Amp. Here. (gives it to him and he goes toward house) Do hurry with it, there's a dear!
Manta, iam hie ero, voluptas mea.

Imp. What excuse shall I give the priestess for having stopped here so long? (glancing toward the coast-line) Oh dear, how frightened I do get even now when I catch sight of the sea! (with a start) But good heavens! What’s that away down the shore there? It’s my master, the pimp, and his friend from Sicily! Oh-oh! And I thought the both of them were drowned! Now that means more trouble for us than we counted on! But I must run to the temple and tell Palaestra so that we can run to the altar for refuge before that dreadful pimp comes and catches us here! (hurrying away) Yes, I’ll take refuge here, it’s all so sudden!

[EXIT INTO TEMPLE.

Scene 5. RE-ENTER Sceparrnio WITH THE PITCHER.

cep. (aside, very blithe) Ye immortal gods! I never dreamt there was anything so wonderful about water. What fun it was drawing this up! The well didn’t seem anything like as deep as it used to be. Why, it was no work at all drawing this up. Lord save us, but ain’t I just the devil of a fellow with this flirtation I’ve got into to-day! (aloud) Here you are! Here’s your water, my prettikins! (putting the pitcher awkwardly on his head) There! That’s how I want you to carry it—graceful, just like me. That’s the way to make me love you. (looking about) But where are you, frisky? Take the water here, won’t you? Where are you? (aside) She’s in love with me! By Jupiter! I do believe she is. Playing hide and seek, the rogue. (aloud) Where are you? See here, aren’t you going to take this pitcher? Where are you?

You smart little tease! Oh, I say now, really, seriously! See here, aren't you going to take this pitcher? Where on earth are you? I don't see her anywhere, I certainly don't, dash it! She's making fun of me. I'll put this pitcher right down in the middle of the road this minute, by Jupiter! Hold on, though, what if someone carried it off—the sacred pitcher of Venus? That would make a mess for me. Oh Lord! I'm afraid that woman is setting a trap so that I'll get caught with Venus' sacred pitcher on me. Sure enough, the magistrate would have a perfect right to tie me up and take my head off, if anyone saw me with it. (looks pitcher over and sees inscription on it) Ha! A lettered pitcher! It lets out who its owner is itself. (nearly collapses) My goodness! I'm going to call this priestess out at once and have her take her pitcher. I'll just step up to the door here. (knocking frantically) Hey! Ptoleocratia! Come on out and get your pitcher here. (yelling more loudly) Some wench brought it over to me! I don't know who she was. (waits a moment, then disgustedly) It's got to be carried in. A nice job I've struck, if I've actually got to go ahead and lug their water for 'em, too. [EXIT INTO TEMPLE.

Scene 6. ENTER Labrax, WET AND DEJECTED.

Labr. If anyone's looking for blight and beggary, just let him trust himself, body and soul, to Neptune. I tell you what, if anyone gets mixed up in any dealings with him, he's sent back home in a mess like this. My word, Liberty, you're a clever one—never wanting to set foot on board ship along with Hercules! But where's that guest of mine that has been the ruination of me? (looks back with a snort of anger) Ah, there he is, sauntering along.

Charm. Where the deuce are you rushing to, Labrax? Really, you know, I can’t keep up with you at such a gait.

Labr. (shaking his fist) Oh, if you had only been hung for a damned rascal in Sicily before I ever set eyes on you, you that got me into this damned fix, poor wretch that I am!

Charm. (mockingly) Oh, if I had only made my bed in jail instead, that day you took me to your house! I pray the everlasting gods that all the guests you have for evermore may be just such specimens as yourself.

Labr. It was Bad Luck I took into my house when I took you there. Oh, why was I such a cursed fool as to listen to you? Why did I leave home? Why did I go on board that ship? Where I’ve lost all I owned and more, too!

Charm. Gad! I don’t wonder at all that your ship was wrecked, with a rascal like you and your rascally gains aboard.

Labr. It was those alluring lies of yours that did for me.

Charm. Yes, and the food you fed me was more accursed than that once served to Thyestes or Tereus.

Labr. (affecting nausea at the allusion) Oh dear, oh dear! I feel sick! Do please hold my head!

Charm. Let ’er go, lungs and all! Lord! Just what I’d like!

Labr. (wailing) Oh dear, oh dear! Oh, Palaestra, Ampelisca, where are you now?

Charm. (cheerfully) Furnishing food to fish in the sea, probably.

Labr. Ugh, thanks to you! It’s listening to you and your flattering flimflam that has left me flat.
Charm. Bonam est quod habeas gratiam merito mihi, qui te ex insulso salsum feci opera mea.

Labr. You just get to the devil out of here and leave me alone!

Charm. Yes, do. Precisely what I was about to suggest.

Labr. Oh-h-h! What man alive's more miserable than me?

Charm. I am, Labrax—ever so much more.

Labr. How?

Charm. Because I don't deserve misery and you do.

Labr. (wringing out his clothes) Ah, bulrush, bulrush, you're in luck, to always stay so gloriously dry!

Charm. (swinging his arms to get warm) I must be training for the . . . infantry. I'm shivering so that everything I say has . . . rattles.

Labr. Lord, Neptune! You're a cold . . . bathman! I've been . . . freezing ever since I left you, even with my clothes on.

Charm. And he doesn't set up any hot-drinks counter, either. The kind of liquor he serves is . . . salty ice-water.

Labr. Ah, blacksmiths are fortunate fellows, round a . . . fire all the time, always . . . warm!

Charm. Oh, for the luck of a . . . duck! To come out of the water, yet not be . . . wet!

Labr. How about hiring myself out at some fair as a . . . wild man?

Charm. Why that?

Labr. Gad! Because of the grand way I . . . gnash my teeth.

Charm. I suppose it serves me right to get . . . cleaned out like this.

Labr. How so?

It was your advice I followed. You kept promising there’d be all sorts of money in slave girls there; I could just rake in the cash, according to you.

So you counted on swallowing down the whole island of Sicily at one gulp, you dirty beast?

(lugubriously) I wonder what whale has swallowed my trunk, packed with all my gold and silver.

( lightly) Probably the same one that got the purse full of silver that was in my bag.

Oh dear me! I’m down to this one poor little tunic and this wretched rag of a cloak! I’m ruined, utterly ruined!

Yes, and I might very well go into partnership with you: we’re both on the same basis.

Oh, if I only had the girls safe anyhow, there’d be some hope! (groaning) As it is, if young Plesidippus sees me, me that took part payment for Palaestra from him, he’ll make trouble for me instantly!

Why blubber, you ninny? Lord, man, you’ve got enough to pay off everyone, so long as that tongue of yours will wag.

ENTER Sceparnio FROM TEMPLE.

(rushing up) My goodness! Look here, young fellow, where are those women you mention?

I surely don't know that.
What do they look like?
Pretty neat. I'd manage to make love to either one of 'em myself—if I was good and drunk.
Surely, they're young ones?
You're surely a pest. Go and have a look, if you want.
(ecstatic) They're my women! They must be my women in here, Charmides, old chap!
Whether they are or are not, in either case you be damned!

Go to sleep there, wherever you like; nobody's stopping you: it's a thoroughfare.

Charm. (calling after him) So you're going, eh? (dryly, as he disappears) That fellow has been a slave-trader, whoever he is—perfectly heartless. Well, what's the use of standing around in this cursed state, dripping? Why not drop into Venus' temple here and sleep off this souse, which has been a bigger one than I really cared for? Neptune poured sea water into us as though we were Greek wines—hoped to settle our stomachs that way, by giving us a dose of salts. And how he did it! If he had kept on entertaining us a little longer we'd have dropped asleep on the spot. As it is, he let us go home alive, barely. Now for a look in here at the doings of the pimp, my pot companion.

(EXIT INTO TEMPLE.

ACT III

ENTER Daemones FROM HIS COTTAGE.

Daem. The gods do produce strange plays for us humans. They don't even let us sleep in peace. Take my own case—just this past night I dreamed a strange, uncanny dream. I seemed to see a monkey trying to climb up to some swallows' nest. But she couldn't pull them out. After a while the monkey approached me, so it seemed, and asked for the loan of a ladder. I answered her to the effect that swallows were descendants of Philomela and Procne: I pleaded with her not to injure my compatriots. At that her insolence increased; she seemed to grow aggressive and threatened to thrash me. She summoned me to court. Then somehow or other, growing angry, it seemed I grabbed the monkey around the middle and put the vile beast in chains. Now what I'm to take this dream to mean, I haven't been able to divine all day. (the noise of a scuffle in the temple) But what's that racket right over there in the temple of Venus? Astonishing!

Trach. Pro Cyrenenses populares, vostram ego imploro fidem, agricolae, accolae propinqui qui estis his regionibus, ferte opem inopiae atque exemplum pessumum pessum date. vindicate, ne impiorum potior sit pollentia quam innocentum, qui se scelere fieri nolunt nobiles. statuite exemplum impudenti, date pudori praemium, facite hic lege potius liceat quam vi victo vivere. currite huc in Veneris fanum, vostram iterum imploro fidem, qui prope hic adestis quique auditis clamorem meum, ferte suppetias qui Veneri Veneriaeque antistitae more antiquo in custodelam suom commiserunt caput, praetorquete iniuriae prius collum quam ad vos pervenat.

Scene 2. \textit{Enter Trachalio excitedly from temple.}

\textit{Trach.} (hawling out in wild burlesque of the tragic style) Ho! Ye citizens of Cyrene! Save us, I implore you! Ye rustics, ye who dwell in the vicinity of this locality, succour the succourless, and give a devil hell! Help! Help! Let not the power of the impious be more potent than that of the innocent creatures who wish not the notoriety of being victims of villainy! Make an example of impudence and give pudency its recompense! See ye to it that men may live here under law, and not as objects of oppression! Here, to the fane of Venus, run! Again I implore your aid, ye who are hard by and hear my cries! Bring assistance to those who, according to ancient custom, have consigned themselves to the custody of Venus and the ministress of Venus! Wring the neck of iniquity before it reaches yourselves!

\textit{Daem.} (mystified) What's all that about?

\textit{Trach.} (throwing his arms around Daemones' legs) I beseech you by these your knees, old gentleman, whoever you be—

\textit{Daem.} (trying to extricate himself) Come, come, now, let go my knees and hurry up and tell me what it is you're roaring about.

Seu tibi confidis fore multam magudarim.
Trach. (still struggling with Daemones’ knees) I beg and entreat you, if you hope to have a good supply of silphium and silphium juice this year and to ensure its exportation safe and sound to Capua, and so that you may enjoy a perpetual drouth in respect to bleary eyes,¹ that you will not be loath to do me the service which I am about to ask of you, old gentleman!

Daem. (angrily) Yes, and I beseech you by your shanks and heels and hide, that, if you don’t hope to have a bad supply of birch rods and ensure a bounteous crop of welts this year, that you tell me what you’re roaring about.

Trach. (sobered) What makes you abuse me? I only wished you everything that’s good.

Daem. I’m only a-blessing you—praying you’ll get what you deserve.

Trach. Now do see to this, for mercy’s sake!

Daem. What is the matter?

Trach. Two innocent women are inside here and they need your help. They’ve been injured infamously here against all law and justice, and it’s going on in the temple of Venus. And the priestess of Venus is being outrageously treated, too.

Daem. (indignantly) Who’s the man reckless enough to dare lay hands on the priestess? But who are those women? How are they being injured?

Trach. Listen and I’ll tell you. They’re clinging to the statue of Venus. And now a barefaced rascal wants to tear them away. And the both of them ought to be free by right.

Daem. Who is that man that so scorns the gods? Make it short!

Trach. A cheat and villain, a perjured, parricidal monster, lawless, impudent, impure, impious past all telling—in one word, a pimp. Why describe him further?

Daem. Bless my soul! From your description he ought to be presented with a hanging.

Trach. A criminal who would choke a priestess!

Daem. But he shall pay for it in full, by heaven! (shouting at the door of his cottage) Turbalio! Sparax! Come out here! Where are you?

Trach. Go in and save them, for mercy’s sake!

Daem. (shouting again) I won’t repeat my orders!

ENTER TWO HUGE SLAVE OVERSEEERS.

Step along—this way! (goes with slaves toward temple)

Trach. (trotting at a safe distance behind them) And see here now, tell them to beat his eyes out the same as cooks do to cuttle-fish.

Daem. (to the slaves) Pitch him out here by the heels like a stuck pig.

[EXEUNT Daemons and slaves into temple.

Trach. (listening) Aha! A disturbance! Methinks they’re tanning the pimp with their fists. I only hope they’ve knocked the teeth out of his jaws, the dirty scoundrel!

ENTER Palaestra and Ampelisca from the temple.

Hullo, though! Here come the women themselves in a fright.

go! Oh, it’s so dreadful for us both, master was so rough and brutal with us in there just now! Why, the ruthless monster threw the poor old priestess about every way in perfectly outrageous fashion, and dragged us away from the statue in the very inmost shrine by main strength! But seeing how things are and how fate treats us, death is welcome. Desperate, distracted creatures can do nothing better than die.

Trach. (aside) Eh? What sort of language is that? I must go cheer them up. (approaching from behind) Hey! Palaestra! (the girls cower)

Pal. Who’s calling?

Trach. Ampelisca!

Amp. For mercy’s sake, who is it calling?

Pal. Who is it spoke my name?

Trach. Look round and you’ll learn.

Pal. (turning) Oh, my hope, my hope of safety!

Trach. There, there, be quite easy! (throwing out his chest) Leave it all to me!

Pal. Ah, yes, if I could only be relieved from fear of violence—violence that forces me to do violence on myself!

Trach. Oh, stop it! You’re absolutely silly.

Pal. You stop trying to talk me into good spirits at an awful time like this. You must actually do something to protect us, Trachalio, or it’s all over!

Amp. One thing’s sure, I’ll die sooner than let this pimp vent his rage on me! And yet I have a woman’s feelings, after all—when the thought of dying comes to me it’s terrible, I tremble all over. Oh, dear, dear! This dreadful day!

Trach. Keep up your courage, girls.

Pal. Ah, but where on earth can I find any courage?

Trach. Don’t be afraid, I tell you. Sit by the altar here. (leads them to the altar)

Amp. How can that altar help us any more than the statue inside the temple of Venus here? That’s what we poor girls were clinging to just now—and we were dragged away by brute strength.

Trach. (very bold and superior) Just you sit down here. From this position I’ll defend you, come what may. Regard this altar as your camp. (squares off) Here I stand to champion you, this arm your rampart. With Venus’ aid will I defy the pimp’s iniquity.

Pal. Yes, yes, we will! And kindly Venus, we two girls do tearfully entreat thee, as we kneel and clasp this altar of thine, to take us in thy custody and defend us. Wreak vengeance on the wicked men who have scorned thy shrine, and in thy good grace let this altar be our refuge. We were both stripped clean last night by Neptune, so be not offended with us, hold us not at fault for this, if there be anything about us which thou dost think uncleanly.

Trach. (airily) Venus, I consider this a perfectly fair request; it’s one you ought to grant. The proper thing for you to do is pardon them: it’s fear compels ’em to act this way. Folks say you were born of an oyster: don’t be above mothering these pearls. (the temple door opens) Here’s luck, though! There comes the old man that has been the friend of us all.

Scene 4. ENTER Daemones FOLLOWED BY Labrax IN THE GRIP OF THE SLAVES.

Daem. (to Labrax) Come on out of the temple, you godless enormity! And you girls go sit down at the altar. Where are they, though?

Daem. Very good! Quite as we wished. Just let him go near them! (to Labrax) Expect us to look on, do you, with you lawbreaking against the gods? (to a slave, as Labrax makes for the altar) Let him have one in the jaw!
Labr. (to Daemones, as the slave obeys) I’ll make you smart for my being put upon so!
Daem. What? Threatening me, the brazen scoundrel?
Labr. I’m robbed of my rights! You’re robbing me of my own slave girls, in spite of me!
Trach. Bring on any senator of Cyrene, any responsible person, to decide whether these girls ought to be yours or ought to be free, and whether you shouldn’t be clapped in a cell and left there for life till you’ve worn the whole place out.
Labr. (scornfully) It was not my purpose to-day to gossip with a gallows-bird. (to Daemones) I’m addressing you.
Daem. (pointing to Trachalio) There’s your man. Have it out with a fellow that knows you, first.
Labr. You’re the one I’m concerned with.
Trach. But I’m the one you’ve got to be concerned with. So those are your slave girls, eh?
Labr. Yes, they are.
Trach. (making sure the slaves are handy) Come on, then! Just touch either one of them with the tip of your little finger—— Labr. (bristling) What if I do?
Trach. (edging closer to the slaves) I’ll make a punching-bag of you the next minute, by heaven, I’ll hang you up and hammer you, you big liar!

Labr. Your laws mean nothing at all to me. I'm going to take both of them off this instant, I certainly am. As for you, old chap, if they've caught your fancy, you can hand over some hard cash. Yes, or let Venus keep 'em, if they suit her—provided she pays the bill.

Daem. She pay bills to you? Listen here now, and learn my ideas on the subject—you so much as begin using the least bit of violence with them even for a joke, and I'll send you home with such decorations that you won't know yourself. (to the slaves) Look here, you! Unless you knock the eyes out of his head when I give you the signal, I'll wind whips round you like rush twine round a bunch of myrtle.

Labr. (feeble) This is violence!

Trach. You censure violence, you scandalous scoundrel?

Labr. (making a jump at him) You dare be uncivil to me, you vile jailbird?

Trach. (shrinking) Granted. I'm a vile jailbird and you're a highly estimable gentleman. Does that make it any less fitting for these girls to be free?

Labr. What's that? Free?

Trach. Yes, and your betters, too, by Jupiter, and girls that come from Greece proper. Why, this one here (points to Palaestra) was born in Athens, born of good citizen stock.

Daem. Eh? What's that you say?

Trach. That this girl is a freeborn Athenian.

Daem. Good Lord! A compatriot of mine, is she?

Trach. Aren't you a Cyrenian?

Daem. Not I. I was born and bred and reared in Athens, Attic Athens.

though you are, you remind me of my sorrow when I look at this girl! Three years old when I lost her, and now the size of this lass, no doubt, if she’s alive!

Labr. I paid out money to their owner for the pair of ’em.
What’s the odds to me whether they were born in Athens, or in Thebes, so long as they’re duly slaving it as slaves of mine?

Trach. Indeed, you brazen rascal? So you’re our maiden mouser, eh, and count on keeping children snapped up from their parents, and wearing them out in your vile trade? Now as for this other girl, (indicating Ampelisca) I admit I don’t know her birthplace, but I do know she’s better than you are, dirty beast.

Labr. (ironically) They’re clearly yours.

Trach. Where’s he going?

And when you've found them, what?

I'll build a big fire here.

To burn out your venom, eh?

No, to burn up this pair at the altar here alive, that's what I want.

Ah yes, and then I shall forthwith catch you by the beard and throw you into your fire, and when you're half-roasted toss you to the vultures to feed on. Go look for him and bring him here.

But take care this fellow—

Things will be extremely unpleasant for him if he does touch them, or tries to.

Mind now!

It is minded. Off with you!

Scene 5.

Daem. (as Labrax seems restive) Pimp, do you prefer to be quieted by a drubbing or quiet without one, as at present, if you have the choice?

Labr. I don’t care a straw what you say, old fellow, not I. They’re my girls and I’ll haul ’em away from the altar by the hair this minute, despite you and Venus and Jupiter on high!

Daem. Well, touch them.

Labr. Indeed I will touch them, by gad!

Daem. (coolly pointing toward the girls) Proceed, then. Just step this way.

Labr. Well, just you tell those two brutes there (indicating slaves who stand beside the girls) to step the other way.

Daem. Nay, nay, they shall step your way.

Labr. (with an attempt at confidence) Oh, no, they won’t. I hardly think so.

Daem. What will you do if they do step over your way?

Labr. (glaring, then wryly) I’ll step—away. (savagely) But, oh Lord, if I ever catch you in the city, old boy, no one shall ever call me pimp again if I don’t make a holy show of you before I let you go!

Daem. (easily) Do your worst. But now in the meantime, if you touch those girls, you shall get a good hard hiding.

Labr. (impudently) Really now? How hard?

Daem. Hard enough to do for a pimp.

Labr. I shan’t care a straw for your threats. I’m going to drag ’em both off this minute in spite of you, I surely am. (takes one cautious step in direction of girls)

Daem. Well, touch them.

Labr. Indeed I will touch them, by gad!
Daem. Tanges, at scin quo modo?

Daem. You will, eh? Know the results, though? Here! Turbalio! Run to the house and get a couple of clubs.

Labr. (weakly) Clubs?
Daem. Stout ones, mind. Quick! Step lively!

[EXIT Turbalio INTO COTTAGE.]

I shall see you get the rousing reception you deserve this day.

Labr. (dryly) Oh Lord, and I lost my helmet on the ship, confound it! It would come in handy here, if I only had it. (to Daemones) I can speak to the girls, anyhow, can’t I?

Daem. You cannot.

RE-ENTER Turbalio WITH TWO LARGE CUDGELS.

Aha! Very good, by Jove! Look! Here comes our clubman.

Labr. My stars! That certainly makes my ears buzz!
Daem. Come now, Sparax, take one of those clubs. (Sparax obeys) Come now! One of you stand there, the other one here. (stations them on either side of Labrax) Stand there, both of you. (steps back to survey arrangements) That’s it. Now then, attention! In case that fellow ever lays a finger on those girls against their will, if you don’t lay those clubs against his carcass so hard that he won’t know the way home, by heaven, I’ll murder the pair of you! If he speaks to either of them, you answer for them from where you stand. And if he wants to clear out, himself, catch him round the legs with your sticks just as fast as you know how.

Labr. What? They won’t let me go away from here?
Daem. (to Labrax) Enough said. (to slaves) And when that slave who went for his master gets back here with him, you hurry home. Now mind you follow these instructions to the letter.

Labr. (with a rueful glance at the slaves and their cudgels) Oh, my Lord! How fast these here temples do change hands! This used to be a shrine of Venus, and now its patron saint is Hercules, judging from the two club-bearing statues the old fellow has set up here. My goodness! I don't know where in the world to make for now, the way everything's raging against me, land and sea both. (after a pause) Palaestra!

Turbalio (in feminine voice) Just you look out for trouble. Labr. Aw, stop it! (thoughtfully surveying the clubs) Statues like men give rather good counsel. (to slaves, placatingly) But I say, you! Hey! You fellows! Any harm in my going nearer to those girls?

Overseers (in unison) No indeed—not for us. Labr. Will it do me any harm? Overseers Oh no—if you look out.

Labr. Look out for what? Overseers (swinging their clubs in his vicinity) See? That you don't get badly hurt.

Labr. (nervous) Oh, for God's sake, do let me go away from here!

Overseers Go away, if you like. Labr. (moving off) My word, that's good of you! I do thank you! (as they come after him) No, I'll go your way. (steps back toward the girls)

Overseers (clubs in action) Stop right where you are! Labr. Good Lord, the beastly bad luck I've had every way! (dryly) My policy's settled: I'll go on and beat 'em by blockade.

Ples. (indignant) That pimp laid violent hands on my girl, tried to drag her from the altar of Venus by violence?

Trach. Just so, sir.

Ples. Why didn’t you kill him on the spot?

Trach. (after a pause) I had no sword, sir.

Ples. You might have taken a club or a stone.

Trach. (virtuously) What, sir? Chase a human being, vile as he is, with stones like a dog—I?

Labr. (aside, seeing them) My goodness! I’m in for it now! There’s Plesidippus! He’ll clean me up entire in no time, last speck and all.

Ples. So the girls were sitting by the altar when you went for me?

Trach. And sitting there still, sir.

Ples. Who’s there now to keep them safe?

Trach. Some old man, sir, a near neighbour of Venus. He has been awfully accommodating. They’re safe now with him and his slaves. He had his instructions from me.

Ples. Take me straight to the pimp. Where is the fellow? (follows Trachalio toward temple)

Labr. (stepping up, ingratiatingly) Good-morning.

Ples. (viciously) Don’t you good-morning me! Quick now, choose! Would you rather be hauled off with your neck in a noose, or dragged off? Take your choice while you have the chance.

Labr. (smirking) Neither suits me.

Ples. Now then, Trachalio, run down to the shore and tell ’em to go to the city and meet me at the harbour, the friends I brought with me, to hand this fellow over to the hangman. Then come Labr. I didn’t take her off.

Ples. Why deny it?
Labr. Gad, because I only took her on, not off—couldn’t, worse luck! See here, I told you I’d be ready for you at Venus’ temple. Held to it, haven’t I? Here, ain’t I?
Ples. Tell your story to the judge. No talk here! Come along. (slips a rope around him) thing to get him—sentenced sooner.

ACT IV

ENTER Daemones FROM HIS COTTAGE, MUCH PLEASED.

Daem. That was a good stroke of mine helping these girls to-day—delightful! Here we are now with some protégées, delicious little darlings too, the both of 'em! But that blessed wife of mine keeps her eye on me all the while, so that I can't even give 'em a wink. (looking out to sea) I wonder what that fellow Gripus of mine is doing, though, with his midnight fishing trip? Gad! He would have shown more sense by staying abed at home. Why, the way it's blowing now and blew last night, he's fooling away his time and nets both. I'll fry on my fingers this day anything he catches with such a heavy sea as this running. (listening) But there's wife calling me to lunch. (starts for house) Home we go. Now she'll be stuffing my ears with gabble.

[exit Daemones.

Scene 2. ENTER Gripus, CARRYING A BASKET AND DRAGGING A NET CONTAINING A TRUNK.

Gr. (ecstatic) Glory be to Neptune for this, my patron Neptune, who doth reside in salty, fishy spots, for speeding me homeward from his sacred quarters fixed up gorgeously, laden with a splendid lot of booty, and the smack all sound that brought me this strange, rich haul in a raging sea! Oh, it's wonderful, it's unbelievable, the famous luck I've had in fishing! And not a single ounce of fish did I catch, either, only what I've got here in my net.

Ah, when I jumped smartly out of bed at midnight, I put profit ahead of sleep and rest, I did. There was a howling gale, but I was set on trying to make things easier for poor master—also for his slave—and I didn’t spare myself a bit. How useless a lazy fellow is, how I do hate and despise that kind! The man that wants to get his jobs done in time had better keep awake. He has no business waiting till his master routs him out to do his work, I should say not. Yes, sir, fellows that love their sleep snooze away their chances of everything but trouble. Why, here’s my case—up and doing, and now I’ve made such a find that I can do nothing if I choose. This is the find I made (indicating the trunk) in the sea. Whatever’s in it, there’s something heavy in it. There’s gold in it, that’s what I think. And not a soul knows about it but me! Here you are, Gripus, here’s your chance to be as free as any man alive!

Now this is what I’ll do, this is my scheme: I’ll go up to master, real sharp and sly, and offer him money, little by little, to set me free. After that, when I am free, then I’ll get me a house and land and slaves, and have big ships and be a merchant, and known as a king of kings. Then I’ll build me a yacht, just for fun, and be a second Stratonicus¹—sail all round everywhere. And when I’ve made a grand name for myself, I’ll build a great big city with walls round it, and call it Gripusburg to

Gr. Wait? What for?
Trach. (casually picking up the end of the rope) Till I coil up this rope you’re trailing.
Gr. (gruffly) Here you! Hands off!
Trach. (gently) Heavens, but I’m helping you! “Good turns done to the good never go for naught,” you know. (coils up the rope, getting nearer the net)
Gr. (very uneasy) There was a wild gale last night. I have no fish at all, young fellow, and you needn’t think I have. Don’t you see I’m bringing back a wet net and not a one of (forcing a grin) the scaly herd?
Trach. Lord, man, I’m not so anxious for your fish as hungry for your conversation. (still coiling the rope and eyeing the trunk)
Gr. You’re boring me to death, whoever you are. (moves on, dragging the net)
Trach. (pulling on the rope) Ah, but I won’t let you leave me. Wait.

Trach. (significantly) Ah, but you shall listen, later.

Gr. (trying to seem indifferent) Well, well, say what you want. (gets a fresh grip on his rope)

Trach. (doing the same) Oho! Now you just wait! It's worth attention, what I want to tell you.

Gr. Out with it, then, will you!

Trach. (coming closer, and looking about warily) See if anyone's near, trailing us.

Gr. (nervously) Has it got anything to do with me?

Trach. Rather. But have I got in you a man of discretion?

Gr. What's it all about? Only tell me!

Trach. Hush, hush! I will tell you, if you'll only promise me to play fair.

Gr. I promise, I'll play fair, whoever you are.

Trach. Listen. I saw a person commit a theft. (Gripus is visibly relieved) I knew the owner of the property, and afterwards approached the thief, and put the proposition to him in this way. "I know the man you stole that from," says I. "Now if you want to go halves with me, I won't inform the owner." Not a blessed thing did the fellow answer. Now what's my fair share of it? I hope you'll say half.

Gr. Half! Good Lord, yes, and more too! And unless you get it, the owner ought to be told, that's what I think.

Trach. I'll follow your advice. Now pay attention; for all this affects you.

Gr. (startled) Eh? How's that?

Trach. That trunk there—I've known its owner for a long time.

Gr. Eh? What?

Trach. And I know how it was lost.

Trach. Not even the owner, if he came along?

Gr. Owner? Don’t you fool yourself! No mother’s son owns this but me, that caught it, fishing.

Trach. (ironically) Really, now?

Gr. Would you call any fish mine while it’s in the sea? When I catch them, supposing I do, then they are mine; I have them for my own, and no one lays claim to them or expects any part of them. And I sell them all in the public market as my wares. Why, the sea’s common to all, that’s certain.

Trach. Agreed. Then why shouldn’t I have a common right to this trunk, tell me that? It was found in the common sea.

Gr. Well, of all the cheeky cheek! Why, if the law was like what you say, it would finish fishermen. Why, the minute fish were carried to market, no one would buy, but all crowd up and claim their share, contending they were caught in the common sea.

Trach. How’s that, you cheeky rascal? So you’ve got the cheek to compare trunks with fish, eh? Really now, does it seem the same to you?

Gr. (doggedly) It’s a thing I can’t control. When I

_Trach._ No, by gad, it isn't, not if you've hauled up some utensil, anyhow.

Gr. (scornfully) Professor! (attempts to go)

_Trach._ (pulling on the rope) Look here, poisoner, did you ever see a fisherman catch a trunk-fish or carry one to market? You shan't monopolize all the trades you want in these parts, now I tell you—trying to pass for trunk-maker and fisherman both, you dirty thing. You've got to show me what a trunk-fish is like, or else you shan't make off with something that wasn't born in the sea and has no scales.

Gr. (patronizingly) What? You never heard tell of the trunk-fish before?

_Trach._ There's no such thing, scoundrel!

Gr. Indeed? Of course there is. I'm a fisherman and I know. They're scarce, I grant you; there's not a fish landed less often.

_Trach._ Rot! You hope you can fool me, you gallows-bird.

Gr. (thoughtfully surveying the trunk) As for the colour—it's generally little fellows they catch the colour of this one; there are others with red skins—they're big ones like mine. You find black ones, too.

_Trach._ (menacingly) Precisely. And I fancy you'll be turning into a trunk yourself, by gad, a double turn, if you don't look out! Your skin'll first turn red and then turn black.

Gr. (aside) What a cursed mess I've got into here!

_Trach._ This is idle talk. Time's flying. Kindly name some judge you want to decide this for us.

Gr. Judge Trunk. Yes, sir, Judge Trunk.

Trach. You idiot!

Gr. Greetings, you Thales.¹ (tries again to go)

Trach. (holding fast to the rope) You shan’t get away with that this day without appointing some trustee or referee to referee the matter.

Gr. See here, are you sane?

Trach. (vehemently) No, I’m beside myself!

Gr. (more vehemently) Well, I’m raving! I won’t let go of this, for all you say!

Trach. (roaring) You add just one more word and I’ll bury my fists in your brains! If you don’t let go of this, here and now I’ll squeeze out all the juice that’s in you, the way they squeeze out a new sponge!

Gr. (changing his tone to one of grim ferocity) You touch me, and I’ll beat the ground with you the way I do with a polypus! D’ye want to fight?

Trach. (much less belligerent) Aw, what’s the use? Come on, let’s share the spoils, instead.

Gr. All you’ll get out of this is trouble, make up your mind to that. I’m going along. (tugs at the net)

Trach. (encircling him with the rope and turning him around) But I’m going to put the ship about so that you won’t be going. Avast there!

Gr. (circling Trachalio with his rope) If you’re the look-out on that craft, I’ll be helmsman. Drop the rope, you lubber!

Trach. I’ll drop the rope: you drop the trunk.

Gr. You’ll never be a blessed bit the richer for this find, confound you!

Trach. (tightening his hold) No number of noes will weigh with me. You’ll need to go shares or else leave it to a referee or give security.

Gr. (eagerly) Not a bit less!

Trach. Hold on, you villain! How do you make me out a thief without being a partaker? Just explain that to me.

Gr. (taken aback) I don’t know, I don’t understand those city laws of yours, anyway. All I say is, this is mine.

Trach. Yes, and I maintain it is mine.

Gr. (suddenly illuminated) Hold on! Now I see how you needn’t be a thief, or partaker, either.

Trach. How?

Gr. You let me go my way, and you go yours and keep your mouth shut. Don’t you give me away to anyone, and I won’t give anything away to you. You keep still, and I’ll keep mum. That’s perfectly fair and square. (tries to go)

Trach. (tightening the rope again) Do you intend to make me some offer?

Gr. I made you one long ago—that you get out, drop the rope, and let me alone. (pulls at the net)

(hiding his satisfaction) Ease off on the rope a minute while I turn aside and think it over.

There you are!

(aside, triumphantly) Hurray! It's all safe now! I've got this prize for good! Inviting me to make my own master the referee, right here in my own stall! Gad! Why, with him as judge, not a single sixpence will ever leave the family. Lord! That chap doesn't know what an offer he has made. A referee? Rather!

Well, how about it?

( resignedly) Although I'm positive it's mine by rights, I'll give in, sooner than go on and have a row with you.

That's the way to talk!

Although it's an unknown referee you force on me, still, if he's square, I'll know him, even if I don't: otherwise, I'll never never know him, even if I do.

Scene 4. ENTER Palaestra and Ampelisca in tears from the cottage, Daemones hesitantly coming after them. THE OVERSEERS FOLLOW.

(very nervous) Oh, good Lord, girls! I want to do what you want, I really do, but I'm afraid my wife will run me out of the house on account of you. She'll say I paraded my mistresses right in front of her face. I'd rather you fled to the altar than do so myself.

Oh dear, dear, dear!

I'll see you're safe, never fear. (noticing the overseers) But why are you escorting us out? No one will harm them now that I am here. Inside at once, I tell you, both of you! Guards off guard!

What do you want now?

So this fellow's really yours?

Yes, mine.

That's fine, his being yours! (glares balefully at Gripus)

And what has this outrage of a man done to you?

I want his legs broken for him!

What's the matter? What are you rowing about now, you two?

Daem. (to Gripus) Listen. (to Trachalio) Out with it, you.
Gr. You'll let an outsider’s slave have the first word before your own?
Trach. (to Daemones, with a superior nod toward Gripus) How hard it is to plug him up! But as I was about to say, sir, that pimp you ran out of the temple a while ago—this chap has got hold of his trunk, look!
Gr. I haven’t!
Trach. You deny what I see with my own eyes?
Gr. Ugh! I only wish you’d lose ’em! Whether I have it or haven’t it, what makes you meddle with my affairs?
Trach. The important point is how you have it, rightfully or wrongfully.
Gr. (to Daemones) If I didn’t haul it up, I have nothing against your handing me to the hangman. (to Trachalio) If I caught it in my net in the sea, how is it yours instead of mine?
Trach. (to Daemones) He’s bluffing, sir. The case is just as I state it.
Gr. Hey? What’s that?
Trach. My rights as first speaker! If that fellow’s yours, sir, kindly plug him up.
Gr. So? Want me to be handled the same way your master handles you, eh? Yours may be used to plugging you up, but ours doesn’t use us that way.
Daem. (to Trachalio, chuckling) He got the best of you that time. Well now, what do you want? Tell me.
Trach. I’m neither claiming any part of what’s in that trunk there, nor did I ever say it was mine at all, no, sir. But inside it is a little casket belonging Daem. I'll see he does. (to Gripus) No talk!

Gr. Not a thing will I give him, by heaven!

Trach. Not a thing do I ask for but the casket and toys.

Gr. What if they're gold?

Trach. What's that to you? You'll get gold for gold, silver for silver, same weight and same value.

Gr. Just you let me see your gold, and then I'll let you see the casket.

Daem. (to Gripus) Look out for trouble and hold your tongue! (to Trachalio) Go on, you, with what you were saying.

Trach. The one thing I beg of you, sir, is to take pity on this girl, if this is really the pimp's trunk, as I suspect it is. I'm only guessing so far, not telling you anything for certain.

Gr. Hear that? He's setting a trap, the villain!

Trach. Let me go on with what I was saying. If this trunk does belong to that villain I say, these girls can recognize it. Make him show it to them.

Gr. Hey? Show it?

Daem. There's nothing unfair in his request, Gripus, that the trunk be shown.

Gr. Lord save us! It's utterly unfair!

Daem. (as Gripus fumes) Attention, Gripus! (to Trachalio) And you, state briefly what you want.

Trach. Why, sir, I've told you, but if it isn't clear, I'll tell you a second time. Both these girls, as I told you a while ago, ought to be free. This one (pointing to Palaestra) was stolen from Athens as a child.

Gr. And what has it got to do with the trunk whether they're slaves or were free, tell me that?

Trach. You want everything repeated, rascal, so as to kill time.

Daem. Drop your abuse and explain what I've asked you.

Trach. (patiently) Inside that trunk there should be a casket made of rushes, containing some things by which she can recognize her parents, things she had with her when she vanished from Athens in childhood, as I said before.

Gr. I wish to God you'd vanish from earth! Look here, poisoner! Tell me, are those girls dumb, that they can't do their own chattering?

Trach. They're silent because a woman's always worth more seen than heard.

Gr. Gad! Then I take it you aren't fully qualified as a man or woman either.

Trach. How so?

Gr. Why, because, seen or heard either, you're always worthless. (to Daemones) I say, ain't I ever going to get a chance to speak to-day?

Daem. Agreed. Yes, I call those terms perfectly fair.

Gr. But I call ’em perfectly unfair, by heaven! What if she’s a witch or fortune-teller, and names everything in it rightly? Is a fortune-teller going to get it?

Daem. She gets nothing unless she does name things rightly. Fortune-telling won’t help her. So unfasten the trunk and let me learn the facts as soon as possible.

Gr. (with assumed confidence as he unfastens it) Here’s the end of her! (to Daemones) It’s unfastened.

Daem. Open it. (Gripus does so, glances inside, falls back, choking) I see a casket! (hands it to Palaestra) Is this it?

Pal. It is! Oh, my dear parents, here I hold you enclosed within! Here I’ve stored all means and hopes of knowing you!

Gr. Then, by gad, you ought to catch it from the gods, whoever you are, for cooping up your parents in such narrow quarters.

Daem. (taking the casket and motioning Palaestra to stand aside) Gripus, step up here; it’s your case that’s on. As for you, girl, name and describe, from away over there, what’s inside here, and mind you mention everything. If you make the slightest slip and suppose you can correct yourself later, let me tell you it won’t be of the least use, young lady.

Gr. (pleased) That’s putting it straight!

Trach. Gad! It’s not you he’s putting: you’re crooked.

Daem. (opening the casket) Now then, girl, speak up. Gripus, pay attention and keep your mouth shut.

Pal. There's a chain of toys.
Daem. (letting Gripus see it) Yes, here it is!
Gr. (aside, morosely) Finished in the first round! (to Daemones) Hold on! Don't show it her!
Pal. First, there's a tiny little gold sword with an inscription.
Daem. (finding it) Come then, what's the inscription on this little sword? (looks for it)
Pal. The name of my father. Then on the other side there's a little two-headed axe, also made of gold and inscribed: it's my mother's name there on the axe.
Daem. (startled at what he sees) Wait! Tell me, what's this name on the sword, your father's name?
Pal. Daemones.
Daem. (half aside, much agitated) Good God! These hopes of mine!
Gr. (ruefully) Huh! And mine! Oh, Lord!
Trach. (to Palaestra and Daemones) Get on, for heaven's sake, keep at it!
Gr. (to Trachalio, indignantly) Go easy there! Or else go hang!
Daem. (after examining the axe) And your mother's name here on the little axe—tell me that!
Pal. Daedalis.
Daem. (eagerly studying Palaestra's face) Ah, this is help from Heaven!
Gr. Yes, but hell for me!
Daem. Gripus, this must be my daughter!
Gr. Let her be, for all I care! (to Trachalio) Ugh! God curse you for setting eyes on me to-day! Yes, and me for being an infernal fool that didn't look around a hundred times to see nobody was watching before I pulled my net out of the water!

Pal. Then there's a tiny little silver sickle and a tiny pair of clasped hands, and a windlass——

Gr. Go to Hades with your wind, lass, and take along your little windpipe!

Pal. And there's a gold locket, too, that my father gave me on my birthday.

Daem. (looking at it) She is, she certainly is! I can't keep from hugging her any longer! (throws his arms about her) Ah, my own daughter! I am the father that reared you! I am Daemones myself, and look, inside here is your mother, Daedalis!

Pal. Ah, dear father, father unhoped for!

Daem. Ah, the joy of having you in my arms!

Trach. It's grand seeing you good folks get the luck you deserve!

Daem. Come, Trachalio, just see if you can't take this trunk and carry it inside.

Trach. (blithely laying hold of it) Look at poor old Gripus! Hard luck, Gripus! I want to express my—satisfaction.

Daem. (to Palaestra) Come, let's go to your mother, my child. She can make further inquiries and test you better, having had more to do with you and knowing more about those tokens of yours.

Trach. (carefully excluding Gripus) Let's all go in together, sir, seeing we've all got a part in it.

Pal. Come along with me, Ampelisca.

Amp. I'm so glad that God has been good to you!

Scene 5. ENTER Daemones FROM HIS HOUSE, MUCH PLEASED WITH LIFE.

Daem. Ye immortal gods! Who's a luckier man than I am—discovering my daughter so unexpectedly? Isn't it a fact that if the gods wish to help a man, it does somehow come about that the prayers of the pious are answered? Here I was, never hoping or believing it could happen: yet here I am with my daughter unexpectedly discovered. And I'm going to marry her to a fine young fellow of one of the best families in Athens, related to me, too. I certainly want to have him summoned here at once; (glancing about impatiently) yes, and that slave of his had my orders to come out and run over to the forum. Odd he hasn't come out yet, though. I'd better go to the door. (looking into the house) Eh? What's this I see? My wife, arms around her daughter's neck, clinging to her! Comes precious near being a silly nuisance, all her fondling! (shouting) Wife! Better call a halt on that kissing some time! Yes, and get things ready for me to make an offering to the household gods when I return, seeing they've augmented our household. We have lambs and pigs for sacrifice. See here, you women! What are you keeping that Trachalio for? Ah! Here he comes! Good!

ENTER Trachalio.

Trach. (to Palaestra inside, patronizingly) I'll hunt up Plesidippus for you at once and bring him back with me, no matter where he is.

Daem. (to Trachalio, urgently) Tell him all that happened about my daughter; ask him to drop everything else and come here.

Trach. (nonchalantly) Right.

Daem. Say he shall marry my daughter.

Trach. Right.

Daem. And that I know his father, and that he's a relative of mine.

Trach. Right.

Daem. But be quick, man!

Trach. Right.

Daem. Make him hurry up, so that we can see to dinner.

Trach. Right. (saunters off)

Daem. "Right " to everything, eh?

Trach. (over his shoulder) Right. (halting) But you know what it is I want of you? To remember your promise that I'd be freed to-day.

Daem. (quizzically) Right.

Trach. See you get Plesidippus to give me up.

Daem. Right.

Trach. And see that your daughter gets in her word: she'll get it out of him easily.

Daem. Right.

Trach. And that Ampelisca marries me when I'm free.

Daem. Right.

Trach. And that I get real pay for a real service.

Scene 7. Enter Gripus from the house, furtively.

Gr. How soon will a word with you be all right, sir?

Daem. (with a start at the "right") What's the matter, Gripus?

Gr. (sidling up to him) About that trunk, sir—if you'd show sense, you'd show sense; you'd keep the good things God gives you.

Daem. So you think it fair for me to claim another person's property, eh?

Gr. Something I found in the sea?

Daem. So much the luckier for the man that lost it. That doesn't make the trunk yours any the more.

Gr. (morosely) There! That's why you're poor—you're too blessed pious.

Daem. (meditatively) Ah, Gripus, Gripus, this life of ours is full of traps that cheat and catch mankind. Ay, and very often they are baited too. Then if some grasping soul snaps greedily at this bait, he's caught, trapped by his own greed. But the man that's careful to act with forethought, prudence and discernment can long take honest pleasure in his honest gains. Loot such as that, methinks, is on the road to being looted, and to leaving with a larger dowry than it brought. (very self-righteous) I to receive property I know to be another's, and conceal it? Not I! None of that for friend Daemones! It highly befits wise masters to take Daem. Be off inside and don't annoy me! Control your tongue! I shall give you nothing, make no mistake about that.

ir. (grumbling as he goes) Well, I hope to heaven that whatever's in that trunk, gold or silver, all turns to dust and ashes!

[exit.]

Daem. There you are! That's how it is we have such rascally slaves. Why, if he had fallen in with some other slave, he'd have involved the both of them in theft. Thinking he had loot, he'd be the loot himself, and loot would have led loot captive. Well, now I'll go in and offer sacrifice, and then order our dinner to be cooked at once.

ACT V

ENTER Labrax, IN POOR SPIRITS.

Labr. Who’s a more unlucky wretch than me in all this world, with Plesidippus getting the judges to decide against me now? Now I’m sentenced to lose Palaestra! I’m ruined! Why, I do believe we pimps are the sons of Joy, the way every mortal soul considers our troubles so enjoyable. Well, now I’ll go into the temple of Venus here and see to the other one I own, and at least get away with her, the remaining remnant of my estate.

Scene 2. ENTER Gripus GLOOMILY POLISHING A RUSTY SPIT.

Gr. (soliloquizing bitterly) No, sir, by Jove! You folks shan’t set eyes this night on a living Gripus, unless I’m given back that trunk.

Labr. (aside) Oh dear! Anywhere I hear that word “trunk,” it’s like pounding my chest with a pole.

Gr. There that villain’s free—and me, the man that caught the trunk in the sea with my net and pulled it up, not one thing will you give to him!

Labr. (aside, edging closer) Ye immortal gods! His talk has got my ears on end!

Gr. By heaven, I’ll post notices everywhere now, in letters a foot and a half high, that if anyone has lost a trunk full of gold and silver, he’s to apply to Gripus. You folks shan’t get it as you count on doing.
Labr. Meum hercle illic homo vidulum scit qui habet, ut ego opinor.

Labr. (aside) By gad, that chap knows who has my trunk. I do believe! I must approach him! (walks up) Now Heaven be with me!

Gr. (thinking he hears a summons from the house) What are you calling me in for? (polishing vigorously) I want to clean this up out in front here. Good Lord! Why, this thing's made of rust instead of iron! The more I rub it, the redder and thinner it gets! Why, this cursed spit's bewitched: see how it's wasting away in my hands!

Labr. (genially) Good-day, young man.
Gr. (polishing, savagely) God bless you, in your need of a haircut.
Labr. How goes it?
Gr. Spit's a-polishing.
Labr. How are you feeling?
Gr. See here, you! Tell me this, are you in the medical line?
Labr. Lord, no! I'm two letters more than medical.
Gr. Oh, mendicant, then?
Labr. You've hit it.
Gr. You look it. But what's wrong with you?
Labr. (casually) The sea cleaned me out last night. Ship was wrecked, lost every thing I had in it, worse luck!
Gr. (interested) What did you lose?
Labr. A trunk full of gold and silver.
Gr. (excited) D'ye remember what was in it, in the trunk that's gone?
Labr. Oh, what's the odds, seeing it's gone? Enough of that. Let's talk of something else.

Labr. Well, there were eight hundred pounds in it, in a wallet, besides a hundred sovereigns in a leather bag, all by itself.

Gr. (aside) My Lord, what loot! What a reward I'll get! The gods are good to men—I'll loot him handsomely before we part. The trunk's certainly his. (aloud) Go on with the rest of the contents.

Labr. There were two hundred pounds in silver—good honest coin—in a purse, and a bowl, too, and a tankard and a pitcher and a jug and a ladle.

Gr. Whew! You surely had a grand big pile!

Labr. That’s a dismal word, the very worst of words, "had," when what you have is nothing.

Gr. That's cool of a man that's full of hot air!

Labr. Well, I'll make it a hundred pounds.

Gr. You're dreaming!

Labr. (firmly) That's my limit.

Gr. (polishing again) Then leave.

Labr. Listen: once I do leave here, by gad, I won't—be here! (Gripus continues polishing) How about a hundred and ten?
TITUS MACCIUS PLAUTUS

Gr. Dormis.

Labr. Eloquere quantum postules.

Gr. Quo nihil invitus addas:
talentum magnum. non potest triobolum hinc abesse.

proin tu vel aias vel neges.

Labr. Quid istic? necessum est, video:
dabitur talentum.

Gr. Accede dum hoc: Venus haec volo adroget te.

Labr. Quod tibi libet id mi impera.

Gr. Tange aram hanc Veneris.

Labr. Tange.

Gr. Per Venerem hanc iurandum est tibi.

Labr. Quid iurem?

Gr. Quod iubebo.

Labr. Praei verbis quidvis. id quod domi est, numquam ulli supplicabo.

Gr. Tene aram hanc.

Labr. Teneo.

Gr. Deiera te mi argentum daturum eodem die, tui viduli ubi sis potitus.

Labr. Fiat.

Gr. Venus Cyrenensis, testem te testor mihi, si vidulum illum, quem ego in navi perdidii, cum auro atque argento salvom investigavero isque in potestatem meam pervenerit, tum ego huic Gripo, inquito, et me tangito—

Labr. Tum ego huic Gripo—dico, Venus, ut tu audias—talentum argenti magnum continuo dabo.

Gr. Si quid fraudassis, die ut te in quaestu tuo Venus eradicet, caput atque aetatem tuam.
tecum hoc habeto tamen, ubi iuraveris.
RUDENS

Gr. Fast asleep!
Labr. (disgustedly) Come, state your price.
Gr. Two hundred pounds. You needn’t add a bit to that unless you like. And you can’t subtract a sixpence. So just say yes or no.
Labr. Oh, very well! Needs must, I see. I’ll give two hundred.
Gr. (drawing him to the altar) Step this way, then. I want Venus here to take you in charge.
Labr. Anything you please, command me.
Gr. Put your hand on this altar of Venus.
Labr. (doing so) All right.
Gr. Now you must swear by Venus here.
Labr. Swear what?
Gr. What I say.
Labr. Dictate anything you like. (aside) Swearing’s easy: I’ll never beg for any help at that.
Gr. (as Labrax casually uses his altar hand to scratch himself) Keep hold of this altar.
Labr. (obeying) I am.
Gr. (solemnly) Now swear you will give me the money the same day you get possession of your trunk.
Labr. (lightly) So be it!
Gr. (unsatisfied, dictating) “Venus of Cyrene, be my witness that if that trunk I lost at sea is found safe with its gold and silver, and is put in my possession, then I will give to this man Gripus”—say that, and touch me—
Labr. (slyly minatory in tone and touch) Then I will give to this man Gripus—I speak so that you may hear me, Venus—two hundred pounds forthwith.
Gr. And say that if you try any tricks, you hope Venus will send you to smash, body and soul and business. (aside) And may the curse hold, anyhow, once you’ve sworn!
TITUS MACCIUS PLAUTUS

Labr. Illaec advorsum si quid peccasso, Venus, veneror te ut omnes miseri lenones sient.

Gr. Tamen fiet, etsi tu fidem servaveris.

Labr. Si maxime mi illum reddiderit vidulum, non ego illi hodie debeo triobolum.

1350 tu hic opperire, iam ego faxo exibit senex; eum tu continuo vidulum reposcito.

Labr. Si maxime mi illum reddiderit vidulum, non ego illi hodie debeo triobolum.

meus arbitratust, lingua quod iuret mea.

sed conticiscam: eccum exit et duceit senem.

V. 3.

Gr. Sequere hac.

Daem. Vbi istic lenost?

Gr. Heus tu. em tibi, hic habet vidulum.

Daem. Habeo et fateor esse apud me, et, si tuos est, habeas tibi.

omnia, ut quidquid infuit, ita salva sistentur tibi.

tene, si tuost.

Labr. O di immortales, meus est. salve, vidule. 1360

Daem. Tucsne est?

Labr. Rogitas? si quidem herele Iovis fuit, meus est tamen.

Daem. Omnia insunt salva; una istine cistella excepta est modo cum crepundiis, quibuscum hodie filiam inveni meam.

Labr. Quam?

RUDENS

Labr.  (more or less dutifully) If I do anything to violate that, Venus, I pray you that all pimps may come to grief.

Gr.  (aside) They will, anyhow, even if you keep your word. (aloud) You wait here: I’ll have the old man out at once. Then you go ahead and demand back the trunk from him.

[EXIT Gripus INTO HOUSE.

Labr. (glowering after him) Huh! No matter if he does get me back that trunk, I don’t owe him a single sixpence. My tongue may swear, but I act as I please. (as Daemones’ door opens) Hush, though! Here he comes with the old man in tow.

Scene 3.  ENTER Gripus, and Daemones.

Gr.  This way, sir. (approaches Labrax)

Daem.  Where is that pimp?

Gr.  (to Labrax) Hey, you! There’s your man, (pointing to Daemones) he has the trunk.

Daem.  I have, and admit I have it, and if it is yours, you shall have it. (nods to Gripus to get it)

[EXIT Gripus.

It shall be put in your hands intact, just as it was, with everything in it.

RE-ENTER Gripus TUGGING THE TRUNK.

Take it, if it’s yours. (pointing)

Labr.  (jubilant) O ye immortal gods, it is mine! Ah there, trunk!

Daem.  Is it yours?

Labr.  (grabbing it) Do you ask that? Lord, man, no matter if it even belonged to Jove, it’s mine.

Daem.  Everything inside is intact—except for our removing a little casket of toys which enabled me to find my daughter to-day.

Labr.  Daughter? Who?
TITUS MACCIUS PLAUTUS

Daem. Tua quae fuit Palaestra, ea filia inventast mea.
Labr. Bene mehercle factum est. cum istaec res tibi ex sententia pulchre evenit, gaudeo.

Daem. Istuc facile non credo tibi.
Labr. Immo hercle, ut scias gaudere me, mihi triobolum ob eam ne duis, condono te.

Daem. Benigne edepol facis.
Labr. Immo tu quidem hercle vero.
Gr. Heus tu, iam habes vidulum.
Labr. Habeco.
Gr. Propera.
Labr. Quid properabo?
Gr. Reddere argentum mihi. 1370
Labr. Neque edepol tibi do, neque quicquam debeo.
Gr. Quae haec factio est?

Labr. Non hercle vero.
Gr. Non tu iuratus mihi es?
Labr. Iuratus sum, et nunc iurabo, si quid voluptati est mihi:
ius iurandum rei servandae, non perdendae conditum est.
Gr. Cedo sis mihi talentum magnum argenti, periurissime.

Daem. Gripe, quod tu istum talentum poscis?
Gr. Iuratust mihi dare.
Labr. Libet iurare. tun meo pontifex peiurio es?
Daem. Qua pro re argentum promisit hic tibi?
Gr. Si vidulum hunc redegissem in potestatem eius, iuratust dare mihi talentum magnum argenti.
That Palaestra you used to have proves to be my daughter.

Good business, by Jove! So everything has turned out finely just to suit you! I'm glad!

Yes, it's easy for me to believe you are not.

No, by Jove, I am, and to show I'm glad I'll let you off from paying me a single sixpence for her.

My word! Kind of you!

No, by Jove, of you, it really is!

I say, you, now you have the trunk.

I have.

Hurry up.

Hurry up what?

And pay me my money.

Lord, man! I'll neither pay you any nor owe you any.

What's all this? You don't owe me any?

Jove! I should say I didn't!

Didn't you swear to me?

Swear, yes, and I'll swear now, if it gives me any pleasure. Swearing was invented to save property, not wreck it.

You kindly hand over that two hundred pounds, you perjured villain!

Gripus, what's that two hundred pounds you're claiming of him?

He swore he'd give it to me!

Hobby of mine, swearing. Are you high-priest over my perjury?

Why did he promise you the money?

If I got this trunk back in his hands, he swore he'd give me two hundred pounds.
TITUS MACCIUS PLAUTUS

Labr. Cedo quicum habeam iudicem, ni dolo malo instipulatus sis nive etiamdum haud quinque et viginti annos natus. 1380
Gr. Habe cum hoc. Aliost opus.
Labr. Aliost opus.
Daem. Iam ab isto auferre haud potis sim, si istunc condemnavero. promisistin huic argentum?
Labr. Fateor.
Daem. Quod servo meo promisisti, meum esse oportet, ne tu, leno, postules te hic fide lenonia uti: non potes.
Gr. Iam te ratu’s nactum hominem quem defraudares? dandum hue argentum est probum: id ego continuo huic dabo adeo, me ut hic emittat manu.
Daem. Quando ergo erga te benignus ego fui atque opera mea haec tibi sunt servata—
Gr. Immo hercle mea, ne tu dicas tua. 1390
Daem. Si sapies, tacebis—tum te mihi benigne itidem addecat bene merenti bene referre gratiam.
Labr. Nempe pro meo iure oras?
Daem. Mirum quin tuom ius meo pericloaps te expetam.
Gr. Salvos sum, leno labascit, libertas portenditur.

1 As a patronus, Gripus being a slave.
2 See Pseudolus, 303.
Labr. Name your man and we’ll go to an arbitrator and see if you didn’t make a fraudulent compact, or if I’m not still (with an evil grin) under the age of twenty-five.

Gr. Go to this gentleman. (pointing to Daemones)

Labr. I want someone else.

Daem. (aside, dubitative) Now I couldn’t get it away from him, (indicating Gripus) if I decided against (eyeing Labraxes) him. (to Labraxes, sternly, after thinking a moment) Did you promise him the money?

Labr. I admit it.

Daem. What you promised my slave should be mine, pimp, and you needn’t expect to use any of your pimp-craft on me: you can’t do it.

Gr. (to Labraxes, gleefully) So you thought you had lighted on a man you could cheat, eh? You’ve got to give me good honest money—and then I’ll give it straight to master here, yes, so that he’ll set me free.

Daem. (changing his tone) Now then, seeing I’ve done the decent thing by you and all this has been saved for you through my assistance—

Gr. (hotly) No, sir, by gad! Mine! Don’t you say “yours”!

Daem. (to Gripus, sharply) Show sense and keep your mouth shut! (to Labraxes) Then you ought to do the decent thing by me also, and return the favour of a man who has favoured you.

Labr. (cautiously) In asking this you recognize my rights, I take it?

Daem. It is remarkable that I don’t risk trying to take your rights away from you.

Gr. (aside, as Labraxes looks doubtful) Saved! The pimp falters! Freedom for me!
Daem. Vidulum istunc ille invenit, illud mancipium meum est; ego tibi hunc porro servavi cum magna pecunia.

Labr. Gratiam habeo, et de talento nulla causa est quin feras, quod isti sum iuratus.

Gr. Heus tu, mihi dato ergo, si sapis.

Daem. Tacen an non?

Gr. Tu meam rem simulas agere, tibi munis viam. non hercle istoc me intervortes, si aliam praedam perdid. 1400

Daem. Vapulabis, verbum si addis istuc unum.

Gr. Vel hercle enica, non tacebo umquam alio pacto, nisi talento comprimor.

Labr. Tibi operam hie quidem dat. tace.

Daem. Concede hoc tu, leno.

Labr. Licet.

Gr. Palam age, nolo ego murmurillum neque susurrum fieri.

Daem. Die mihi, quanti illam emisti tuam alteram mulierculam, Ampeliscam?

Labr. Mille numnum denumeravi.

Daem. Vin tibi condicionem luculentam ferre me?

Labr. Sane volo.

Daem. Dividuom talentum faciam.

Labr. Bene facis.

Daem. Pro illa altera, libera ut sit, dimidium tibi sume, dimidium hue cedo.

Labr. Maxime.

Daem. Pro illo dimidio ego Gripum emittam manu, quem propter tu vidulum et ego gnatam inveni.

1 munis viam Koch: Leo notes lacuna.
RUDENS

Daem. This fellow found that trunk, and he's my slave. And then I saved it for you, with all the money in it.

Labr. (succumbing) I'm much obliged, and as for the two hundred pounds I swore to give that chap, there's no reason you shouldn't have it.

Ir. Hey, you! Give it to me, then, if you know what's what.

Daem. Will you be silent, or not?

Ir. You pretend to see to my interests, and improve your own! By gad, you shan't swindle me out of that, even if I did lose the other loot.

Daem. You'll be thrashed if you add another word!

Ir. Murder me if you like, by gad, but the only way you can ever silence me is to plug me up with two hundred pounds!

Labr. (maliciously) Why, your master's looking to your welfare. Silence!

Daem. (withdrawing) Step over here, pimp.

Labr. (doing so) Very well.

Ir. (calling) Do things openly; I don't want any murmurlings or whisperings.

Daem. (to Labrax, in an undertone) Tell me, how much did you pay for that other girl of yours, Ampelisca?

Labr. One hundred pounds.

Daem. Do you want me to make you a handsome offer?

Labr. I certainly do.

Daem. I'll split the two hundred pounds.

Labr. That's good of you.

Daem. You take half for setting that other girl free, and give me half.

Labr. Very well.

Daem. (in a still lower tone) For that half I'll free Gripus, it being through him you found your trunk and I my daughter.
TITUS MACCIUS PLAUTUS

Labr. gratiam habeo magnam.
Gr. Quam mox mi argentum ergo redditur?
Daem. Res soluta est, Gripe. ego habeo.
Gr. At ego me herele mavolo.
Daem. Nihil herele hic tibi est, ne tu spere. iuris iurandi volo gratiam facias.
Gr. Perii herele. nisi me suspendo, occidi.
   numquam herele iterum defraudabis me quidem post hunc diem.
Daem. Hic hodie cenato, leno.
Labr. Fiat, condicio placet.
Daem. Sequimini intro. spectatores, vos quoque ad cenam vocem, ni daturus nil sim neque sit quicquam pollucti domi,
   nive adeo vocatos credam vos esse ad cenam foras. 142
   verum si voletis plausum fabulae huic clarum dare, comissatum omnes venitote ad me ad annos sedecim.
   vos hic hodie cenatote ambo.
Labr. fiat.
Daem. Plausum date.
That’s good of you, and I’m much obliged. (they rejoin Gripus)

Well now, how soon do I get my money?

It’s all settled, Gripus. I have it.

Oh Lord, but I prefer having it myself.

(mocking) Oh Lord, there’s nothing in it for you, so have no hopes. I want you to let him off his oath.

(over) Oh Lord, I’m done for! It’s all over with me, unless I hang myself! Oh Lord! After this day you’ll never again cheat me, not me!

Dine with me to-day, pimp.

Good. I accept with pleasure.

Come on in the house. (turning to the audience) Spectators, I should invite you to dinner too if it were not for the fact that I am giving none, and have nothing at home worth serving, and furthermore assume that you already have dinner invitations. But if you are willing to give this play your loud applause, all come and make a night of it with me—sixteen years from now. (to Labrax and Gripus) You two dine with me to-day.

(while Gripus still meditates death) Good.

(to audience) Give us your applause.
